Eight Days to Recover. When That Fist Swings. More Frantic Applause. Strange Cheating and Killing.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

UNPLEASANT NEWS from Michigan, as regards finance, good news concerning the prompt action of the Governor. With a big bank that had just borrowed its little allotment of millions from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in difficulties, the Governor closes all banks for eight days, to protect the depositors of the bank in trouble while plans are made.

Prior to this announcement, the public learns of banks to which the Reconstruction Corporation had already sent eighty-nine millions closing their doors despite the help. That "finance corporation" might wisely take Bernard Baruch's advice given before the Senate committee and stop shoveling public money into ratholes.

ON FRIDAY Primo Carnera from Italy hit Schaaf from Boston and yesterday Schaaf died. Schaaf is well named; Schaaf, in German, means "sheep."

Carnera in training weighs 264½ pounds, is six feet five and one-half inches tall, and his arms reach exactly seven feet. Schaaf weighed 207½ pounds, stood six feet two inches, his reach was six feet three inches.

His arms seven feet long, one of them weighing forty pounds, with a hand as heavy as a horse's hoof swinging around, is as dangerous as a swinging boom of a sailboat. And when it comes at you in a straight line with the weight of a 264½-pound body back of it, it is more dangerous.

SO CARNERA hit Schaaf on Friday and Schaaf died yesterday. One doctor performed an operation on Schaaf's skull. Another doctor, whose opinion would delight Aesculapius, said Mr. Schaaf "died of natural causes."

He did, indeed. When Carnera hits you with that fist at the end of that arm, nothing could be more "natural" than dying.

HOWEVER, A large section of our "civilization" not sufficiently energetic to run risks or incur danger on its own account, delights to see prize fighters in the ring, as an earlier civilization enjoyed the sight of gladiators fighting wild beasts and each other.

THE LITTLE navies of Peru and Columbia are fighting, and won't last long if it be true that airplanes are dropping bombs on the gunboats.

The commander of Columbia's planes "came valorously and attacked the enemy, Peruvian planes forcing them to retire." Crowds in the street applauded frantically.

We had that frantic applause in our streets, before 1918.

We might not have applauded so "frantically" had we known that it was to cost us a hundred billions of dollars and the present depression.

NEW INTERESTING kind of cheating, at Monte Carlo where the big casino looks down on the blue Mediterranean. An international gang of ten in collusion with croupiers marked cards for trente et coerant, "thirty and forty," with invisible ink. The swindlers wore special glasses that make the ink visible to them only, a new use for chemistry. Some of the gang are in jail.

Another set of cheaters long ago conspired to squeeze compartments on the roulette wheels each a fraction of an inch, making the odd number openings wider than the even numbers, when they bet on odd numbers, and broke the bank. Now, when one of the numerous "banks" hires aks, solemn gentlemen in white neckties come with a wheel of steel, to test all wheels on the tables.

A STRANGE murder in the southern mountains. An unfortunate old woman, mother of many children, was killed by one of her sons, assisted by several others and one sister.

The brother, head of a strange group of religious fanatics, told the jury:

"She had devils. I killed her so that she would be buried in sin, go to hell for three days and then be resurrected, and saved. No court has power to judge me."

The brother was brought into court chained to a cot. The mother was strangled and trampled under foot, by the shouting, frenzied fanatics.

BERNARD M. BARUCH gave excellent advice to the Senate, marvelously good advice to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. But he also advocated paying off farm mortgages with three per cent TAX EXEMPT bonds.

There should be no more tax exemption. The country has about as much of that legal tax dodging as it can stand, billions of tax-free bonds, forming a convenient cyclone cellar in which the timid can hide their money, drawing interest, free of tax.

IF THIS country had the courage of a mouse, and the common sense of a grasshopper, it would immediately put an end to all tax exemptions, making everybody who gets an income pay his tax no matter whence the income might come.

It would also call in at least ten billions of twenty odd billion government bonds now outstanding, pay for them with nice new currency, save four hundred million dollars a year in interest, and say to the former owners:

"Here's your money. The government's promise to pay is as good on that green currency as it is on a yellow government bond. Go ahead and

MICHIGAN BANKS TO FREE CASH

DETROIT, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Efforts to ease Michigan's cash situation created by the proclamation of an eight-day banking holiday continued today, with the state gradually following the lead of Detroit in arranging for the release to depositors of limited amounts of money.

While no definite policy for the remainder of the state had been adopted today, several banks reported arrangements for supplying limited funds.

At Ann Arbor, the city's four banks will permit withdrawal of $20 for each family beginning tomorrow. Several other outside banks planned to follow Detroit's plan, which included the release of $25,000,000 on Thursday, withdrawals being limited to 5 per cent of balances.

BANKERS MEET

The State Bankers Association met in executive session here today to formulate a plan of action for out-state banks.

Meanwhile, at Lansing, a bill designed to permit the limiting of withdrawals when the holiday is ended, in case such action is necessary, was prepared today for introduction into the state legislature.

Gov. William A. Comstock, whose early morning proclamation yesterday closed the banks for the period February 14 to 23 in the face of what he termed an "acute financial emergency" in Detroit, said he has been in-

Fire Razes Church, Organist Missing

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 15.—(INS.)—Fire razed St. Paul's Episcopal Church here today, causing a huge property loss. The fire was discovered by the Rev. Leslie C. Kelley, state boxing commissioner, and pastor of the church.

He said a young organist slept in the church at night. Firemen were searching the ruins for his body.

Carnegie Planned To Retire at 33

Andrew Carnegie, at 33, had an income of $50,000 a year. In today's installment of Burton J. Hendrick's biography printed on page one of the second section, appears a program that Carnegie drew up for himself at that time. He planned to retire from business, get an education at Oxford, England, buy a controlling interest in a newspaper, and devote himself to philanthropy and public affairs But the invention of Bessemer steel changed his plans and led to his formation of a new company to make steel rails.

INSULL'S SON BARES HUGE PROFIT

Reveals $26,000,000 Stock Coup to Senate Quiz

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—An inside story of the get-rich-quick scheme by which Samuel Insull and his family reaped huge profits through intricate manipulation of Insull stocks was revealed today at the Senate Banking and Currency Committee's investigation of the New York Stock Exchange.

Evidence was offered to prove that the Insulls and a small group of intimate friends reaped a paper profit of at least $26,000,000 through the sale of stock in Insull utilities alone.

Samuel Insull, Jr., whose father fled to Greece to escape criminal prosecution following the collapse of the vast utilities empire, was questioned for three hours by the committee.

He supplied details of the method under which common stock of the company was acquired under contract or option by Samuel Insull and his immediate family at a cost of $11,730,000, when its listed value on the day it first was offered on the Chicago Stock Exchange was $36,420,000.

Later in 1929, the year these transactions occurred, the stock skyrocketed to a figure several times that high.

Its purchase for as little as $7.50 a per share by the Insulls, its peak of $149 a share a few months afterwards, and its recent sale at $1 per share formed a recital amazing to committee members.

Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric Company, is under subpena to appear before the committee tomorrow in connection with the Insull inquiry. So is former Vice President Charles G. Dawes, of Chicago.

Young received 4,000 shares of the stock distributed by Samuel Insull to business associates and friends.

Charges have been made in the Senate that the R. F. C. lost millions of dollars by extending a $90,000,000 loan to the Dawes bank, with Insull securities included as part of the collateral.

Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric Company, has been asked to appear but not placed under subpena.

Still another noted financier, Melvin A. Traylor, of Chicago, was under summons to testify.

Subpenas were issued to officials of the Chicago Stock Exchange, including Paul H. Davis, its president.

O'Malley Indicted In Attack on Geary

Constable Mark O'Malley, brother of Pat O'Malley, Republican chairman of the Second Ward, was indicted by the grand jury today on a charge of aggravated assault and battery on Alderman Thomas M. Geary.

Geary suffered a black eye and a fractured rib when O'Malley assaulted him some weeks ago, the indictment charges. The fight was reported to be an outcome of the feud between the O'Malley and Geary factions to control the ward.

Succop Librarian At County Jail

The county jail had a new librarian today—Bertram L. Succop, former city purchasing agent, who on Sunday began serving a one-year sentence following his conviction with Mayor Kline. The job is regarded as the most pleasant in the jail. Succop will distribute literature to his fellow prisoners. One of his predecessors was Joe Engelsberg, Hill district politician, who several months ago served a short term.

Vending Machines Meet Cigaret Cut

The cigaret war today had reached into the vending machine business—hitherto seemingly impregnable to price cuts—and had forced the price of four popular brands of cigarets to 13 cents a package. Change of two cents is in each package, inserted between wrapper and celophane.

GIRL ARTIST HITS PRIZE PAINTING

Hints Oakland Rival Copied Work of Britisher

Artist Louise Pershing asked that question today. She had a photograph of the Shannon painting to point her question.

Bowman, earlier this week, explained the similarity of another of his pictures in the exhibition with one done by Milan Petrovits for a charity drive last spring as due to "coincidence." He denied copying.

MISS PERSHING LEFT OUT

But Miss Pershing today alleged that the jury for the show, seeking novelty, had pinned a prize on a copy, while it rejected her paintings this year for the first time since 1924.

The charge of "copy" came as a distinct shock to the Pittsburgh art world. It was expected to raise a rumpus in the Associated Artists.

EXPERIENCED ARTIST

Miss Pershing is an artist who has painted in Pittsburgh for a number of years. Her paintings have hung in exhibitions in many galleries in the United States. She has taken prizes at past Associated Artists' exhibitions. She says:

"This show is growing into a scandal which is bound to handicap the spread of art in Pittsburgh for years."

"It has been said, and with good reason, that the jury had no sincerity in its work, that it set out to make a joke out of the exhibition. It certainly succeeded.

"It's unethical to copy another artist's work. That's what Bowman has apparently done. The jury may or may not have known this when they awarded that prize.

"The jury's pride in 'originality' and 'naive simplicity' certainly should receive a shock now. I didn't want to say anything until I had proof, lest someone cry 'sour grapes.'"

W. R. Hearst Answers Questions Asked By Japanese Newspaper

The Japanese newspaper Yomiuri Shimbun, of Tokio, publishes in its morning and afternoon editions today William Randolph Hearst's replies to three questions submitted to Mr. Hearst by that newspaper's New York correspondent. The questions discussed deal with America, Japan and the League of Nations. The Tokio newspaper prefaces Mr. Hearst's remarks with a foreword by Yasuo Fuwa, its correspondent in America.

Herewith the Sun-Telegraph reprints the questions and Mr. Hearst's replies:

QUESTION—The struggle between Japan and the League of Nations during the past year and a half may be regarded as a struggle between realistic nationalism and idealistic internationalism, or between advocacy of national rights and supernational organization. Has America, as a non-member of the League, learned any lesson from this struggle? If so, what?

MR. HEARST'S REPLY—The people of the United States have never been willing to become part of the League of Nations. They are less willing today than they ever have been.

I do not know that the internationalism of the League of Nations is particularly idealistic, although it professes to be so. At any rate the application of any idealistic internationalism has not been encouragingly successful.

The American people have not been led by the operations of the League to have any higher opinion of its unselfishness and impartiality than they formerly had, nor to desire to be a member of it and become subject to its international influence, and possibly subject to its interference with our national rights.

There is a further reason why the people of the United States do not want their country to become a part of the League of Nations.

This is because they do not wish to be drawn into any more foreign wars fought over matters in which they have very little interest or concern.

QUESTION—Respect of China's sovereignty and the doctrine of equal opportunity are very old doctrines. As we see America today, she is evolving toward an enlightened age under a so-called "new deal," which is based on existing realities. Do you believe such doctrines should still be applied to the much changed China of today?

MR. HEARST'S REPLY—I do not see that the so-called "new deal" in America has anything to do with the Japan-China situation. The proposed "new deal" is economic and domestic.

The Japan-China situation is very largely extraneous to our affairs. The American people believe in peace for themselves, and in peace as a general policy beneficial to the progress of the world.

They would like to see peace prevail in the Orient, and peaceful progress take place there as elsewhere.

We have respect for China's sovereignty, but we think China should have some respect for her own sovereignty, and should use her resources for her own development and her own protection, and not dissipate them in civil warfare and political anarchy.

QUESTION—Do you favor America accepting co-responsibility with the League of Nations for consequences of the League's final action against Japan, particularly should this final action include non-recognition of Manchukuo and the evoking of an arms embargo and economic sanctions against Japan?

MR. HEARST'S REPLY—I do not favor America accepting co-responsibility with the League of Nations for the consequences of

VOTE DEBATE ON REPEAL MEASURE

Wets, Victorious by 58 to 23, to Fight Filibuster

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—For the first time since national prohibition was written into the Constitution 13 years ago, the Senate today voted to begin formal consideration of a resolution proposing repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The vote was 58 to 23. Senators Reed and Davis, Pennsylvania Republicans, voted with majority.

The resolution, fathered by Senator Blaine (Rep.), of Wisconsin, would repeal national prohibition, provide federal aid for dry states and give Congress power to outlaw saloons.

VICTORY INDICATED

The Senate must approve it by a two-thirds majority vote, which seemed assured if it can be brought to a final vote before it is sent to the House.

A militant dry minority was fighting the resolution, having filibustered against it eight hours yesterday. Democratic wets opposed its last two sections, demanding the reoslution be limited to straight-out repeal.

The vote plainly indicated adoption of the resolution by the constitutional two-thirds majority, providing it can be brought to a vote. Counting 14 Senators, paired for and against it, the total strength was: 65 wet; 30 dry. Only Senator Schall (Rep.), of Minnesota, was unrecorded.

TEST OF STRENGTH

For considering repeal—58.

Farmer Laborite—Shipstead (1).

Republicans—Borah, Brookhart, Capper, Cutting, Dale, Dickinson,

M'GOVERN SEES TAX CUT

Good news for taxpayers sped out of the courthouse today.

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern announced there was a bare possibility that county taxes would be reduced.

If the reduction does come, it will be small, McGovern added. He said:

"I have a plan which, if the other Commissioners accept, might bring a slight cut."

McGovern was in secret conference this afternoon with Commissioners C. M. Barr and William D. Mansfield discussing this plan.

Civic groups, realtors and property owners have demanded that the prestnt rate of 8⅜ mills—exclusive of the 3-mill poor tax—be reduced.

'Buying American' Puts Many to Work

NEWELL, W. Va., Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Orders to report to work Monday morning cheered 150 employes of the Homer Laughlin Company today. The men, who are to re-open plant No. 7 of the company, increase to 300 the number recalled in three weeks.

The management of the concern credited recent heavy orders drawn from within the United States for the upturn in their business.

Schaaf Death May Bring N.Y. Boxing Ban

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Boxing in the state of New York was tottering precariously on its pedestal today as the grieving family of Ernie Schaaf arrived at its suburban home, outside Boston, with the body of the heavyweight fighter, leaving boxing here the prey of bickering, recrimination and the threat of absolute annulment.

Gov. Lehman, taking cognizance of Schaaf's death early yesterday following his collapse before the huge Carnera last Friday, has ordered a Boxing Commission probe of all circumstances surrounding the tragedy.

Senator Henry Schackno today introduced a repeal measure at Albany. Two Assemblymen are asking a legislative investigation of boxing and stricter supervision.

The proposed Carnera-Sharkey fight for the heavyweight championship has been driven out of the state by the Boxing Commission, which also anticipated the Governor by hastening to the mimeographs with an official statement, giving absolution to those who conducted the fight in which Schaaf met his death.

Those who performed the first autopsy couldn't even agree on the cause of death. Dr. Charles Norris, medical examiner, said that death was due to natural causes. Dr. Benjamin Vance, who actually performed the autopsy, said death was not due to natural causes.

Moving pictures of the finish of the Carnera-Schaaf fight, showing the landing of the final blow and its effect upon Schaaf, who later died, appear in the sports section.

Nathan Not Sure Of Age; He's 51 Or Maybe 37

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—George Jean Nathan, dramatic critic, author, iconoclast and man about town was either 51 or 37 years old yesterday, but he had to stop a minute and figure out which. He explained:

"For a long time H. L. Mencken and I have had to bamboozle 'Who's Who' a little. We've pretended to be 14 years older than we were, and maybe get come credit for profundity."

So that makes him actually 37.

And this is his birthday prediction:

"In three years the theater will be the most brilliant thing in America."

FAMED TAVERN CONDEMNED

The Rising Sun Tavern, that more than a century ago, according to tradition, housed George Washington and other notables of pioneer days, will be used as firewood to warm the unemployed, if Fire Marshal Thomas L. Pfarr has his way.

The fire marshal today condemned the rambling frame structure on the Butler Plank road between Millvale and Etna as unsafe. He said he would discuss the matter of having the building torn down with Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt, solicitor for Shaler Township. Pfarr suggested the wood could be used as fuel by the needy in the township.

The tavern is the property of John Murphy, of Harrisburg, Pfarr said.

Wife of Al Smith Taken to Hospital

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(INS.)—Mrs. Alfred E. Smith, wife of the former New York Governor, today was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, reported to be suffering from an intestinal or digestive ailment.

NICOLA'S TRIAL OPENS FEB. 27

Further postponement of the long delayed trial of F. F. Nicola, real estate operator, charged with evading payment of more than $32,000 in federal income tax, was denied by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker today. The case is listed for trial February 27 at a special term of court.

The petition for further postponement was accompanied by affidavits of three physicians, Drs. C. C. Moyer, C. C. Wholey and Nelson H. Clark, who stated Nicola is suffering from a physical and mental condition and that the ordeal of the trial would be too severe.

Nicola was indicted November 13, 1931, on two counts charging evasion of taxes for 1928 and 1929. The case was listed for trial at a special term in 1932, but was continued on account of the defendant's physical condition. It again was listed for trial in November, 1932, but was continued when physicians' affidavits were presented.

LEAGUE SEEKS U. S. SUPPORT OF REPORT SCORING JAPAN

TOKIO PLANNING COURSE OF ISOLATION

Exchanges Closed as Liquidation Hits Security Prices

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service.

GENEVA, Feb. 15.—An attempt to obtain formal American support of its report condemning Japan in Manchuria was made by the League of Nations today.

Members of the League sounded out Hugh Wilson, American minister to Switzerland, as to whether the United States would adhere to the report if adopted by the League assembly.

The League's Sino-Japanese committee of 19, it was learned, discussed the American attitude, based upon recent pronouncements by Secretary of State Stimson and the embargo proposed by President Hoover.

The discussion took place before the committee adopted the report which had been drafted by a sub-commission under paragraph 4, article 15, of the League covenant. It was apparent that the committee felt it could be reasonably sure of support from Washington.

WITHDRAWAL CERTAIN

TOKIO, Feb. 15.—(INS.)—Fully reconciled to the necessity of withdrawing from the League of Nations, Japan today plotted her new course of isolation and independence in the Far East.

Plans were laid for the establishment of a military council, which will dictate the country's campaign in Manchuria and Jehol, and for the creation of a "council of elders," which will guide the nation's destiny when it has cast adrift from internationalism with its resignation from the League.

At the same time, Foreign Minister Uchida granted Yosuke Matsuoka, chief Japanese delegate to the League, permission to leave Geneva on February 28 for Japan via the United States. High foreign office officials said there was "no longer any question" regarding Japanese secession from the League.

EXCHANGES CLOSE

Meanwhile trading on all the leading exchanges in Japan was suspended this afternoon when a wave of liquidation caused a sharp drop in prices of stocks and bonds.

The liquidation resulted from the League of Nations' rejection of Japan's latest attempt to conciliate the Manchurian dispute. At the time the exchanges closed, leading issues stood from 19 to 32 points below last week's prices.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 15.—(INS.)—China will break off diplomatic relations with Japan, if the Japanese army invades Jehol province, it was announced in dispatches from Nanking, capital of the Nationalist government, today.

TROTH BALKED, HE SUES U. S.

BUDAPEST, Feb. 15.—(INS.)—Charging he was unlawfully arrested and deported from Washington in order to prevent his marriage to Sarah Carey, debutante daughter of Senator and Mrs. Robert D. Carey, of Wyoming, Martin Porkay, noted Hungarian art dealer and critic, filed suit for $100,000 damages against the United States government today.

The suit was filed in the Budapest court. Porkay, who is 43, charged that his arrest and deportation were instigated by Senator and Mrs. Carey for the express purpose of preventing the marriage.

EXPECT TRUCE ON TAX FEES

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 15.—Some form of legislation reducing the fees of the Delinquent Tax Collector of Allegheny County will be reported to the Senate by its Committee on New Counties and County Seats.

This assurance was given today by Senator John Howell, of Lackawanna County, chairman of the sub-committee which yesterday conducted a hearing on the Mansfield bill, abolishing fees entirely, and the Coyne bill, reducing the fees to 5 per cent from 10.

The impression was gained from questions put to various witnesses by committee members that the Mansfield bill would not be reported, and that some portion of the fee system would be retained.

It is possible a compromise will be reached placing the fee at 4 per cent.

Harry A. Bastow, president of the Allied Boards of Trade; James F. Malone, former president of City Council, and J. Roland Brady, secretary of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, opposed the Coyne bill before the committee yesterday, insisting no fees should be paid for tax collection.

Coyne and Bastow had some heated exchanges, but the arguments between Mansfield and Coyne as they dissected each others' bills were marked by an extreme air of pleasantry and courtesy.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—(INS.)—A United Air Lines tri-motored passenger plane was landed safely at Chicago municipal airport today after one of its motors had dropped out near Waterman, Ill. The plane was en route to Kansas City.

BENEDUM WAITS FOR ROOSEVELT

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 15.—(AP.)—President-elect Roosevelt returns tonight from the southern seas to plunge into the presidential problems confronting him little more than two weeks hence, and select finally the key men upon whom he will depend to carry out his policies for the "new deal."

Among early appointments on Roosevelt's calendar is one with M. L. Benedum, of Pittsburgh. It it understood Benedum is not seeking any post in the Roosevelt administration.

One of the first with whom Roosevelt will consult in New York very likely will be Senator Glass, of Virginia, the leader in new banking legislation, who is wanted for Secretary of the Treasury. Upon his return here late today, it is understood the President-elect will confer with James M. Cox, 1920 Democratic Presidential nominee, who sounded the call last Saturday for support of the Congressional plan to give Roosevelt extraordinary power to cut government expenditures by complete reorganization.

LONG BROTHER BACKS TALE OF 'SHAKEDOWN'

'Kingfish' Dares Him To Repeat Charge; Cries 'Liar!'

International News Service.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 15.—The widening breach between United States Senator Huey (Kingfish) Long and his brother, Earl, was further strained today as the latter refused to retract charges made before the Senate Election Committee that Huey Long had accepted $10,000 from a public utilities representative.

After his brother had testified that Harry H. Abell, described as the "payoff man" for the power firm, had slipped $10,000 in Huey's bathrobe pocket, the Senator declared:

"I'll put him in jail if he makes those statements outside this room."

TELLS OF CASH

Asked by Samuel T. Ansell, counsel for the Senate committee investigating John H. Overton's election to the Senate, whether any cash had been passed by Abell in connection with state legislation, Earl Long replied:

"Yes, Huey told me Abell had given him $10,000. He told me the money was in crisp $100 bills."

He quoted his brother as saying he was afraid of the bills because they may have been marked.

The Kingfish, leaping to his feet, cried:

"It's a damned lie."

Senator Long afterward apologized to Chairman Howell and the Senate committee for his outburst.

Abell is employed by the utility interests controlling the New Orleans public service properties, one of which contracted with the city of New Orleans for gas service in Long's administration as governor.

ELECTIONS "ROTTEN"

Proceeding with his testimony, Earl Long declared that the elections of O. K. Allen as Governor and Overton as Senator were "the rottenest in Louisiana's history." He charged that his brother, with whom he had been on friendly terms until two years ago, had selected Allen as candidate for Governor because he knew Allen would listen to the Senator.

The witness charged that Huey Long received 4,000 votes in St. Bernard Parish, where the registered vote was only 2,000.

Asked by Ansell whether he knew anything of reports that Harvey Couch, public utilities official, had been "shaken down" by Senator Long, the witness replied:

"Yes, Huey called Mr. Couch in and told him he would have to help him so the people would not destroy him."

Senator Long shouted:

"That also is a lie!"

In answer to his brother's charges regarding the asserted payment of $10,000, Senator Long said he did not own a bathrobe in 1927.

U. S. STEEL HEAD URGES BUDGET BALANCING

Taylor Warns Against Tampering With Currency

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Balancing the budget and no tampering with the currency were urged before the Senate Finance Committee today by Myron Taylor, chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation.

Taylor appeared before the committee in its hunt for a way to restore prosperity, adding his voice to those of others who have insisted the government live within its income.

Jackson Reynolds, president of the First National Bank of New York City, likewise advocated holding federal costs to revenues to help recovery.

Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, in a letter put into the committee record by Senator Harrison (Dem.), of Mississippi, sponsored cancellation of war debts and a balanced budget.

CONTROL BY BRITAIN

The committee heard from Rene Leon, former technical adviser of the House Coinage Committee, a charge that England through its 150,000,000 pound exchange equalization fund, was seeking to drive down the dollar as a way of forcing debt revision.

Leon, in appearing before the committee in its study of economic conditions, joined a number of other witnesses in advocating monetization of silver. He suggested purchase of 400,000,000 ounces or more by the Treasury and the issuance of silver certificates.

He said that through the British exchange equalization fund for purchasing gold currencies in the open market, England had "the control of dollar exchange and consequently the control of American prices."

URGES ECONOMY

Reynolds told the committee he had no solution for economic ills and doubted that any one person had, but suggested governmental steps to restore the people's confidence in the government.

Two obstacles stand in the way of recovery, Reynolds said, explaining:

"Until the government lives prudently within its income, we won't get out of difficulties."

He said he did not believe the budget could be balanced by increased taxation.

ANTI-DRYS WIN SENATE TEST

The pairs included Senators Carey and Metcalf, Republicans; Copeland, Broussard, Wheeler, Reynolds and Long, Democrats, for considering repeal, and Fess, Howell, Thomas (Idaho), Frazier, Republicans; Gore, Stephens and Thomas (Oklahoma), Democrats, against it.

AMENDMENTS OFFERED

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic floor leader, immediately offered an amendment to the resolution, putting into effect the Democratic plank calling for outright repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. Robinson's amendment would submit the question to state conventions instead of to state legislatures, as proposed in Blaine's resolution.

Senator Blaine then sought a limitation on debate. He asked that Senators be limited to 20 minutes on any amendment and 15 minutes on the resolution itself. Senator Brookhart (Rep.), of Iowa, dry, immediately objected. He blocked several proposed agreements yesterday. It was taken to indicate the drys would filibuster against the resolution.

Escort Cleared In Girl's Killing

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Police last night unconditionally released Dennis Boyle, escort of Miss Rose McCloskey the night she was beaten to death in Fairmount Park.

Boyle, himself seriously hurt the night of January 5, had been in a hospital Monday. Then he went to city hall and volunatrily stayed there over night.

Dime Tax Urged On Sunday Workers

HARRISBURG, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Representative Clinton Sowers, Philadelphia, introduced a bill today which, in effect, says:

"Brother, can you spare a dime—for tax?"

The bill would place a 10-cents-a-day tax on persons employed on Saturdays and Sundays.

The revenue derived would be placed in the general fund and would provide a new source of cash from which relief could be paid.

Girl Wife Testifies Of Quarrel And Desertion

Betty Lewis May, daughter of James E. Lewis, president of the Harbison Walker Refractories Company, asked a divorce yesterday from Harry May, whom she married in Wellsburg when she was 15.

They were married November 27, 1929, and separated October 28, 1930. In her testimony, Mrs. May said her father bought her clothes and gave her an allowance, and that she drove her husband to and from the insurance office where he was employed.

The charge was desertion. Mrs. May said her husband left her October 9 for two days following a quarrel. Differences were patched up following his return, she said.

They lived in Squaw Run road, Aspinwall.

Bullitt Reaches N. Y. From Europe

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Dense fog in the outer harbor delayed arrival today of the North German Lloyd liner Europa, with 731 passengers, among whom was William C. Bullitt, journalist, whose travels about Europe were linked by rumor with secret international negotiations.

Two Bank Bandits Flee Without Loot

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15.—(INS.)—Two armed bandits today invaded a branch of the Corn Exchange National Bank, bound the night watchman with picture wire, but were frightened off without obtaining any loot.

BRITISH READY TO TALK TRADE

LONDON, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Prime Minister MacDonald said in the House of Commons today that a recent statement by Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, made it plain that while he did not regard war debts as an occasion for bargaining, "he was anxious that all questions which delayed world recovery should be discussed by Great Britain and the United States in a spirit of co-operation for common ends."

Mr. Chamberlain said a few days ago that the approaching debts conference at Washington would not be made an occasion for swapping tariff advantages.

Mr. MacDonald's statement was in answer to a question as to whether the Chancellor's declaration meant that the British government's policy was that the American war debt was to be treated as an isolated problem.

W. R. Hearst Answers Questions Asked By Japanese Newspaper

the League's final action against Japan.

I favor America minding her own business, and as George Washington phrased it, keeping "free from foreign entanglements."

Our government has plenty to attend to just now in promoting the welfare of its own people, and should concern itself with the problems of its own nation.

Tokio Publication's Comment on Mr. Hearst

Following is comment on Mr. Hearst published by the Tokio newspaper Yomiuri Shimbun which is credited by that newspaper to its New York correspondent, Yasuo Fuwa:

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.

Mr. W. R. Hearst is well known to Japanese as the "king of American journalism," and leader of an anti-Japanese immigrant movement in this country.

We know of his ardent devotion to American foreign policies of aloofness from foreign entanglements, as well as his championship of the "America first" movement. He is regarded as an outspoken person and a tactful campaigner, and he is looked upon in America as a most powerful personality, as friend or foe, on any public question.

Since the Manchurian incident, and particularly when Mr. Stimson proclaimed his famous doctrine of the sanctity of peace treaties, Mr. Hearst has mobilized his tremendous power to arouse public opinion around his faith in a "hands off policy" that would "let Asiatic matters be settled by Asiatic people; it is not white America's business." This he has done in no unmistakable terms.

What made up his mind in that direction? That we do not know or care to know. Nevertheless, he who helped the election of Mr. Roosevelt in this ordinarily Republican country will have far greater influence upon future foreign policies of this country. Some conservative politicians have already shown concern in this direction.

Through the very kind arrangement of Universal Service I was able to obtain a telegraphic interview with Mr. Hearst, who was far out in Los Angeles. As our country is approaching the most critical moment in our history, I trust his direct words to our people will be heralded throughout our Empire.

While American public opinion is wondering what Japan's next step in this international crisis will be, Mr. Hearst's valued opinion will be as an alarm bell to our ears and those of the American people.

Jap, Chinese Envoys Near 'Collision'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15—(INS.)—Confusion reigned in the corridors of the State Department today when, by coincidence, Dr. Alfred Sze, newly appointed Chinese minister, appeared while Katsuji Debuchi, Japanese ambassador, was visiting government officials.

Dr. Sze was quickly ushered into the diplomatic ante-room and the door closed. When informed the Chinese minister had arrived and Ambassador Debuchi also was in the department, Warren Delano Robbins, diplomatic ceremonial officer, remarked:

"Oh, my God."

Mrs. Roosevelt to Shun Politics in Capital

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(Universal.)—When Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt becomes the first lady of the land, she does not intend to meddle in politics.

The wife of the President-elect made that clear last night during an address she delivered at a gathering of the Women's Trade Union League, in which she has taken an active part during the past 10 years. Present were about 200 factory girls, members of the organization, to welcome the guest of honor.

Mrs. Roosevelt prefaced her remarks by saying she has received numerous letters "telling me what to do." She said:

"I am beginning to see there will be a lot of things I will be unable to do when I move to Washington. I will not meddle in politics, but I do think there are many things which are not strictly political which will be very interesting and which will have to do with women.

"I am told very frequently what I should do. I have an idea that all one has to do is to be himself.

"There was never very much accomplished by being what you think you should be. I may not always toe the mark, but I'll try not to hurt anyone's feelings, and I'll try to be dignified and helpful and uphold my position."

Mrs. Roosevelt said she intends to make frequent visits to New York from the White House and will keep in close touch with her activities he[illegible]

U. S. CLEARS MICHELANGELO OF 'SMUTTY ART' CHARGE

MORE ARRESTS PROMISED IN KIDNAPING

Denver Police Grill Two Suspects in Abduction

International News Service.

DENVER, Feb. 15. — Two men were arrested early today as suspects in the kidnaping of Charles Boettcher II, broker and clubman, and Chief of Police A. T. Clark predicted the apprehension soon of four or five others. He declared he is following the trail which he announced yesterday he expected would lead to a solution of the mystery and return within 48 hours of the kidnap victim, whose abductors demand a ransom of $60,000.

Those held for investigation were N. W. Mitchell and George Zarlengo, both of Denver. Both have records as bootleggers.

GRILLED FOUR HOURS

Chief Clark questioned Mitchell, a good-looking, blond young man, for more than four hours early today, but would not reveal what Mitchell's responses, or his own line of questioning, were.

The chief admitted, however, that he was working on the theory that the amazing kidnaping was engineered by a master criminal from an eastern city—Chicago or Kansas City.

The optimistic conjecture of friends of the vanished broker is that "Charlie will take care of himself," for he is known to be cool-headed and resourceful.

QUIZ CHICAGO MEN

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—(INS.)—Two men were freed by Chicago police today after questioning in connection with the kidnaping of Charles Boettcher II, wealthy young Denver broker.

They are Ben Rykaza, a political worker and employe of the forest preserve, and Frank J. Sullivan, a prize fight promoter.

Sullivan was taken to the detective bureau for questioning after a telephone call from the Brown Palace Hotel in Denver, on the day of the kidnaping had been traced to suburban Cicero.

'Modern' Marriage, Says Kidnaped Man's Wife

DENVER, Feb. 15.—(INS.)—A "modern" marriage, with freedom of companionship for both husband and wife, is the union of Charles Boettcher II, kidnaped millionaire broker, and his lovely young wife, Anna Lou.

Mrs. Boettcher explained today her views on marriage, in refutation of a report that marital discord had preceded the kidnaping Sunday night of her prominent young husband. She declared:

"We have always been happy together since our marriage, nearly seven years ago. The idea that because my husband has been at some entertainments without me or with a woman friend indicates any lack of harmony in our marriage is absurd. After all, you know, I have not felt like going about much lately."

Mrs. Boettcher, a fragile blonde, with a ready laugh, is expecting her second child in March. She is noted throughout Denver society for her sweet disposition and sense of humor, as well as for her beauty. She said:

"What Mr. Boettcher does is his business, and what I do is mine. I do not select his friends for him, nor tell him what he can do and where he can go. He, also, respects my rights as an adult individual. Our love is unaltered—indeed, strengthened by this terrible thing that has happened. I am sure one of Charles' main concerns now is for my good health."

Elihu Root 88 Today; 'Queen' of Opera, 75

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Birthdays mean little to Elihu Root now, he's had so many of them. So today on his eighty-eighth, the former Secretary of State and famous jurist, planned to omit any celebration, passing the anniversary quietly in his apartment.

'FUGITIVE' HERE DENIED MERCY

Pleas of Eugene H. Tressler that he has "reformed" and made restitution for his alleged bogus stock transactions and bail forfeit in 1926, were unavailing today, as he was committed to jail to serve a 20-month sentence.

Tressler, brought here from Connecticut, where he served part of a sentence, obtained a hearing with District Attorney Andrew T. Park, whose aid he sought in an effort to escape the sentence imposed here. He told Park he had paid his attorneys $10,000 to settle his obligations and pay the bail he "jumped" following his conviction in 1926.

Park questioned the attorneys who represented Tressler and was told he had paid them only $500 as their fee; had not paid $1,000 to one of them as he had agreed, and that his story that a Cleveland attorney would supply $10,000 for his bond was false. The District Attorney said stock certificates Tressler gave as security for his bond were forged.

Judge Samuel H. Gardner committed Tressler to jail on Park's recommendation.

YACHT MURDER NEARS JURY

LONG BEACH, Cal. Feb. 15.—(AP.) — The trial of William James Guy, charged with the slaying of the adventurous globe trotter Walter Wanderwell, neared a close today with final arguments and court instructions to precede the placing of the case in the hands of a jury of nine men and three women.

In an eleventh hour decision, the defense placed the 23-year-old square-jawed Welsh sailor on the stand yesterday. In ringing, emphatic tones he entered a denial of guilt with the assertion he did not visit Long Beach last December 5, the night Wanderwell was shot to death on board his yacht the Carma.

PANTHER-NEWS WAR RAGES AT PITT

Valentine Verse Slap Draws Fire of Humorists

Aspiring journalists and humorists at the University of Pittsburgh have one thing in common today—frigidness.

Antagonism between the two groups of scribes started yesterday when the Pitt News, campus newspaper, dedicated several lines of Valentine verse to the Pitt Panther, humorous publication. The verse, which was printed in the News, read:

For years we've read the awful puns
You pass for jokes;
They're not the ones
That irk us most;
It's the proverbial way you boast
That you're the student body's toast.
For, if you're toast, then
Lord, we've learned
That on both sides our
Toast is burned!

In return for the valentine rime, which they didn't like in the least, the Panther staff is selling on the campus today a burlesque copy of the News. The parody on the News is exact in every detail—even to the headlines and advertisements. The slogan of the josh publication is:

"Red by $12,000."

Several of the headlines read:

"Council Raps Faculty Heads: Hollow Sound Is Detected."

"News Editors Award Selves High Honors."

"Y Boys Stage Beer Inquiry."

"Social Calendar Full As Hell: Society Editor Yawns."

A story on the sports page says that football has passed out at Pitt and that the gridders wept with joy when they heard the news. The story quoted a halfback, who voiced the sentiment of the entire squad, as saying:

"Now we can devote ourselves unstintingly to our academic pursuits."

KELLAND MUST PAY WIFE'S BILL

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Clarence Budington Kelland, the author who doesn't believe women ought to be allowed to "pile up bills" when they have "no cash to pay," must pay $3,505.68 for goods his wife bought at a dress shop.

Supreme Court Justice John L. Walsh granted a petition yesterday for a judgment asked by Hattie Carnegie, Inc., women's apparel shop. The sum was for goods purchased by Mrs. Kelland during 1931 and 1932. Kelland did not appear in court to protest the action.

When the action was brought on October 5, last, Kelland said he intended to defend the suit because "these people ought to be discouraged from piling bills on women who do not realize, while they have no cash to pay for it, that they are getting themselves into deep obligations." He declared at the time:

"I allege that my financial condition, at no time, would justify a characterization of hose at $6.50 a pair, a white panama hat at $40, cloth coat at $420, dresses at $225 and $250 and perfumery at $25 or $15 as necessaries for my wife."

Tall Pastor to Wed 42-Inch Midget

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—The Rev. Charles J. Wilson, six feet tall, and Nancy Malinda Beal, 42-inch midget, today filed a notice of intention to wed.

They said the ceremony would take place next Sunday, after which they would commence an evangelistic campaign.

Which Is Whose Painting?

TWO PAINTINGS: ONE BY SIR JAMES, ONE BY RALPH BOWMAN

Two paintings, one by Sir James J. Shannon, A. R. A., and called "Lady Diana Manners," the other by Ralph Bowman, North Side artist, and called "Betty Joan." Mr. Bowman's picture won the second prize in the current Associated Artists' exhibition at Carnegie Galleries and proves, apparently, that Lady Diana and Betty Joan were twins or that Lady Diana has an alias. Which is whose painting? Sir James about 30 years ago painted the topmost one.

BEATEN CHILD GIVEN BLOOD

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Physicians resorted to a blood transfusion late yesterday in an effort to save the life of Kathleen Britton, 8, victim of a beating administered a week ago. She has remained unconscious throughout the week and two operations have failed to improve her condition materially, attending physicians said

Mrs. Margaret Britton, mother of the girl, was the donor of a pint of blood in the operation. Mrs. Britton and Cody Calloway, who lived at the Britton home, are held by police under technical charges of assault in connection with the beating.

Mrs. Britton and Calloway, police said, accuse each other of having beaten the child.

LINDSEY SEEKS TO UPSET BAN

DENVER, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—A petition in which Ben Lindsey, former judge of Denver's Juvenile Court, asks that the disbarment order issued against him on December 9, 1929, be set aside and that he be reinstated as a member of the state bar, was on file today with the clerk of the Colorado Supreme Court.

The petition was filed for Lindsey by Philip Hornbein, attorney, and was signed by a number of prominent Colorado residents, including United States Senators Karl C. Schuyler and E. P. Costigan.

Lindsey was disbarred after complications developed from his acceptance of alleged gifts from Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes in connection with the estate of W. E. D. Stokes, New York millionaire.

TWO FIRED ON, SAVED BY 'BLANKS'

Estranged Husband, Taken in Chase, Cries 'Frameup'

Because his wife refused to return to him, James Clyde Kane, 33, of Overbrook, set out early today with a revolver in hand, according to the police.

Before he was captured he had fired two shots at his brother-in-law, another at the brother-in-law's wife, and led the police in a merry chase, Constables Leo Urbansky and William Brady reported.

It all happened in North Versailles Township, a few miles out of East Pittsburgh.

And the reason Kane's shots had little effect was because somebody "framed" him by substituting blanks in the pistol, the constables said he explained to them.

Kane, who lives at 396 Ivyglen street, Overbrook, trailed his wife to the home of her sister—Mrs. June McCrorey, in Fifth avenue extension, North Versailles Township—and battered in the front door with his gun, the constables said.

In the corridor he fired one shot at Mrs. McCrorey, fled past her to a second-floor bedroom, where twice he fired at James McCrorey, so the constables reported.

Mrs. McCrorey suffered powder burns on the face.

Constables Urbansky and Brady, who had been told of threats against Mrs. Kane, said they were anticipating trouble.

An automobile race followed—a race of four miles, after which Kane was captured near the Lincoln highway after his car had crashed into a fence. He'll be arraigned tonight before Justice of the Peace M. J. Conroy, in East Pittsburgh.

DEBATE RELIEF IN ASSEMBLY

HARRISBURG, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—The Legislature looked upon Pennsylvania's alarming unemployment relief problem today with the demands and warnings of its Governor squarely before it.

Closing its seventh week, the lawmakers reviewed Gov. Pinchot's stirring appeal of yesterday. He warned it must provide $20,000,000 to aid the destitute and that another special session will be called unless it provides the money. He declared that "bloodshed" and "rioting" threaten if the Legislature fails.

Speaking before a joint session the Governor said:

"I give notice now that if a relief bill reaches me without provision made for providing the money appropriated for relief, I shall be obliged to veto it, even at the cost of calling an extra session."

To administer relief, the Governor urged continuance of the State Emergency Relief Board and its commissary plan.

He did not mention unemployment insurance, asserting that later he will address the Legislature on the subject.

The Governor's program is based upon centralizing the collection of personal property, mercantile and inheritance taxes in the Department of Revenue. He contends the change will yield $20,000,000 in additional revenue and also $13,000,000 for the counties in the next two years from personal property tax.

ASK CAROL QUIT FOR MICHAEL

VIENNA, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Reports in those prolific gossip centers, the Vienna and Budapest coffee houses, said today the purpose of the recent visit to Jugoslavia of members of the Rumanian royal family was to discuss the perilous position of the Rumanian and Jugoslavian royal houses.

Archduke Anton of Hapsburg, and his wife, Princess Ileana, sister of King Carol of Rumania, and the Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania, attended the family parley. One version is that the family advised King Carol to abdicate in favor of his young son, Prince Michael.

Another is that the Rumanian royalty sought assistance of King Alexander of Jugoslavia, in case of a revolution in Rumania and still another that they planned ways of assisting Alexander to escape from Jugoslavia in case of an emergency.

spend it or do without interest."

That would put into circulation ten billions of nice new money perfectly good and that is what the country needs.

FRANK HAGUE, energetic Mayor of Jersey City, wants Mr. Moore, Governor of New Jersey, to demand "voluntary suspension of mortgage foreclosures for at least two years."

Gov. Moore will ask mortgageholders to "adopt the idea." Many mortgagees will not like it, but if taxes and interest are paid, it is wiser, in some cases, to keep the mortgages than take over the property.

VATICAN DESIGN PHOTOS 'FREED' BY CUSTOMS

Act Follows Ridicule Of Edict Branding Work 'Obscene'

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—The United States Customs has cleared Michelangelo of a charge of being smutty.

After first having been adjudged "obscene" and detained for four days, a series of photographs of Michaelangelo's famous frescoes on the ceiling of the Pope's Sistine Chapel in the Vatican, have been released.

The pictures were consigned to Ernhard Weyhe, a New York book importer, who was notified upon arrival of the package that they would be destroyed. They were submitted, however, to Assistant Solicitor Brewer and he ordered their release at once.

FAMOUS FRESCOES

Art historians say hardly any pictures in the world are more famous than the frescoes that Michaelangelo painted at the behest of Pope Julius II. The decorative scheme covers 10,000 square feet of the ceiling of the chapel and required four years to complete.

During that time the artist worked on his back on a scaffold. The work was completed in 1521.

The Sistine Chapel is the private chapel of the Pope, built in 1473, and the art work tells the Biblical story from the creation to the flood.

Countless reproductions of the frescoes have been made and scattered throughout the world.

RIDICULES EDICT

Nearly choking with laughter, Weyhe, when informed of the customs examiner's decision of "obscenity," yesterday asked:

"What shall I do? I laughed. I laughed so when I opened the letter I almost had apoplexy. The Pope's own beautiful frescoes, the finest thing in the Vatican Palace, and a customs inspector finds them obscene!"

Later a customs official explained some of the pictures "at first glance" might be considered obscene, but a little study would identify them as "art." He said that in this case the law against obscenity "hardly seems to hold."

In Michelangelo's famous decorative scheme, some of the figures are depicted nude. The art historian, Vasari, said that:

"When it was finished, all the world hastened from every part to behold it, and, having beheld it, they remained astonished and speechless."

2,000 Idle Won't Yield Seized City Building

SEATTLE, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Weary from a night on marble floors in the County-City Building, 2,000 unemployed men and women, some of them with babies in arms, renewed their demands today for an audience with the newly-formed county relief commission.

The demonstrators, protesting against the abandonment of the public commissaries maintained by the county and demanding county financial support for a march to the state capital, took up sleeping quarters in the building last night.

William Dobbins, president of the Unemployed Citizens League, said the crowd would stay "until the relief board comes down here and answers our questions. After getting them to answer we will present our demands, then disperse. We are staying here because all the county and city authorities are right here. We may go directly to Olympia (the capital) after leaving here. We will decide later."

Yawning and stretching aching muscles, the crowd milled around the building. Yesterday spokesmen demanded a weekly dole of $13.50 for food per family, or three days work a week at $4.50 a day.

Meanwhile the county commissioners had refused all requests. Mayor John F. Dore called off the police guards thrown through the building.

County Commissioner Louis Nash, a member of the relief commission, said he would confer with Welfare Commissioner W. D. Shannon, and County Relief Chairman N. C. Block in hope of getting a majority of the relief commission to meet with the demonstrators today.

Chairman Black said neither he nor Commissioner Shannon would appear before the crowd, but would be glad to discuss the demands if a committee of three would meet them in their offices.

Throughout the night speakers shouted th grievances. Occasionally the group lapsed into community singing, but from midnight until down most of them slept.

BANKS PREPARE TO FREE CASH IN MICHIGAN

formed that some banks are opening for essential business, such as cashing checks drawn on local banks only for payroll and emergency needs, and the acceptance of deposits. He said the state will not attempt to force them to comply strictly with his holiday proclamation. He declared:

"A holiday was ordered to avert a panic when the news of the Detroit financial situation became public. The situation is not subject to rules, but good judgment." ... ...

RUMORS PROBED

Bert C. Brown, district chief of the United States Secret Service, reported today that 125 special operatives reached Detroit today, and another 100 arrived at Grand Rapids, with orders to investigate any reports of false propaganda or the circulation of rumors against the state's financial condition.

Meanwhile, the depositors whose $1,500,000,000 bank balances were tied up accepted the situation philosophically. Confidence was expressed that the eight-day respite would permit a sound adjustment of the Union Guardian Trust Company's financial difficulties, which precipitated the drastic action.

CLARIFIES FORD STAND

Gov. Comstock, who had indicated yesterday that a controversy between Henry Ford and competing automobile companies figured in the failure of the negotiations, said last night he had been informed "I misunderstood the facts."

He had said in his earlier statement that he was informed Mr. Ford refused to join other large depositors, including Chrysler and General Motors, in an agreement to subordinate their claims to those of smaller depositors and the R. F. C. His statement last night said:

"General Motors and Chrysler are not depositors. Mr. Ford had no agreement with the trust company or with Chrysler or General Motors."

He added that when it was suggested the Ford Company put up a "substantial part" of necessary funds, the company decided it could not add to the approximately $20,000,000 it had put into the trust company.

Ford, Couzens Clash Figures in Bank Closing

DETROIT, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—The Detroit Free Press in a copyrighted story today says that the divergent paths and opinions of Senator James Couzens, of Michigan, and Henry Ford, partners from 1901 to 1918, in the Ford Motor Company, are reflected in the difficulties that precipitated Michigan's eight-day banking holiday.

The Free Press' story describes Mr. Ford's growing interest in the Union Guardian Trust Company, an affiliate of the Guardian-Detroit-Union Group, Inc., culminating in his depositing $7,100,000. This he did, the Free Press says, in part as a step to improve the cash position of the institution, which has 72 per cent of its listed assets in Detroit real estate, rendering its cash position difficult during the past few years.

The sums deposited by Mr. Ford failed to enable the bank to regain a sufficiently liquid position, the Free Press continues, and last December, application was made by the bank to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for a $60,000,000 loan.

COUZENS PROTESTS

The request was about to be granted, says the Free Press, when Senator Couzens entered a vigorous protest in which he maintained that the collateral offered by the bank was inadequate to secure the government from loss. The chief liquid asset listed was Mr. Ford's deposit of $7,100,000.

Senator Couzens is quoted by the Free Press as having suggested to Mr. Ford that in effect he grant the government a lien on his deposits in the Detroit bank by constituting them a "frozen asset" of the bank. This Mr. Ford declined to do, the paper says.

Senator Couzens then suggested, the paper says, that he and Mr. Ford jointly sign a note for the difference between the face of the proposed R. F. C. loan, which ultimately had been scaled to $37,750,000, and the assets offered by the bank. Mr. Ford declined this plan also, says the Free Press, holding that there was a "basic principle involved."

Senator Couzens was in conference with President Hoover, the paper's story says, and was requested by the Chief Executive to add his sanction to the R. F. C. loan, but the Senator "vowed he would go on the floor of the Senate and denounce the loan if it were made."

Cafe Man to Feed Hungry Chicago Writers

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—A Chicago restaurant man has decided to do something for the literary world.

He announced through the Writers' Guild that he would advance meals against the sale of promising manuscripts of writers. His motto:

"Hungry to be read and hungry to be fed."

GERMAN POLICE 'CZAR' NAMED

BERLIN, Feb. 15.—(INS.)—Taking the first step toward an ironclad Nazi dictatorship, Capt. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, minister without portfolio in the cabinet of Adolf Hitler, today appointed a police chief with czar-like powers over the provinces of Rhineland and Westphalia.

The man chosen for the post was Commander Stieler von Heldekampf. He was installed above the civilian authorities of the provinces and given extraordinary powers, including the reinforcement of police by "civilians", meaning Nazi storm troopers, in the event of industrial unrest or Communist uprisings.

The entire Prussian police force, consisting of 100,000 men, is expected to be reorganized along similar lines.

HALT IN PENSION PAYING UP TO MANSFIELD

More than 200 pensioned county employes today awaited the return from Harrisburg of Commissioner W. D. Mansfield to see if he would concur in the action taken yesterday by his fellow Commissioners, pending his approval of suspending payment of pensions.

Commissioners C. M. Barr and C. C. McGovern voted to eliminate this year's $75,000 appropriation to the pension fund, and to stop signing warrants for pension payments. After this month present employes will pay into the fund at their own risk, the Commissioners announced.

FEAR SURCHARGES

The two Commissioners took the stand that as they knew the pension fund to be insolvent they had no right to appropriate county money to it. Appropriating with that knowledge would make them liable to surcharges, McGovern said.

SEEKING NEW FUND

McGovern said:

"We are trying to help the pensioned employes by getting a new fund. They criticize us and won't co-operate. I am in favor of letting this present fund go broke. If it did, they would try to help themselves. Maybe they can get the necessary legislation. This fund will be on the rocks about July."

Man Leads Horse To Water Gets Broken Leg

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Feb. 15.—(AP.)—You can lead a horse to water, Aubrey Jones finds, and he may not only refuse to drink but may bite the hand that's trying to feed him.

Jones, 37, Glenville farmer, is in critical condition at his home with a broken leg and possible internal injuries, physicians say.

The animal reared, broke Jones' leg with his forefeet, then picked him up in his teeth and shook him.

'Skippy's Father' Attacks Navy Cut Proposal

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—(Universal.)—Percy Crosby, cartoonist and writer who created "Skippy," bought a full page paid advertisement in today's Washington Herald to tell Senators and Representatives what he thinks of the plan to cut Navy appropriations 5 per cent.

Under the caption "Extra! Extra! Congressman refuses to sell his vote," the crusading artist belabors members of Congress supporting the Navy cut.

Senator Bratton (Dem.), New Mexico, author of the resolution, is the target of Crosby's sarcastic scorn.

PENNINGTON'S MEN ACTIVE

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—More than $24,000 in fines and 116 jail sentences were imposed in the Third Prohibition District, comprising Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, during January, says a report from the district headquarters here.

Convictions were obtained in 259 of 271 cases, the report states, or 95.6 per cent. Of these 100 were in Pennsylvania, 150 in New Jersey and nine in Delaware.

Prohibition agents in the three states seized 54 automobiles and trucks, 58 distilleries and 12 individual stills, 10 wildcar breweries, 51,042 gallons of beer, 26,062 gallons of spirits, 1,459 gallons of wine and 564,752 gallons of mash.

CUBA DECLARED NEAR REVOLT AND CHAOS

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Cuba is in "a state of anarchy" veering toward chaos and revolution because of the "iron rule" of President Gerardo Machado, according to Carlos Hevia, revolutionary leader, who is now in New York City.

Living in Cuba at present is like sitting on a barrel of gun powder, in the opinion of Hevia, as expressed in an interview today. The "explosion" he said, may come any day—or it may be delayed indefinitely.

WARNS OF OUTBREAK

Hevia declared:

"Sporadic killings and bombings are taking place. The island is under martial law. Business is 'shot to pieces.' A violent undercurrent of resentment is inflaming the two factions in Cuba, the Machado element and the anti-Machado forces. Anything can happen—any time."

Hevia, 33, dark-haired and dark-eyed, took a leading part in the revolutionary expedition which left New York and landed in Cibara, Cuba, in August, 1931. He is the only Cuban who has graduated from the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. He is the son of Col. Aurelio Hevia, a leader of the Nationalist party in Cuba.

Col. Hevia (the father), together with Col. Carlos Mendieta and Col. Roberto Mendez Penate, are now under sentence of death in Havana. These three men are the leaders of the Nationalist party which has opposed Machado since he became President. On January 5 last, Machado ordered the three of them killed. They took refuge in the Mexican Embassy in Havana—where they are now—because the Cuban government refuses to issue passports to them. According to young Hevia they want the three leaders to go to Europe—or some place even further away.

Young Hevia said:

BLAMES MACHADO

"President Machado is solely to blame for the critical situation which exists today in Cuba. He has set up a self-perpetuating dictatorship, a rule of force. He has put into effect a policy of assassination as a principle of government.

"His murder list since he became President in 1925 totals more than 2,000 persons. Resentment of criticism is an obsession with him and explains why he has subjected the people of his country to military domination."

Hevia declared that "99 per cent of Cuba's population of 3,500,000 people" are against Machado who, he charged, rules by means of his army and secret police.

COLOMBIA CUTS PERU TIES

Associated Press.

Colombia today ordered its minister to Peru to return home, severing diplomatic relations with that country, and as a result of the outbreak of warfare between the two South American nations.

Peru announced it received official advice the Colombian government considered Brazilian mediation in the border dispute as finished.

Colombia claimed a Peruvian air force was the aggressor in yesterday's battle on the Putumayo River while Peru insisted a Colombian flotilla began the fight by attacking a Peruvian garrison at Tarapaca.

Unofficial reports reached Colombia that Tarapaca was captured by its troops, but the Peruvian commander reported the engagement was "inconsequential."

Both parties said the fighting started in Brazilian territory.

The Colombian flotilla went up the Amazon to reach the area which Colombia lost to Peruvians last September. Peru signed a treaty ceding the important upper Amazon port of Leticia to Colombia, but claimed Colombia has failed to cede other areas to Peru as agreed.

JERSEY KILLING HUSHED, SAYS EX-CORONER

International News Service.

MT. HOLLY, N. J., Feb. 15.—Asserting his probe of the Wilson-Roberts double slaying four years ago had been bridled by powerful political pressure, former Coroner Benjamin F. Farner today promised a reopening of the investigation.

He said:

"And when it is reopened certain persons will be lucky if they do not go to jail."

Principals in the double slaying were Horace Roberts, Jr., and Ruth Mowdray Wilson, whose unclad bodies were found shot to death in the girl's bedroom. The coroner's jury decided that Roberts had killed the girl and then shot himself when she broke off their engagement.

TO ASK RE-OPENING

Farner's prediction followed a statement by Horace Roberts, Sr., that he planned to ask Gov. A. Harry Moore to reopen the Wilson-Roberts probe. Roberts declared that testimony uncovered in the investigation on the slaying of Bradway Brown, wealthy young printing firm executive, convinced him the three deaths were strangely linked.

"At the time of the killings, I was a candidate for Sheriff. 'They' threatened to 'knife' me unless I went along with certain big shots.

'DOUBLE-CROSSED'

"I was double-crossed; I went along; but I was defeated anyway.

"But my skirts are clean. That's a lot more than some Burlington County politicians will be able to say if I'm ever asked to make public names in this case."

Bradway Brown, a former suitor of Miss Wilson, testified at the inquest that he believed Roberts killed his sweetheart and then ended his own life.

SEES NO LINK

Farner said, however, he did not believe any link existed between the Wilson-Roberts tragedy and the Brown slaying.

Prior to the Coroner's inquest into the Wilson-Roberts killing, Farner said, a girl whose name he withheld arranged a meeting with a New Jersey politician at the latter's home.

Farner said:

"He pleaded with me not to call an inquest. He threatened me and said he would cut me out of the sheriff's job if an inquest was held. With tears in his eyes, he told me the thing would kill his daughter. She was upstairs sick at the time."

Your Income Tax

Change In Stock Loss Exemption Explained

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

This is the twenty-first of a series of articles analyzing the Revenue Act of 1932 and discussing the problems of income taxpayers.

One of the most important changes made by the Revenue Act of 1932 applies to the method of reporting losses from the sale of stocks or bonds. In the past these losses could be deducted from net income provided that identical securities were not repurchased within 30 days.

Under the new law, however, the time during which stocks or bonds have been held becomes a vital factor. Securities held less than two years are not considered to be capital assets. Those held more than two years are considered capital assets. Different rulings apply to the two types of holdings.

Losses taken from the sale of securities held less than two years cannot be deducted from net income except to the extent that they can be applied against gains from the sale of securities during the tax year.

If the losses for the year exceed gains of this type, the balance may be carried over as a deduction against gains from similar transactions for the suceeding year to the extent of the taxpayers' net income for the year 1932.

This limitation does not apply to dealers in securities who purchase stocks or bonds for resale to customers or to banks or trust companies.

In defining stocks or bonds subject to this limitation the statute specifically excludes bonds issued by a government or any subdivision of a government.

Rail Head, Former Station Agent, Dies

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Death has closed the career of Peter M. Newman, who rose from station agent to president of three railway companies. He was 71.

He started as a station agent on the Williamsport and North Branch Railroad. He was president of the Susquehanna and New York railroad, the Tionesta valley railroad and the Clarion River railway, subsidiaries of the Central Pennsylvania Lumber Company.

PRISONERS RIOT OVER PRUNES

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(Universal.)—Long simmering discontent with the prison fare in Brooklyn's Raymond street pail flared into a riot which raged for two and a half hours yesterday, and left one convict dying, four others wounded and three keepers less seriously injured.

Protest against the frequent appearance of prunes and hash on the prison menu started the revolt which threw the jail into an uproar and brought a dozen police radio squad cars, two emergency trucks and a score of detectives rushing to the scene.

The most seriously injured was James F. Cahill, former policeman under indictment for murder. It was he who led the riot and who later was rushed to Kings County Hospital in a critical condition.

As keepers fought a pitched battle with the rioting prisoners within the jail, police threw a cordon around the building to prevent a possible break.

BLAST VICTIMS UNIDENTIFIED

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 15.—Efforts to identify the charred bodies of the two men found in the ruins of the home of Joseph Colosi in Ohio street, destroyed by a mysterious explosion and fire Sunday night, ran up against a stone wall today.

The torso's burned almost beyond recognition are believed to be those of Mike Daleo, 50, and his son, Mike, Jr. Both men are missing according to an admission of their families but they have refused to go to the County Morgue and attempt to identify them, Coroner Blaine Day said. Belief that the two Daloes' perished in the fire was given credence Monday, when a son, John, 15, said his brother Mike wore a belt with a buckle bearing the name, Mike. Such a belt was found on one of the dead men, it was said.

Leo's Powerful Roar Jars Globe-Trotter

Globe-trotting puts a fellow in many situations and even a veteran like Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, gets his surprises.

The time was 6:30 o'clock last night; the place, the editorial department of the Sun-Telegraph; the occasion, evening news broadcast for Stations WCAE and WJAS. Then came the surprise. Leo, the 19-year-old Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lion, made his presence known and gave the Globe-Trotter the growling "Hello" that greets movie fans.

The cheerio went into the countless number of homes of radio listeners because Leo was right up in front of the microphones.

Of course, Leo was in his cage and under the watchful eyes of his trainer, Capt. Volney Phifer, who brought the cat to this country 18 years ago from Khartum, British Sudan. Like a movie star, Leo was too temperamental to talk, but he growled powerfully. He's quite a Globe-Trotter himself, journeying over the country continually. A visit with his trainer to the Globe-Trotter was but natural. Their screen productions are released by the same M-G-M exchanges.

Capt. Phifer, noted wild animal trainer, had to make the social contacts for Leo. He explained that Leo was doing pretty well for his age. Of a set of 28 teeth, Leo still has 23, with two of them filled.

Indigestion is no worry for Leo. He eats 15 to 17 pounds of raw meat a day when doing light work, like his appearances twice daily at Kaufmann's this week. He enjoys 25 to 30 pounds when working all day.

GUARD ADMITS RUM RING PAY

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—A former Coast Guard told yesterday of accepting $100-a-week from an alleged $5,000,000 liquor syndicate to give members information which enabled them to land imported liquors along the Delaware Bay shores.

The testimony, offered by Solomon E. Coppens, of Empire, Mich., was given in Federal Court as trial of 10 men as members of the alleged ring resumed. Twenty-four others have pleaded guilty, and charges will be dropped against two additional persons.

Coppens testified the money was paid him by J. Frank Hilton, previously described by the prosecutor as the "brains" of the ring. Hilton is now in Montreal, Canada, fighting extradition.

The witness, a veteran of 15 years' service in the Coast Guard, explained he never knew anything official about the maneuvers of the liquor chasers, but from his varied experience he generally had a pretty good idea just what was happening.

Coppens said he was trapped by Department of Justice agents when he called Hilton on "tapped" telephone wires regarding an overdue $100 bill needed to visit his ill father. He declared that someone, presumably Hilton, wired the money to his wife at Cape May, N. J., and it was in this way that the "information money" was traced.

NORRIS SHUNS HOOVER DINNER

WASHINGTON, Feb 15.—(Universal.)—The President and Mrs. Hoover entertained at dinner last night for the Judiciary.

Among those not present were Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, chairman, and Senator Ashurst (Dem.), of Arizona, chairman-to-be of the Senate Judiciary Committee. It was explained at the White House that they had been invited but had sent regrets.

Representative Sumners (Dem.), of Texas, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, and Representative Dyer (Rep.), of Missouri, former chairman, were on hand.

Norris' absence was not surprising since he openly opposed President Hoover in both the 1928 and 1932 presidential campaigns and throughout the Hoover administration has been out of harmony with the President's policies and program.

Three of the nine justices of the Supreme Court also were absent, Justices Brandeis, Van DeVanter and Sutherland.

Warns Dope War Faces Failure

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 15.—(Universal).—Federal narcotic enforcement is threatened with breakdown unless the states rally immediately in a co-operative drive to suppress the illicit dope traffic, Harry J. Anslinger, United States Narcotics Commissioner, warns.

Appearing before a committee of the Maryland Legislature to urge adoption of the uniform state narcotic law, Anslinger revealed the traffickers are taking advantage of legal loopholes to obtain narcotic drugs.

Bomb Wrecks Rum Resort in Warren

WARREN, O., Feb. 15.—Trumbull County's most famous liquor spot was a wreck today, according to police. A bomb exploded at 6 a. m. in South Pine street, ripped the barroom to pieces, police said, and broke windows in 16 other store fronts. The bomb was exploded in front of a vacant storeroom, a blind for the bar, and ripped out all the furnishings of the place behind a partition.

BISHOP TELLS SEA TRAGEDY

DUTCH HARBOR, Alaska, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Bishop Antonin Pokrovsky was rescued last night by the Bureau of Fisheries ship Penguin, and told a pitiful story of how 12 persons on the shipwrecked trading vessel Umnak Native died by freezing and drowning.

The distinguished Alaskan prelate of the Russian Orthodox Church was found by natives yesterday, seriously frostbitten and suffering from long exposure after the shipwreck January 24. When the Penguin, with a doctor, reached the Bishop, who is more than 70 years old, only three others of the 16 aboard the Umnak Native had survived, and they struggled to a village after days of suffering and hunger.

When the storm struck the Aleutian Islands, the Umnak Native broke her moorings and the disabled engines were unable to drive her to shelter. Mrs. Stankus, wife of the captain, her infant child and the Rev. Michael Tutiakoss, priest at Umnak, perished in the waves, the Bishop related. The others reached shore almost naked, he sad.

Ralph finally discovered in an old oil well a ladder tall enough to enable him to save his pet.

DECLARES MOON SWAYS EARTH

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Dr. Harlan T. Stetson, who, as director of the Perkins Observatory of Ohio Wesleyan University, peers through the second largest telescope in America, has dropped some observations for his fellow mortals to ponder.

Young couples standing in the moonlight may blame Luna for sending shivers down their spines, he said in an address here, but in reality she is doing a lot more than that. She is swaying the earth under their feet. The ground moves six feet every time the moon rises, Dr. Stetson explained.

And speaking of shivers, mankind may be in for some real ones.

Old Mother Earth is racing through space at the rate of 11 miles a second and doesn't know where she is going, the astronomer warned. Sooner or later she may run into a "cosmic fog" which will cut down the sunlight. The result would be another ice age.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Be 'Sun Conscious' in the Winter Time, Too

In the movies the other night, was a news reel showing pictures of tubercular children almost unclad running in the deep snow. These children gave every evidence that they were happy, well nourished and enjoying their play in the snow and sun. I was amused when I heard a lady sitting behind me remark, "It is shameful to expose children to the cold."

Dr. Copeland

Many years ago Rollier, an eminent Swiss doctor, discovered that children and adults suffering from tuberculosis benefited greatly when exposed to the direct rays of the sun. This practice has been carried on for years during the summer and winter months. Science now recognizes the curative value of the sun in tuberculosis and other ailments.

During the summer months we are all more or less "sun conscious." Perhaps it is because we are anxious to acquire a coat of tan. I am sure most of my readers will agree that a coat of tan is healthy looking and gives one a sense of well being. Unfortunately, during the winter months weather conditions discourage sun bathing and we neglect its beneficial rays.

Children suffer more than adults when that are deprived of sunshine. Sunlight gives the body an adequate supply of vitamin D. When this particular vitamin is lacking the child is unable to build strong bones and teeth. Even though a child suffers from lack of proper food, if will not develop rickets if sufficiently exposed to sunlight.

Within recent years children have benefited by taking cod liver oil during the winter months. This oil contains vitamin D, essential to proper growth and development. It takes the place of the beneficial rays of the sun which are kept from the child by weather, clouds, window glass and an excess of clothing.

In addition to vitamin D, cod liver oil contains an abundance of vitamin A. This is the vitamin which helps children grow and builds up their resistance against infection and disease. This vitamin prevents one of the serious diseases of the eyes.

Cod liver oil may be given to the infant as early as the fourth week. Begin by giving a half teaspoon twice a day. In six weeks, increase the amount to one teaspoon twice a day, and by the end of three months, one and one-half teaspoons twice a day. At about the fourth month, give two teaspoons of cod liver oil twice a day and continue this during the first two years.

Too little attention is given to the importance of outdoor life during the winter. We are inclined to remain indoors, near the fireside. There is no doubt that children and adults would benefit by continued outdoor activities in winter months, as in summer.

N. Braddock Asks 3 Mill Tax Cut

A reduction of three mills in the borough taxes was asked by residents of North Braddock in a petition presented Borough Council at its February meeting last night. Action was postponed until March 14. Borough officials said they are working on the budget with the intention of reducing the present rate of 10 mills. John Hanna and Michael Stretaski, minority members, have urged eight mills.

Robbers Face 20 And 25-Year Terms

Gardner in Criminal Court yesterday sentenced Arthur Lorise, 214 Lombard street, to 12½ to 25 years, and Leo Lipfin, 608 Roberts street, to 10 to 20 years. Lorise said he was the leader in the robberies committed December 24 and January 5 in Squirrel Hill and the Highland avenue district.

Paid $5,000 in Fines, Balks at Another

When Julia Cindricks, Fourth avenue, McKeesport, announced she could not pay a fine of $100 and costs, imposed on a charge of keeping a disorderly house, police recalled that the woman had paid approximately $5,000 in fines. They said she had been arrested at least 30 times. The old fine in McKeesport was $205, but recently it has been cut. John Crncic, 943 Jerome street, also was fined $100 on a similar charge.

REPORT BLAMES RAILROADS FOR OWN PLIGHT

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Railroad managements found today that much of the responsibility for the financial plight of America's $20,000,000,000 rail system had been placed squarely on their own doorsteps by the report of the National Transportation Committee.

This non-partisan committee, which conducted a sweeping investigation of the transportation problem at the behest of savings banks, insurance companies and other large investors, urged drastic measures toward consolidation, eliminating wasteful competition.

REGULATION UROBLEM

The committee found some justice in railroads' complaint that they have been hamstrung by inept regulation, but reported a "tendency to over-emphasize this argument." Declaring regulation has "left something to be desired, the report added:

"The railroads should do much that they have not done to improve their condition without any government help at all. They should be promptly freed of all unnecessary restrictions on the doing of it.

"It has been estimated that less than a 20 per cent increase in traffic would put most of them on an earning basis."

Furthermore, the committee said government assumption of "all or part of the costs of inefficient competing transport as a defense against monopoly is no longer warranted and should be abandoned."

The report, issued last night, was signed by Bernard M. Baruch, who succeeded the late Calvin Coolidge as chairman; by Clark Howell and Alexander Legge.

Alfred E. Smith, while stating that he was in substantial agreement with the greater part of the report, did not sign it. He issued a supplementary memorandum, "placing the emphasis where I think it belongs."

CONSOLIDATION URGED

"I am convinced that the fundamental problem of the railroads is that of nation-wide consolidation and reorganization to reduce costs and rates, and write off losses.

"Whatever may be the basis of valuation and rate-making, there must be a scaling down of many railroad securities.

"Those who are responsible for present railroad management need not complain of radical or drastic governmental action in the near future if they are unwilling even to attempt to meet their problems in a bold, forthright way through their own initiative and co-operation."

Tech Student Wins Warren Art Award

After a three-day national beaux arts competition, Francis O'Connor Church, of Rochester, N. Y., a junior in the department of architecture at Carnegie Institute of Technology, has been announced the winner of the first prize of $50. The prize is given through the generosity of Mr. Whitney Warren, New York architect.

Two years ago the Whitney Warren prize was won by W. H. Scheick, a Carnegie student, who is now teaching at the University of Illinois.

Dedicate World's Largest Postoffice

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—The world's largest postoffice, costing $16,000,000, was dedicated today.

Helping Hand Gets Loan of Horses For Board

Council apparently has found a way to lend the Helping Hand eight city-owned horses. A resolution before Council provides the horses will be lent to the association with their board the only remuneration.

The horses are to be used for winter plowing on the Helping Hand's farm near Harmarville. Council recently offered to give the horses to the Helping Hand, but the Law Department said it would not be legal.

STREETS PICKED FOR REPAVING

The city's repaving program for 1933—for which $100,000 is set up, has been partly and tentatively outlined.

Streets to be repaved under the program are Forty-first street, from Butler to Foster street; Forty-fifth street, from Davison street to the St. Francis Hospital; Mulberry way, from Twelfth to Thirteenth streets; South Ninth street, from Mt. Washington roadway to East Carson street; South Tenth street, from Mt. Washington roadway to Sarah street, and a portion of First avenue.

It is estimated these streets can be repaved at a cost of $67,000.

GERMANY GOES OCCULT

BERLIN, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—With little or no improvement in political and economic conditions perceptible after five major elections in a year, unsettled Germany is taking to occultism in the hope of settling its worst apprehensions.

Occultists, mediums, card and handwriting readers, palmistry seers and horoscope writers are being besieged for prophetic advice; schools of occultism are flourishing in poverty-stricken and fashionable districts alike. The circulation of formerly obscure astrological journals professing scientifically to forecast the future has increased by leaps and bounds.

The Bunte Wochenschau, published by Eric Jan Hannussen, German's most popular seer, sees Hitler under unfavorable stars after next month, when the Reichstag and Prussian Diet elections are to be held.

Another, Neues Deutschland, predicted the rise to power of Hitler will in turn cause the ascendency of former Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, leader of the Centrist parties.

Another paper, The German Future, referring to rumors alleging a plot to make the former Crown Prince "authoritary executive" of Germany, warns him "to keep aloof from political life because impulsive decisions, forced by friends, may surrender him to an undeserved fate."

An intriguing development is that these papers apparently made accurate forecasts of developments in the past few months.

Wives of members from 21 clubs throughout Western Pennsylvania will attend. A reception and card party will followw the noonday program.

ANCIENT ILLS STUDIED

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—What is said to be one of the first serious attempt by medical men to peer into the mysteries of the ills of the ancient Egyptians through the use of the X-ray is being pursued in the museum of the University of Pennsylvania.

The study is being made by Dr. J. Gershon-Cohen, assisted by Dr. Harry Shay, both of the department of radiology of the graduate hospital of the university.

Although mummies have been X-rayed before, the work has usually been done by technicians and not by medical men, it is said, and the result has been that previous work in this field has seldom, if ever, had a medical interpretation.

The facilities of the university museum, with its Egyptian collection, were put at the disposal of Dr. Gershen-Cohen, and he is being assisted by Battiscombe Gunn, curator, of the Egyptian section, who previously occupied a like position at the Cairo Museum.

Dr. Gershon-Cohen, in studying the X-Ray of a mummy's skull, has found evidence of a rare disease of the head. Other results cast light upon the ability and lack of ability of the Egyptians to set broken bones.

One mummy in particular shows evidence that the ancient "undertakers" were not the most honest of men, for the bones of the chest seem to have been cast into the wrappings in a terrible jumble.

CHARGE STREET UNDERMINING

Nine coal mines are being worked without legal authority in the vicinity of Napoleon street and Hampshire avenue, according to the Beechview Civic League.

In a letter of protest to City Council the league asserts three streets have been undermined and it is questionable whether the mines have been properly propped. The league indicated it feared a mine fire similar to the one the city is extinguishing in the Herschell street neighborhood.

M'CLURE MADE CHAIRMAN OF P. S. C. PROBE

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 15.—The Senate Utilities Investigating Committee reorganized today and elected Senator John J. McClure, of Delaware County, chairman, a post which has been vacant since former Senator William S. Rial resigned.

The committee adopted a resolution requesting the Senate Appropriations Committee to favorably report a bill continuing the committee and appropriating $100,000 for its work.

The committee did not determine whether to resume its investigation into the conduct of personnel of the Public Service Commission and the operations of various utility companies in the state.

VAGUE ON FUTURE

The committee, which has been inactive since some phases of its work were halted by injunctions last summer, gave no indication that it would become energetic except in support of utility legislation, mainly embodied in a utility code introduced in the Senate this morning by McClure.

Oliver K. Eaton, chief counsel for the committee, was instructed to fight the injunction secured by Public Service Commissioner S. Ray Shelby, enjoining the committee last summer from subpenaing his private documents. Injunctions secured by subsidiaries of Associated Gas and Electric and former Public Service Commissioner James S. Benn also will be carried to the Supreme Court, which will be asked to advance arguments to the March term.

At the conclusion of today's meeting McClure parried questions about the future course of the committee with respect to a resumption of an active investigation. He said the subject had been discussed, but no conclusions were reached.

SENATOR WARNS

Pressure for furthering the inquiry is being exerted on the committee, one Senator having threatened to resign if something positive was not initiated. That Senator is remaining on the committee, and appeared satisfied with today's accomplishments.

The McClure code and an accompanying analysis will be sent to all members of the committee and counsel over the week-end, and the committee will meet again next Monday afternoon. Similar data will be furnished a judiciary general sub-committee on utilities, of which McClure also is chairman.

Election of McClure today as chairman was a surprise and was the culmination of weeks of backstage jockeying. One faction of the committee wanted Thaddeus Krause, of Philadelphia, as the committee head, and almost succeeded in that design some weeks ago. McClure then blocked Krause by becoming a candidate himself.

The chief backer of Krause in the committee was Senator James J. Coyne, of Allegheny County.

Mussolini Denies German Alliance

ROME, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Premier Mussolini, speaking to the Council of Ministers, denied today allegations before the French Chamber of Deputies Committee on Foreign Affairs that Italy had become allied with Germany and Hungary. He said:

"This is a lying invention and if the statements were not made before the chamber's committee they would not be worth denying."

Reed and Davis Deny Opposing Sunday Baseball

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Both Senators Reed and Davis today denied they had taken a stand against repeal or modification of the Pennsylvania blue laws. Reed said:

"I have my hands full here in Washington and I never interfered with the Legislature at Harrisburg."

Davis declared:

"I never interfered with state legislation."

Reed said he had heard that "a man named Ridgeway" had testified as a State Senate hearing yesterday that Reed was opposed to a change in the Sabbath observance laws. Reed explained:

"At his request, my office asked that he be given a hearing just as I would have done for anyone on either side of the question."

SUNDAY SPORTS ARGUED

The second public hearing in two weeks on a proposal to permit Sunday afternoon sports in Pennsylvania was held yesterday in the Senate.

Connie Mack, the veteran baseball manager, said he saw his first Sunday baseball game in 1885 on Long Island between Brooklyn and Louisville. Since then he said he has advocated Sunday baseball.

Representative Louis Schwartz, Philadelphia, sponsor of the Sunday bill, presented a letter from Dr. Samuel Harden Church, Pittsburgh, president of Carnegie Institute, urging legalization of Sunday sports.

Dr. Church, in advocating passage of the bill as well as "tearing out by their roots" other oppressive Sunday restrictions, made a bitter attack on the Lord's Day Alliance, chief advocate of the Sunday statutes.

The Alliance, he charged, is composed mainly of "rich men who ride in their autos, play golf and see moving pictures at their clubs—all on Sunday—and is keeping the common people from enjoying these pastimes."

BILL OPPOSED

Dr. W. B. Forney, Philadelphia, secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance of Pennsylvania, began the case for the opponents of the bill. He asked:

"If Pennsylvanians go to New York for the week-ends, why are 115 New York City hotels in receivers' hands?"

Mrs. Elizabeth R. Ferguson, Philadelphia, director of the Sabbath observance of the Pennsylvania W. C. T. U., said this is a question of whether the Sabbath "is to be preserved or thrown over to commercialized sport."

She was followed by the Rev. Robert M. Blackwood, Pittsburgh, general secretary of the Sabbath Association of Western Pennsylvania, who said:

"Such a bill is in defiance of the law of God and tends to break down all law and the conscience of the people.

"Back of the bill are the selfish demands of special interests which now have six days in the week."

REED, DAVIS PLEAS

William H. Ridgeway, Coatesville, president of the State Y. M. C. A., said he came here in response to telegrams from United States Senators David A. Reed and James J. Davis, asking him to attend this hearing.

He asserted Senators Reed and Davis oppose enactment of this bill.

"We beg of you to kill this bill in committee."

So said Rev. J. S. Martin, Pittsburgh, chairman of the administration department, National Reform Association, adding:

"The Legislature has enough important matters, heavens knows, without bothering with this bill. For pity's sake kill this bill in committee."

UTILITIES HEAD DEFENDS RATES

Frank R. Phillips, president of the Philadelphia Company, today defended the rates charged by public utilities and declared that the utilities are being made the "football" of certain national, state and local politicians, some of whom he accused of being interested in getting into the "limelight."

The allegation made recently at Harrisburg before the Public Service Commission that utilities keep two sets of books, one for corporate tax purposes and one for rate-making purposes, was denied by Phillips.

Speaking to the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board at Keystone Athletic Club, Phillips declared that numerous voluntary reductions have been made by the utilities and that their revenues have been decreasing rapidly.

"I am willing to admit frankly that some of the adverse criticism of public utilities has been justified. No doubt there have been some abuses in the public utility business just as there have been in any other lines of business, possibly in the real estate business as well."

Phillips declared his belief that private ownership of utilities with "reasonable public regulation" will best serve the public.

House Supports 'Buy American' Movement

HARRISBURG, Feb. 15.—(INS.)—The House of Representatives today adopted unanimously a resolution sponsored by Representative McElwee, Lawrence, supporting the "Buy American" movement.

The measure calls on all state departments, bureaus, and institutions and all agencies receiving state money to purchase only American-made goods.

SEEKS REPORTS ON MINE WAGES

HARRISBURG, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Reports which will check wage payments against tonnage produced are required from bituminous mining companies under a bill introduced in the House today by Representative Hiram G. Andrews, Cambria.

The reports to the Department of Mines would include information on tonnage mined and shipped during the year; tonnage sold or consumed at the mine; tonnage sold from stock on hand from the previous year, and tonnage on hand at the end of the year covered by the report.

The wage paid per ton and the total amount of wages paid during the year is also demanded, together with any other information the Mines Department might ask.

TEACHERS' PAY CUT PROPOSED

HARRISBURG, Feb. 15.—(INS.)—Minimum salaries of teachers in the public schools of Pennsylvania would be cut 10 per cent under the terms of a bill introduced in the House today by Representative Thomas B. Wilson, of McKean County. The bill would further empower school districts to make an additional cut of 10 per cent in emergencies, with the consent of the State Board of Education.

The bill was drafted by the special Legislative Committee appointed during the 1931 session to work in co-operation with the Department of Justice on the revision of school laws. A companion measure also sponsored by Wilson today, fixes the salaries of county and assistant county superintendents of schools.

The bills will be sent to the House Committee on Education, of which Wilson is chairman.

Representative H. A. Surface, Snyder, introduced a bill which would prohibit school districts from collecting a tax in excess of 4 mills on the dollar for school purposes. The Surface bills apply to first, second, third and fourth class districts.

Personal Tax Curb Pushed In Senate

HARRISBURG, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—The Senate yesterday passed on first reading the Einstein bill amending the county 4-mill personal property tax by exempting interest-bearing bank accounts from the tax.

Freed Here, Held On Cleveland Charge

Joseph Sebastian, 27, of 713 Edmund street, was held for Cleveland authorities on a charge of robbery today, after he we re-arrested as he left the workhouse yesterday at the end of a term for robbery. Sebastian is accused in the Cleveland warrant of forcing a printer to open his office safe and turn over a sum of money to him.

Mint Casting Medal For Hero of Air Mail

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(Universal.)—The Philadelphia mint is preparing to cast the first Congressional air mail flier's medal of honor, the Postoffice Department announced today. It will be awarded to Mal B. Freeburg, 28, flying between St. Paul and Chicago, for heroism in bringing a damaged plane, with eight passengers aboard, to a safe landing on April 12, 1932.

Gas Bed Warmer Asphyxiates Doctor

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 15.—(Universal.)—Asphyxiated by the device he had invented to keep his bed warm, Dr. E. B. Mariman, 57, was dead here today.

Dr. Mariman, said to have been at one time a well-known physician and surgeon in Vienna and several cities of the Eastern United States, was found resting on the bed he had rigged with a gas bed warmer.

Spicy leaves of TURKISH tobacco are strung to dry and cure in the sun.

Well, that's something about cigarettes I never knew before the cigarette that's Milder

the cigarette that Tastes Better

I'd never thought much about what's inside a Chesterfield cigarette. But I have just been reading something that made me think about it.

Just think of this, some of the tobacco in Chesterfield—the Turkish—comes from 4000 miles away! And before it is shipped every single leaf is packed by hand. All because Turkish tobacco is so small and delicate.

Of course I don't know much about making cigarettes, but I do know this—that Chesterfields are milder and have a very pleasing aroma and taste. They satisfy—and that's what counts with me!

WHY MILLIONS BREATHE VAPEX FOR HEAD-COLDS

TESTS PROVE SUPERIORITY OF VAPEX

Unbiased tests by a prominent medical research laboratory prove that the vapor of a single drop of Vapex kills dense colonies of germs present in head-colds. In exactly similar tests, other inhalants (often offered as substitutes for Vapex) were shown to be greatly inferior in germ-killing power.

Many cheaper imitations of Vapex are said to be "just as good." But Science proves they are not. Vapex has a remarkable germ-killing power. This is the extra value that Vapex brings you at very little extra cost.

BREATHE Vapex the next time you're suffering with a cold. Notice how swift and effective it is . . . how the sniffles and stuffed-up feeling disappear with the first few deep breaths.

That's because Vapex has one decided advantage. You breathe it, it penetrates where drops, gargles, salves and sprays are not likely to reach. Only a vapor like Vapex can actually get to the real seat of a cold . . . the maze of hidden breathing passages . . . safely and naturally.

Breathing Vapex brings almost instant relief from distress. And tends to stop your cold at the start, for it also has a remarkable germ-killing power. Yet it's safe for babies as well as grown-ups.

Why not try breathing the delightful vapor for your next cold? No muss—just a sprinkle on your handkerchief or pillow. No fuss—just breathe naturally, Vapex does the rest. Sold at all druggists.

STUDY OF MILK COSTS URGED IN LEGISLATURE

HARRISBURG, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Resolutions calling for a study of milk marketing conditions and prices and authorizing drastic inquiries were introduced in both branches of the Legislature today just before it quit work for the week.

The Senate resolution was presented by Clarence J. Buckman, Bucks, administration floor leader, and was referred to the Agriculture Committee. Buckman said he introduced the resolution because there seems too great a difference in prices paid to producers by distributors and to distributors by consumers. Senator Frederick T. Gelder, Susquehanna, said farmers are receiving about one and one-half cents a quart for milk and the state is paying eight cents a quart for the milk it distributes free to children of the poor.

VOTE ON MONDAY

The House resolution, which has the support of the Committee on Public Health and Sanitation, was presented by Representative Haines, Bucks, urging a committee similar to that proposed by Buckman. It will be voted on Monday night.

Senator George Woodward, Philadelphia, amended his bill transferring the state highway patrol from the Department of Revenue to the State Police Department. His amendment gives the patrolmen the full powers of state policemen but restricts their activity to the duties they now perform.

The Senate passed six bills on second reading and will consider them finally Monday.

ONE BILL PASSED

The House passed one bill finally and sent it to the Senate. It is sponsored by Rep. Thomas Weidemann, Delaware, and would permit school districts to co-operate with municipalities in health work.

The Sowers-Conner bill repealing the Snyder-Armstrong state prohibition enforcement act again was left dormant on the second reading calendar, awaiting substitute liquor control bills being drafted to replace the present act.

Both branches adjourned before noon to meet at 9 p. m. Monday.

New bills introduced included:

Representative Kane, Allegheny, prohibiting state appropriations to institutions engaged in manufacturing, agriculture or other revenue-producing activities.

Representative Kane, Allegheny, appropriating $105,000 to Pittsburgh Homeopathic Medical and Surgical Hospital.

Woman Legislator Acts To Aid Widows

HARRISBURG, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Miss Ann Brancato, Philadelphia, only Democratic woman ever elected to the Legislature, today had introduced her first bill in the House in which she seeks to protect widows.

The measure is designed to prevent a man from resorting "to the subterfuge of the trust deed to deprive his widow of the one-third of her husband's property to which she is entitled under the law."

State Income Tax For Schools Urged

Financing of schools through a state income tax was proposed by I. Leonard Aronson, president of the Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers' League at a meeting of Squirrel Hill real estate owners last night in the Morrowfield Hotel. The league is campaigning for reduction of taxes on real estate and economy in city, county and school government. Frank S. Delp, Harry Shapera and Dr. J. Buchanan also spoke.

City Manager Measure To Get Senate Hearing

HARRISBURG, Feb. 15.—The Pittsburgh city manager bill and the general program of election reform sponsored by the Pennsylvania Elections Association and other groups will be the subject of a public hearing by the Senate Elections Committee March 14.

Senator John Howell, of Lackawanna County, chairman of the committee, said ample time would be given witnesses to explain their attitudes.

The city manger bill was introduced by Senator Frank J. Harris at the instance of the Municipal Charter Committee of Pittsburgh. It has enlisted the support of the majority of the civic organizations of Pittsburgh, and a great rally on its behalf probably will be made at the hearing.

One of the witnesses on the elections bill probably will be Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the Allegheny County section of the Clean Elections Association.

Both sides of the city manager plan are to be heard at a meeting of the Seventh Ward Community Club at a meetig to be held Friday evening in the Liberty School, Ellsworth avenue.

State Senator James J. Coyne has been invited to take the negative side. Ralph S. Boots, professor of political science at the University of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. J. O. Miller have been invited to speak for the plan.

The Allied Boards of Trade, with which the Seventh Ward Community Club is affiliated, has sent letters to all civic organizations in Allegheny County asking them to give expressions on the proposed city manager plans.

MEMORIAL HALL BILL OFFERED

HARRISBURG, Feb. 15.—Senator Morris Einstein, of Allegheny County, has before the Senate a bill to make Soldiers' Memorial Hall in Oakland a memorial to World War and Spanish American War veterans, as well as veterans of the Civil War.

In carrying out this plan he would increase the board of managers from 10 to 12, with three named from each group represented, the Civil War veterans, Spanish American and World War veterans, and sons of Civil War veterans. The President Judge and next oldest Judge of Common Pleas Court would continue to be ex-officio members of the board.

Another Einstein bill permits County Commissioners to appropriate $500 to organized units of the reserve of the United States Army.

Highway Patrol's Transfer Approved

HARRISBURG, Feb. 15.—(INS.)—Senator George Woodward's proposal to transfer the highway patrol from the Department of Revenue to the state police gained some ground today. Introduced Monday night, the two bills for the transfer were reported favorably by committee yesterday and passed on first reading.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

An engagement of much interest is being announced today. Mrs. Charles Heinz, of Aspinwall, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Catharine Heinz, to John W. McCredie, son of the James McCredies, of Aspinwall.

Elizabeth is a graduate of National Park Seminary, and her fiance attended Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Gossipy Chat With Nancy Jane

Only two Pittsburgh Social Register families will be represented by Democrats at the inaugural ball—the Guffey family and the Benedum family.

They are the only Democratic social registerites in Pittsburgh. In Sewickley there is the J. Twing Brooks family to represent the Democrats in the social register.

Mrs. Carroll Miller, the former Emma Guffey, and her sisters, Miss Ida and Miss Pauletta Guffey, will go on from Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Michael L. Benedum, accompanied by Mrs. Walter Jones, of Columbus, will come north from Miami Beach.

Mrs. Miller hasn't yet selected her gown for the inaugural ball, but told me that she was sure of one thing—that she was going to buy it in Pittsburgh.

I know of two Republican women who are going to the inaugural—Miss Helen Rauh and Mrs. Josiah Cohen.

Mrs. Miller suggests that those planning to be in Washington for the inaugural write to Mrs. Blair Banister of Virginia, sister-in-law of Carter Glass, for information. She's chairman of the hospitality committee, and her address is the Hotel Willard, Washington, D. C.

All the morning of Valentine's day little Louise Shanahan kept her secret, and part of the afternoon. But just before one of the little boys, dressed as a postman, started to deliver the valentines, she could keep it no longer.

"Oh, Miss Mansmann (one of the teachers), I have the cutest one for you. When it unfolds, it's so long," she said, stretching her arms far apart.

Mrs. Carrie McCandless Will Present Program

Mrs. Carrie McCandless, who has been chairman of the civic and juvenile court committees of the Oakland Women's Club for many years, will present the program at Friday's meeting of the club in the Hotel Schenley. The Girls' Glee Club from Carnegie Tech will sing, under the direction of Carl Malschreck, and with Dorothy Morse as student director. Mrs. Frank Orr Johnston, the speaker, will discuss the George Junior Republic.

Mrs. Hensell to Sail Saturday for Indies

Mrs. R. S. Hensell, of Dormont, left last night for New York from where she will sail Saturday on a West Indies cruise. She will return in March.

Just to remind you—the Kingsley Association Woman's Auxiliary is holding a benefit card party this afternoon in the home of Mrs. Frederic I. Merrick, of Morewood Heights, a member.

The proceeds will be used to buy materials, from which dresses will be made for women and children at the Lillian Rest.

Mrs. A. Leo Weil gave an at home for her daughter, Mrs. Julian Stein, of Milwaukee, the former Amy Mae Weil, Monday. Centering the tea-table was a large birthday cake for Mrs. Stein's birthday. Pouring were Mrs. Ferdinand Weil and Miss Helen Rauh.

Julia Isabelle Bown, the C. Elmer Bowns' daughter, has named March 2 as the date for her marriage to Robert Hood Barth, son of the Carl H. Barths, of Lakewood, O. The ceremony, to take place that afternoon in St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, will be small, attended by members of the two families only.

Dr. Piper Gives Talk on Child At Luncheon

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Romancing is not lying, but is a good sign of mental health and if developed may lead to writing ability, Dr. Ellsmer L. Piper told the Child Health Association at its luncheon meeting in Kaufmann's yesterday. Dr. Piper defined "The Optimal Child" (his subject) as "quite a bit above average."

As the optimal factors common to all optimal children he named healthy parents with not much difference in their ages; good physical and mental development of parents; proper pre-natal, natal and post-patal care of the mother, mental hygiene, which, he said, should receive more attention than it is receiving today; proper shelter, which includes proper heating, ventilating and sanitation—a place where the child may welcome his friends; a well-balanced diet (these "extra vitamins" are a waste of money, he said) and loose, light warm clothing so arranged that the child may undress himself at three years.

Elementary lessons in health and personal hygiene, at least two hours a day outdoors (not too many playthings), and right associates were other factors mentioned by the speaker.

Standards of height and weight do not fit all children, Dr. Piper said, in discussing the appearance of the optimal child, but, he said, a line drawn from the ear should pass slightly in front of the shoulder, through the center of the hip, knee and the large ankle bone. Under mental signs of health he spoke of motion, suggestibility, curiosity (if questions are not asked the child is either mentally deficient or backward), direction in play, mental capacity and emotions.

Catholic Council Bridge On Washington's Birthday

Men as well as women are invited to the Washington Birthday party to be held at the Council House of Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women next Wednesday evening. There also will be a party in the afternoon. Officers and committee chairmen will appear in costume and will be assisted by a committee of Queen's Daughters.

Mrs. James F. Dezort is chairman for the Saturday afternoon card party at Council House this week. The monthly card party is set for the afternoon of the twenty-eighth, and admission, as usual will be by bundle.

PINK CONTINUES IN FAVOR FOR THE LATEST EVENING COSTUMES

PINK, FOR evening, continues to be a great favorite. Not only pink, but its combinations—pink with red, pink with brown, pink with black. It appears in two types of costumes. There are the pink dresses, with darker accessories; one designer puts pale yellow and deep cream-colored ribbons in a sash on a pink evening frock, and suggests brown crepe de chine evening slippers and matching bag. More popular, perhaps, is the darker dress which has pink accents — pink sashes, pink gloves of velvet, pink evening bags.

ONE OF the most successful dresses of the year is the type which gives the blouse-and-separate-skirt effect, with the blouse in pink, and following the lines of evening decolletage. This is done in satin, in lace and in chiffon, as well as in varied combinations of the three.

* * *

AN UNUSUAL costume of this type is the evening dress and wrap in the sketch. The dress itself is largely of black lace, with pink velvet forming a bustle-like bow at the back, and an elaboration of a sash, like a corselet. When the wrap is worn, the only evidence of the pink in view is the big bow, which appears to be part of the wrap.

10 Repeaters

Ten performers repeated their triumphs scored in the poll conducted in December, 1931. These two-time winners were Guy Lombardo, the Philadelphia Orchestra, Morton Downey, Jessica Dragonette, the Boswell Sisters, Amos and Andy, Ben Bernie, Ted Husing, Jesse Crawford and Ida Bailey Allen.

The closest balloting came in the third, fourth and eighth groupings, with a bare one and one-half points separating Morton Downey and Bing Crosby in the male popular singer division; Ruth Etting winning first position among the female popular singers with 205 points to Kate Smith's 197, and the Mills Brothers topping the Revellers by a scant two points to win the mythical blue ribbon in the male harmony team group.

Trudy Reynolds, KDKA pianist-secretary, deserts the pioneer station's staff today to be married to Ralph Favey, of Duquesne, Pa., this month. Trudy, remember, flashed into the local limelight a few months ago when she left her desk for the keyboard to substitute for an absent artist, thereby gaining a regular air spot.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello ladies and gentlemen:

Nick and Vick's recent 20½-hour trip to Canada and return reported here, didn't cause any gasps of surprise to Eddie Nus and Harold Leonard, of Althea street. Eddie says:

"Me and my pal left Pittsburgh September 14, went to Los Anegles, came back September 29; hitch-hiking there and back; held over one and one-half days because of washouts and even spent two hours in Los Angeles."

Just a pair of fast-stepping globe trotters.

Dear old-coin-collectors-who-have-written-regarding-the-value-of-their-pieces: 'Tis an impossible task to inform you of the value of your coins. Although there are coins of certain dates that are valuable, still so much depends on the peculiar condition of that coin that accurate advice can only be had from expert collectors. And then again a collector who has a coin like that would not value it nearly as highly as one who doesn't but wants it.

Still think that the best plan is to visit a bank that has a catalogue and discover the possibilities from the advertiser therein or the publisher.

Believe it or not, yesterday morning I heard cigarets being advertised on a children's program.

Had an idea that that announcement concerning the orchard on one tree would stir up some trouble. The story was about a western fruit grower who grafted on his apple tree branches from pear, plum and peach trees, and had all four kinds of fruit. Now W. G., of the Hill district, is challenging the statement saying it could not be done, and if it can be done, How? Certainly don't want to argue with anyone and before trying to explain how it's done I'm ready to believe that it can't be done. But they do it.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Man About Town

The John Hutchins-Norma Taylor "mess" in the papers and Supreme Court involves most of the "gossip columnists"—except (believe it or not!) this department! . . . Which will bear the brunt of the blame anyway—when our severest critics go-to-town... "Dear Mr. Winchell," writes Chas. L. Kahn (attorney for Mrs. Hutchins). "In checking over the excerpts culled from several newspapers mentioning the attentions of Mr. John Hutchins and Norma Taylor and set forth in a divorce action made by Muriel Hutchins, I find that the one credited to you was in fact not written by you. In justice to you, I feel that I ought to mention this. Sincerely yours."

Natacha Rambova, who was Winifred Hudnut (before she became Rudy Valentino's widow) was secretly sealed in December (in Majorca) to Alvaro Urzaiz . . . His mother was lady-in-waiting to the ex-Spanish Queen . . . Rosa Ponselle is no longer with the Metropolitan Opera . . . Mary Pickford, who is an expert shot, totes a pistol in her purse . . . Jack Pearl remains until he departs to make a talkie—but the crime stories fade soon . . . Station WMCA has barred all depression songs (hurray!), particularly "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime?" . . . "Knickerbocker, Jr.," a new mag, is due soon . . . Paul Milton (who penned "Mayor Harding of N. Y.") will edit . . . A dice maker is at 711 Eighth ave.!

If you tell your girl to place the gardenias you gave her inside her pillow slip before retiring, she'll dream about you. Oh, dear... In justice to Lenore Ulric, the star, the drama critics who took her gifts (which the Income Taxers refused to credit) were two out-of-town critics "who take" . . . When the Janet Reade-Walter Batchelor divorce is final, Janet will wed Barry Trevor . . . The William Gargans anticipate their blessed "expense" in July. . . . The press agents and Francis Lederer, the star, aren't talking. The exploiters can't stand Mr. Lederer's conceit, and are conducting all business via phone with the Czech's manager . . . Joan Blondell's sister Gloria will wed James Ellison against the tribe's wishes . . . The J. Robisons are tripling.

The T. Wallace Orrs (Melba McMartin of the rich Canadian family) will be a trio in August . . . The Allan McMartins have decided to discuss a definite melting when he returns from Africa. The chorus-pondent in the case won't be named . . . George White's "Melody" made coin in the six towns it rehearsed . . . Jeanne Aubert of the cast refuses to leave the troupe altho' she is low with appendix pains. . . . We covered the show in Brooklyn—and liked it . . . The pity of the John Hutchins divorce case is that Mrs. Hutchins, recovered recently from a siege at Saranac, may go back there—after the long fight . . . Eddie Foy, Jr., and Vera Mashe Are Like That!

An orchid to the song "Try A Little Tenderness" . . . A half a scallion to Ed Wynn for waking up locals at noon with his parade of fire sirens. What does he think this is, Quincy, Ill.? . . . An orchid to Louise Kirtland of "Melody," who will make you cry in Act II with a "bit"! . . . An orchid to the score in it and "Give Me a Roll of the Drum" . . . An orchid to the Paradise's "Albert Miniatures" . . . An orchid to Mae West in the "She Done Him Wrong" flicker.

Clark Howell, editor and publisher of the Atlanta Constitution, will be offered the post of Ambassador to Italy within the fortnight and Mrs. Howell, who is an excellent choice, probably will accept . . . Jack Morris, the broker, who eloped with Jean Coventry of the Hollywood rendezvous recently, and just had a judge toss him a scallion to the tune of $50 a week yellimony, is on the lam—and Miss Coventry will have to keep working, darn it . . . "Kiki" Roberts is back dwelling at a hotel under a new name . . . Hollywood let her make one movie—and then the czars stepped in, poor thing . . . Benn Furr, the Skolsky of a Mt. Vernon daily, and Nina Ninfro, a Westchester society belle, will middle-aisle it in March . . . Joe Cook, the star, is a flu victim.

La Guinan's opposition in Chi has faded and she alone is the town's night club hit . . . Dorothy Morrison, an actress, and George Shute of the Enquirer have been welded since November . . . The Book-of-the-Month choice for March will be "Andrew Jackson—Border Captain"... Mervyn LeRoy and Ginger Rogers have had different dancing partners in the Hollywoods spots lately, my goodness!... Pillard and Hillier, vaudeville players, are suing a radio star because he recently broadcast their entire routine which they copyrighted in 1926—and now they can't get work . . . Fannie Brice will succeed Ken Murray on that air spot . . . J. P. Medbury's contract is for six weeks. If he clicks, Milton Berle won't succeed him . . . The Clifford Victor Herberts (she was the former Mrs. Robert Woolsey), are melting . . . Elliss Baker (the ex-Mrs. Frederic March) and Kent Smith are uh-huh.

The pianist, George Copeland, and Laura Biddle Stewart (the ex-Mrs. Wm. Rhinelander Stewart) are yeddy, yeddy yoomish... Babe Colino, youngest member of the famous Colino circus tribe, now at the Alhambra in Paris, will wed Herbert Robbins, Jr., in America on March 11 . . . Herbert C. Peddler has just resigned his two jockey club secretarial posts . . . Plain Talk's "Long Island's Reign of Terror" blows the lid off the Long Island crime wave... The lady boxers booked for the Mayfair are getting up in the world. They last appeared at Roseland . . . Nan O'Reilly, whose show "Four O'Clock" debuts tonight, columns on golf for the Junnel... Chas. White, matinee idol in the Guy Bates days, runs the elevator backstage at the St. James.

Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt is on the Conte Grande and will pause at Havana to personally investigate the Sydney Smith-Lili Damita rumpus . . . Why not spell the Kid from Spain's name this way: "Eddie Cantoreador"? . . . They insist that Eleanor (swimming champ) Holm won Carl Laemmle Junior's heart after she had dived into a mud puddle and saved him from drowning!... Stewart Kerrigan, whose daddy is Federal Judge Frank Henry Kerrigan of the U. S. Dis't Court, San Francisco, is in a Columbus Circle breadline.

Schoedsack Brings Film Of Arabia

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 15.—Radio officials eagerly await the arrival of Ernest Schoedsack, film adventurer, who is huyying back here with 20 cans of negative that he shot in the Aamen grass country of Transjordinia.

They hope they have the makings of a picture even bigger than "Chang" and "Grass," which Schoedsack and Merian C. Cooper photographed several years ago. Cooper, now the producing head of RKO, declares the new film will be called "Arabia." He has detailed Anthony Lawless, English author, to write a story around the material which his co-worker has been gathering for many months.

The Aamen grass country is near the Palestine-Syria border. It was while Schoedsack and Cooper were returning from a previous expedition that they passed through this district and determined to make a picture there at some future date.

Mr. Cooper

"Arabia," the result of the idea, is to tell the story of the handful of British troops and airplanes, who keep under subjection the hundreds of thousands of tribesmen living about them. As Lawless was with the British cavalry in Mesopotamia during the war, he will be able to give the story authentic atmosphere.

Work will begin as soon as Schoedsack arrives here from New York.

Lillian Harvey gave motorcycle policemen a thrill when she drove down to Agua Caliente in the famous white racing car. Miss Harvey visited the Mexican resort in a party with the John Boles, the Jack Blystones and Sol Wurtzel .... Many film people were at the races over the week-end. Bert Wheeler was with blonde Patsy Parker, of course. And her mother was along for chaperon ... Jobyna Ralston was with the Norman McLeods. Dick Arlen was on a stag party at Loyd Wright's mountain cabin. ... Mr. and Mrs. Jean Hershort were down for the opening of the turf and field club. Also Wallie Beery, the Eddie Mannixes, Hunt Stromberg, Joseph M. Schenck and many others ... Saw Alice Joyce dancing with Clarence Brown at the Agua Caliente Hotel. ... Gary Cooper arrived late Saturday night ... And the Frank Lloyds were down with the Ernest Torrences ... William K. Howard did very well at the dice tables. ... And Robert Leonard and Harry Beaumont played roulette for hours. It was a gay party lasting until almost dawn.

Mr. Boles

Did you know that Ely S. Culbertson, although a member of the Sons of the American Revolution, had a Cossack princess for a mother?

O. Henry might have written it.

Dick Talmage, former acrobat, stunt man and motion picture star, was driving home late the other night. Suddenly, his car gave out of gas. As it was slowing to a stop a roughly dressed man jumped on the running board.

"Draw up to the curb, Buddy," he demanded.

Came a sudden oath. A voice from the past exclaimed:

Henry Garat, French star, who's to be Janet Gaynor's leading man in "Adorable," must return home after one picture. He's tied up with contracts for a French film and play. After that, he comes back here to start a long term contract with Fox. And did you know that this star, who is one of the big cinema stars of Europe, got his real start in Broadway musical comedies? He also married an American girl, but they're divorced now and his second wife is an English woman. They arrived here Monday night.

Mr. Garat

De Cou Travelogue Thursday Night

Branson De Cou will give the second in his series of three travelogues in Carnegie Music Hall tomorrow evening. The subject is "South Sea Wonderlands," taking in the Hawaiian Islands, Samoa, Fiji, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. Victoria Falls in Rhodesia, the world's mightiest cataract, will also be shown by Mr. De Cou. These travelogues are given under the auspices of the Mu Phi Epsilon, National Musical Sorority, for the benefit of its scholarship fund.

Fly All Day For Film

Katharine Hepburn and Colin Clive recently spent the entire day at a California airport. All day long they went up in an airplane and came down again. But it was work—and hard work at that.

Studio Group To Give One-Act Plays

The Studio Group of the "Y" Co-operative Playhouse will present three original one-act plays by Pittsburgh authors on Monday evening, February 20, under the supervision of Isabelle Jones. They will be "His First Love," by Bertie Badger Moyer; "The Constable's Sale," by Beatrice Lewis, and "Down One Diamond," by James Macfarlane.

Annual Fair Voted For Mercer County

MERCER, Pa., Feb. 15.—Mercer will have its annual fair, directors of the association have announced. Last year's exhibit was one of the most successful in history.

Film Chance For Two

Maurice Chevalier, whose selection of Frances Dee for his feminine lead in "Playboy of Paris," was responsible for her rise, will give two more newcomers their big breaks in his forthcoming Paramount picture, "A Bedtime Story."

The French star has approved the selection of Gertrude Michael and Leah Ray for roles in his next production. Miss Michael played the leads in "Caught Wet" and "The Round-Up" on Broadway last year. Miss Ray, an 18-year-old miss from Norfolk, Va., was singing at the Cocoanut Grove in Los Angeles when Chevalier saw her and suggested a screen test.

Broadways of the World

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

HOTEL GRANDE BRETAGNE, ATHENS, Greece.—For one who is accustomed to American traffic systems, this is the dizziest town in the world in which to attempt to drive a car. I thought that Paris was bad, and the left-handed driving regulations in Central Europe frightened me into partial paralysis on several occasions. But Athens, after due consideration, must win all the marbles in the long run.

And it's not the drivers so much as it is the people. Motorists drive to the right in regulation form and there seems to be an abundant number of traffic policemen to handle the situation. But the people very evidently want no part of any regulations. They walk where they please, how they please and when they please.

To drive through Athens, you must blow your horn incessantly—and if you have two horns, so much the better. Not that they help a great deal, because the good people of Athens continue to walk in the middle of the roadways just the same. I suppose the value of the two horns lies only in the fact that, when people are hit, they do much to drown out the groans. It's all very interesting.

My driver's name is Popodoupolis, which was immediately changed to Pop for reasons that need not be mentioned here. Pop is a middle-aged gentleman who is sending his son through college by a novel method. He simply tells the tourists about his poor boy and cries a few, simple tears.

It is a unique experience to sit behind Pop as he guides his ancient car through the streets. As I've written before, conditions here are very bad and the city very evidently has no money with which to repair the roadways.

But does Pop mind? I should say not. One hand on the horn and the other on the wheel, he rides the bumps with the most contented of expressions adorning his kisser. Entirely different from our New York drivers, the man never swears. His narrow escapes mean absolutely nothing to him.

You have my honest word that, in the course of any hour within the city limits, Pop will have 20 such narrow escapes. A boy will fail to get out of the way and Pop might suddenly come to a full stop directly behind him. A man on a bicycle will shoot out from a side street and Pop must climb the sidewalk to avoid hitting him.

And so it goes—with nary a complaint from Pop. It's all in a day's work for him. This afternoon, as we were riding back to the hotel, I leaned forward and asked him a question or two.

"You find it tough driving around here, Pop?" I inquired.

"Not very," he replied as he missed a fruit cart by a hair. "I used to him now. People not very careful, that's all."

"I've noticed that," I continued. "I suppose you have quite a few accidents in Athens?"

"Not no more," he returned. "Not since they take many car off street. Used be very bad, but no more."

All I could do at the moment was to breathe a silent prayer of thanks for the fact that I hadn't been here when it was really bad. And then I asked Pop what he meant by saying that cars had been taken off the streets.

"If a driver have two car," he explained, "police make him use one car one day and other car next day. I use this here car today—and tomorrow I must use my other one. Police arrange for that, and it keep one car off street. You see?"

"Quite," I agreed. "That must keep a lot of machines off the streets, I guess. What do you do with this car when you're not allowed to have it out? Keep it in a garage?"

"Oh, no," he asserted. "I rent him to a friend of mine, and he drives it instead of me."

Now that's my idea of a swell system!...

Some kind soul took the trouble to inform me yesterday that, if I intended to leave Athens, it would be necessary for me to go to the police station and have my passport stamped. Since I never know at what hour I will decide to move on, I thought it best to attend to the matter at once. I got me a guide and drove to the police station.

On the way up the stairs, the guide was most businesslike.

"You will let me have your passport, please," he said, "and I will attend to the necessary details. You have but to answer the questions that I will translate into English for you."

That was all right with me and, a minute or so later, we stood in front of an imposing gentleman with a natty uniform. My guide made a long speech in Greek—and the officer reached out his hand for my passport. He examined it so long and so carefully that I began to grow nervous.

"The officer wants to know," said the guide suddenly, "if you are really going to China?"

Since the officer was looking at my Chinese visa at that very moment, I didn't get the point of the question. But I smiled sweetly and said that I was indeed going to China.

Having satisfied himself on that score, the officer motioned to two other officers who were seated at desks in the rear. They quickly stepped forward. And there stood the three men, all gathered around my poor, innocent little passport.

Every minute or so, one of them would glance up and toss me a nasty look.

"What's the trouble?" I whispered to the guide. "Is there something wrong? What's going on?"

He nudged me.

"Shhh," he shushed, "It is best for you to say nothing. In a short time, they will reach a decision."

But the short time passed, and still there was no decision. The three officers talked among themselves, and the first one looked up. He spoke—and once again the guide turned to me.

"They want to know," he asked, "how long you have been in Greece and how long you expect to remain?"

Now more nervous than ever, I answered both questions to the best of my ability. The three men looked at each other. And the first man handed my passport back to me. He said many things in Greek, and wound up with a gracious salute. I returned the salute and walked hastily to the door.

Outside, I mopped my brow and turned to the guide.

"I'm glad that's over with," I muttered. "These formalities take hours. What did he say to me at the end?"

The guide spoke as though his reply was the most natural thing in the world.

"He said," he returned, "that since you are an American citizen, it wasn't necessary for you to have come here in the first place!" . . .

NEW TRANSFER FOR TROLLEYS

To simplify the system and correct certain abuses, a new type of transfer will be issued to Pittsburgh Railways Company passengers beginning February 27, it was announced today by F. R. Cogswell, director of traffic promotion for the company. The new form will be cut to permit the recipient not less than one hour for its use. Cogswell said existing transfer privileges will not be changed.

To facilitate reading of the transfer, operators will have but to look at its color to know whether it is good. The city has been divided into eight zones, each to have its own color.

There are 296 transfers now in use, but under the new system there will be only 16.

Attack with Hammer Costs Accused $10

Ernest Davy, 50, landlord of a rooming house at 112 West Stockton avenue, was fined $10 today by Magistrate Ray E. Schneider for striking Mrs. Mary Ford, 63, a tenant, last Monday. The woman testified Davy struck her with a hammer during an argument over moving.

Baldwin Township Spurns School Bonds

By a vote of 523 to 237 Baldwin Township voters yesterday defeated a proposed $195,000 bond issue to finance the erection of a new high school. The issue carried one district, the Seventh, by a vote of 31 to 11.

USE TELEPHONE TO AID NEEDY

Pittsburghers who want to help Father Cox and his unemployment relief activities by subscribing to the Sun-Telegraph may telephone their names and addresses to the Sun-Telegraph Home Delivery Department, Grant 6500, and in this way expedite the delivery of the paper. Just say that you want Father Cox to be given credit for the order. This does not mean that you cannot use the subscription blank on this page if you so prefer. It is preferable for persons living at a distance to use the blank.

Father Cox gets a liberal cash commission on every order that comes in through this special drive. His fund for the care of unemployment has already been given approximately $900 by the Sun-Telegraph.

On top of this the daily appeals through this newspaper for food, clothing, cash or "what have you" have met with gratifying response. In fact, the Sun-Telegraph, according to the "father of the jobless," is today the mainstay for his welfare activities. Father Cox frequently says that without this aid from the Sun-Telegraph his work would come to a sudden standstill.

And if his activities among the poor ceased, what would become of the 3,000 men and boys he feeds in the breadline every day or the hundreds of families who come to him for aid?

"MOIST THROAT" STOPPED MY COUGHING SPELLS!"

"I'm certainly glad I learned about 'moist throat'," writes Miss A. S., of New York City.

Your throat and bronchial tubes are lined with millions of pores like tiny "bottles" continually supplying moisture to the delicate tissues . . . until you "catch cold."

Then these pores clog. Phlegm collects. Dangerous germs find a breeding place. Tickling, irritation and coughing set in.

To cure your cough you must increase the flow of your throat's natural moisture, loosening the phlegm so it can be expelled. Many cough "remedies" contain numbing drugs which merely "deaden the nerves . . . but don't get at the root of the trouble.

PERTUSSIN, a scientific remedy, is the extract of a famous herb which opens the tiny glands, stimulates the flow of throat moisture and brings quick relief naturally.

If your throat's raw or dry, take a few spoons of PERTUSSIN now. It's safe even for children. At drug stores, 60¢

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Rasputin and the Empress," bringing the Barrymores together for the first time in the screen, will begin an engagement of only one week in the Nixon next Monday, the seat sale opening in the box office tomorrow. It is a story of the relationship of the monk, Rasputin, to the Russian royal family, which came under his sinister sway through ministrations to the son of the czar and czarina. Miss Ethel Barrymore plays the empress, Lionel has the part of Rasputin, while John portrays an officer of the Russian court. He also helps to carry on the romantic side of the story, the object of his interest being Diana Wynyard, who has the central role in the current Nixon screen attraction, "Cavalcade." Ralph Morgan appears as the czar and Tad Alexander will be seen as the czarevitch.

The new screen feature in the Enright, to run through Friday, is "Faithless," which has Talullah Bankhead and Robert Montgomery in the leading parts.

"Vanity Street," featuring Helen Chandler and Charles Bickford, is to be the next screen attraction in the Variety, opening with a Sunday midnight show. The stage acts will be under the supervision of Nat Nazarro, Jr.

The Nixon will go "flesh" again the week of February 27, when the new Theater Guild production, "Both Your Houses," will be presented for the first time on any stage. It was written by Maxwell Anderson, author of "Elizabeth, The Queen," "Saturday's Children," and co-author of "What Price Glory." It is a political comedy, "Houses," referring to the Congress. Walter C. Kelly, well-known as "The Virginia Judge," of vaudeville memory, will head the cast. "Both Your Houses" will be presented as the fourth play in the American Theater Society subscription series.

Katharine Cornell was the recipient of an ovation at the conclusion of the first performance of her new play, "Alien Corn," in Baltimore, being called back time after time when the final curtain descended.

"Miss Cornell," the Associated Press reports, "as was expected, has a generous share of the lines, plays the piano frequently and even sings a note or two. At one time in the second act she is given the stage for an uninterrupted soliloquy that lasts almost 10 minutes."

"The Emperor Jones," Eugene O'Neill's play that brought fame to the late Charles Gilpin, Negro actor, will be made into a movie. Recently it was given as an opera in the Metropolitan, with Lawrence Tibbett in the leading role. He will be sought to play the same part in the movie, which will be more elaborate than the play, including visualization of matters merely alluded to in the original drama. The "Emperor's" experiences as a Pullman porter and member of a chain gang will be shown. The new scenes will be written under the supervision of Mr. O'Neill.

To improve Any child's

APPETITE

If you want your child to eat more to gain and grow strong, begin this very night with the famous "California treatment!"

A sluggish appetite means a sluggish colon. Correct this condition called stasis, and see how quickly a listless, drooping boy or girl begins to eat—and gain! The only "medicine" such children need is pure, unadulterated fig syrup.

California fig syrup is doing wonderful things for ailing, sickly children all over the United States.

The one way to conquer constipation If your baby, boy, or girl is bilious—pale-faced and dull-eyed from constipation—breath bad mornings, tongue coated all the time—don't give cathartics that weaken twenty feet of bowels! Instead, a little fig syrup that doesn't disturb either stomach or bowels, but does act on the lower colon—where the trouble lies.

Nature never made a finer laxative for children; and they all love the wholesome, fruity flavor of the real California fig syrup. It's purely vegetable, but every druggist has it all bottled, with directions. Begin with it at once. Your child will soon be eating better and feeling better. Keep on with the fig syrup a few days and see amazing improvement in appetite, color, weight, and spirits.

VOTE REFORMS URGED BY COX, ELLENBOGEN

Their four-point program of good government was presented by Congressman-elect Henry Ellenbogen and the Rev. James R. Cox before an audience of 2,000 at a meeting last night in the South High School, Tenth and Carson streets.

The four points they emphasized were active support of the City Manager bill introduced in the Pennsylvania Legislature by Representative John J. Kane, of the South Side; support of election law reforms, permanent registration, limiting assistance of voters, abolishment of paid watchers, and the proportional representation method of election; opposition to repeal of the direct primary, and opposition to a machine candidate for mayor in the next election.

In the general questioning which followed his talk, Father Cox was asked if he thought the next Congress would modify the Eighteenth Amendment. He replied:

"The next Congress may legalize light wines and beer, but if they do, our Supreme Court, those nine old men, 'petrified fossils' I call them, hiding behind a Chinese wall of legislation, will declare it unconstitutional."

Mrs. Walter Long, of Regent Square, represented the women's division of the Municipal Charter Committee. Nicholas J. Grady, of the South Side, was chairman.

COUNTY TO CUT FEES FOR COURT WARDS' MAINTENANCE

Bessemer Steel Led to Formation Of a New Company

FROM THE LIFE OF ANDREW CARNEGIE
by BURTON J. HENDRICK

Abridged for exclusive publication in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, by special permission of Mrs. Andrew Carnegie

The St, Nicholas Hotel provided not only splendor but extreme comfort, and here Carnegie and his mother made their home for several years. Carnegie opened a New York office at 19 Broad street, in a year or two moving to 57 Broadway. That he worked hard may be taken for granted; that was his habit, just as,, when he played, he did so with all his soul. "Whatever I engage in, I must push inordinately," he said at this time, in a memorandum about to be quoted.

This document has great value for two reasons: it discloses the many enterprises which were occupying Carnegie at the time and the income he was deriving from each; and—what is far more to the point—it also unfolds his life program. There is an impression in Pittsburgh that Carnegie's early ventures in industry—such as the Keystone Bridge Company and the Union Iron Mills—had vicissitudes in their tender years. That there were moments of anxiety is not unlikely; yet Carnegie's inventory of his income, dated December, 1868, shows great prosperity for that year. Bridge building gave him $15,000 as his share of the profits; his Union Iron Mills performed the same service to the extent of $20,000. The iron rail mill yielded $6,000, while the old favorites, the Central Transportation Company (sleeping cars) and the Columbia Oil were still profitable. Another item shows that Carnegie had become associated with the new Union Pacific Railroad. The story in detail is as follows:

Keystone Bridge Company	$15,000
Union Iron Mills	20,000
Central Transportation Company	6,000

His Program

Using this exhibit as a text, the young man communes with himself as follows—in a piece carefully preserved among his papers:

"St. Nicholas Hotel, New York,
"December, 1868.

"Thirty three and an income of $50,000 per annum! By this time two years I can arrange all my business so to secure at least $50,000 per annum. Beyond this never earn—make no effort to increase fortune, but spend the surplus each year for benevolent purposes. Cast aside business forever, except for others.

"Settle in Oxford and get a thorough education, making the acquaintance of literary men—this will take three years' active work—pay especial attention to speaking in public. Settle then in London and purchase a controlling interest in some newspaper or live review and give the general management of it attention, taking a part in public matters, especially those connected with education and improvement of the poorer classes.

"Man must have an idol—the amassing of wealth is one of the worst species of idolatry—no idol more debasing than the worship of money. Whatever I engage in I must push inordinately; therefore should I be careful to choose that life which will be the most elevat-

POLITICS

Reprisal Denied In Pay Cut Plan

—By MARK SHIELDS—

HARRISBURG, Feb. 15.—The bill of Representative John J. O'Keefe, of Pittsburgh, reducing the fees of Registers of Wills in Pennsylvania, was not surprise legislation. Its advent had been quietly predicted for some time, and, though it is a part of the general economy program of the Democratic legislators, it is apt to have some Republican support.

Mr. Shields

Indeed, there had been reports that a bill of this nature would make its appearance under Republican auspices, and some observers saw in the threat something in the nature of political reprisal, though in order to punish one official others would have been penalized. This has been denied by Republican leaders who might have been interested in the subject.

It is recalled that at the Republican national convention in Chicago Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, of Pittsburgh, insisted upon an unequivocal wet plank in the platform and demanded that the Pennsylvania delegation support such a motion. He was continuing the battle he had started at the state committee meeting in Philadelphia in the spring of 1932.

The insistence of Mackrell was somewhat troublesome to State Chairman Edward Martin and Senator John J. McClure, of Delaware County, the latter at that time not being in the humor to take issue with Martin in the state chairman's desire to adopt a middle-of-the-road course and support the Hoover administration in its straddle on prohibition.

Betrayal Charged By Mackrell

At one delegation caucus, arranged by a minority of the delegates after a previous caucus declaration in their absence had declared for the straddle, Mackrell flatly declared that the sentiment of Pennsylvania Republicans had been betrayed by the Republican leadership. This did not add to the joyous accord of the Chicago gathering, nor increase the admiration of the leaders for the Allegheny County official.

Senator McClure was asked a couple of weeks ago if he had any sentiments on reducing registers' fees, and replied that he believed some shaving could be made. At that time it was pointed out to him that some political observers might suspect punitive action against Mackrell, despite the inclusion of other counties in the cut.

This McClure denied emphatically. The Register of his own county would suffer somewhat under the O'Keefe bill, but not so much as would the Registers of Allegheny County and Philadelphia in normal years. The Register of Delaware County is to get a fee of something like $45,000 from the Dorrance estate if the inheritance tax claims of Pennsylvania are substantiated in the highest courts—as they have been in each previous legal step.

Any law passed now could not be retroactively applied to reduce the fees of the Register in this case.

Lawyers are divided in opinion as to whether a Register can have his fees reduced during the time for which he is elected. The majority contend the fees can be cut, although the statutory rate of fixed pay cannot.

JUDGE CONFERS ON PROPOSED SLASH

Amount Paid Now too Large, McGovern Declares

The weekly payments of $5.60 by Juvenile Court for maintenance of its wards in foster homes is to be cut by the County Commissioners, it was learned today. Commissioners C. C. McGovern and C. M. Barr discussed the proposed reduction yesterday with President Judge Richard A. Kennedy of County Court.

A reduction in the fees was one of the suggestions made by the community research bureau of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board in demanding a lower tax levy. The realtors pointed out a 25 per cent slash would save the county approximately $120,000 annually. In the 1933 budget $486,000 is set up for maintenance of juveniles.

SUM TOO LARGE

McGovern declared he believed the amount suggested by the realtors would be too drastic.

Judge Kennedy said he was agreeable to a 60-cent cut, but the Commissioners might cut more deeply.

Several months ago the Commissioners and auditors in a report on the boarding of juveniles had the appearance of a "racket." The Commissioners hired three women investigators to report on the foster homes. Unofficial reports on some cases indicated wards were subject to overwork, abuse and neglect.

BOARD FUND OUT

McGovern yesterday brought about elimination of the $1,000 appropriation to the Board of Visitation, a non-salaried group who investigate prisons, hospitals and homes in this county. McGovern said:

"This board has been functioning for years, but they never told us anything."

Commissioner Barr agreed.

Dr. Ludwig B. Bernstein is the head of the board. The board consists of 28 men and women, appointed by the judges of Common Pleas Court, who work in conjunction with the State Welfare Department.

HEARING FRIDAY FOR CAVANAUGH

Bail bonds totaling $45,000 were posted today at the office of Alderman Edward W. Haas, of West Liberty avenue, for Burgess John J. Cavanaugh, of Homestead, and four other Homestead residents and C. J. McBride, named in informations charging conspiracy to juggle property assessments in Homestead during the 1931 triennial assessment.

Bonds of $17,500 each were posted for Cavanaugh and McBride. Those of Councilman Jesse Honse and Martin Delaney, William Dee, former sub-assessor and School Supt. Port Eckles were $2,500 each. The accused men will be given a hearing at 2 p. m. Friday.

CUT IN WATER RATE ACCEPTED

A reduction of approximately one dollar a year in water rates for West View home owners was accepted tentatively by borough officials at a meeting of the West View Council last night, but officials said today they will make a further study of the rates to determine whether there should not be a greater reduction.

The Pittsburgh Suburban Water Company proposed the cut and also presented a proposal to reduce the charge on water plugs in the borough. The present rate is $45 for each plug. The company offered a flat rate of $42 with 5 per cent discount if bills are paid within 30 days.

Most of the home owners pay $3.75 quarterly. They were offered a 25 per cent reduction for each quarter if bills are paid within 15 days. Those having $2 quarterly minimum contracts were offered a quarterly reduction of 15 cents.

G. O. P. Hopes To Get Fat on Victory Dinners

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Say, the Republican party has dropped so low it is holding victory dinners.

The first one was at the Waldorf-Astoria on Lincoln's Birthday. The Democrats aren't worried. They will tie the score on Washington's Birthday.

Victory dinners are held between defeats. The Republicans are confident they will be recalled to power by the people and are confident three more victory dinners will do the job.

There were 1,200 Republicans at the dinner and the campaign managers announced they had carried the hotel by a big majority.

Now, all they need is the main waiting room at Pennsylvania Depot, two-thirds of the attendance at the Pasadena Rose Bowl and a concensus of opinion in a riot in Union Square.

TWO SEIZE CASH AT DAIRY STORE

The robbers, their hands in their pockets, ordered Simon Breen, the clerk, of 527 Herron avenue to hold up his hands. Then they riffled the cash register and fled.

The holdup was the second for the store in less than three months.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 15.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Mr. Hoover, who we looked to for a little encouragement in his radio talk, gave us the worst news that's hit us yet. He said the Republicans are coming back.

Will Rogers.

And by the way, here is one thing I want somebody to explain to me, why is it, during a campaign, after a campaign, or at any other time, why can't our Presidents speak of each other by name and say, "Well, I wish Mr. So and So well, he is a fine man and will make you a good President." Or to have the victor say, "He had a hard time, and did the very best he could have under the circumstances." Even small town Mayors have been known to speak of each other complimentary, but if Presidents ever did it, I think we would drop dead.

Yours,
WILL.

Westmoreland Funds Found $6,000 Short

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 15.—A $6,000 shortage in the accounts of a clerk in the County Treasurer's office was revealed today by Treasurer M. L. Rose, who said the employe had admitted the defalcation. Rose said the employe, against whom no charge has yet been filed, took sums ranging from $10 to $200 since 1929 and during a former administration. The County Treasurer and a bonding company will confer shortly upon legal action.

RECOUNT VOIDS 31 BALLOTS

The Fourth Ward Republican organization was jolted today when Judge W. Heber Dithrich, presiding at the recount, voided 31 ballots because of differences in the markings in the straight Democratic Party column and the individual markings for five Republican candidates. These ballots were in the Twelfth District, Fourth Ward. X's in the Democratic Party column were dissimilar to the X's for Senator James J. Coyne; Charles Dwyer, for Assembly; M. J. Muldowney for Congress; C. A. Waters, for State Treasurer and F. E. Baldwin for Auditor General. Also there were phantom markings.

B. Robert Averbach, attorney for the Republican organization, contended the differences might be due to voters receiving assistance, but there was no record of assistance being given. Averbach said it was a controlled ward but the powers were unable to control the sweep to the Democratic Presidential candidate.

Judge Dithrich ruled there was evidence of fraud on eight ballots in the Seventeenth District, Fourth Ward, but the return board's figures would have to be accepted.

The court has ordered that the recount of 27 ballot boxes be completed by Saturday noon. Nine boxes remain to be examined.

10 MORE FIGHT CHEAP BUSES

Ten other transportation companies today were allowed to join in the complaint of the Pittsburgh Railways Company against the Community Transportation Company and its proposal to operate a cheaper bus service in Pittsburgh.

The complaint is that the Community Company proposes to run motor buses without a certificate of public convenience. Commissioner Samuel Walker allowed the other companies to join in the complaint provided the question involved should not be enlarged.

Walker said if it could be proven the Community Company was not a common carrier, the Commission had no jurisdiction.

Companies joining the complaint are the Harmony Short Line Motor Transportation Company, Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company, Penn Bus Company, White Star Lines, Inc., Blue Ridge Transportation Company, West Penn Railways Company, Allegheny Valley Street Railway Company, Penn Transit Company, Brentwood Motor Coach Company and the Oriole Motor Coach Company.

Ice Imperils Traffic As Cold Continues

Ice-coated highways, veneered with a thin covering snow, endangered traffic today, and no immediate relief was promised by the local weather forecaster.

Rain froze, in the quick drop of temperature last night, making the highways treacherous. Then came a light snow. Highway crews were busy today cindering the roads to prevent accidents.

There will be a further drop in temperature tonight. Between 10 and 15 degrees are predicted by Forecaster W. S. Brotzman. Tomorrow the mercury will begin rising, he said.

Early reports to the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh said the mountain roads were dangerous, but open to traffic.

JUDGE GARDNER AIDING FIGHT FOR LIFE OF 'SANDY'

GRANTS STAY; ASKS DOOM BE REVOKED

Sandy, East Pittsburgh mongrel, with a new lease on life, was the central figure in a court drama unfolding here today in which Presiding Judge Samuel H. Gardner appeared as another friend of the dog.

Granting a stay of execution for the dog, on petition of Attorney Charles D. Coll, the Judge declared:

"I'm very much interested in this case and I feel myself that the dog should be free. I will take this petition under advisement and grant a stay until I confer with Judge Reed, to whom I will recommend a modification of sentence."

Judge R. L. Reed, visiting from Cambria County, last week sentenced Sandy to death as a condition of a parole imposed upon his owner, Frank Sechan, who pleaded guilty to a charge of keeping a vicious dog.

Letters poured into the office of Attorney Coll from sympathetic dog lovers, commending him for his activity to save the dog. The attorney received more than a score of letters yesterday. One came from Grace Kemmerling Wellington, Crafton Heights. She wrote:

"As a lover of animals, I am deeply interested in the case of Sandy, so ruthlessly condemned to die by Judge Reed. If in any way I can be of assistance, please do not hesitate to let me know.

"Since my love of justice embraces the rights of every living thing, however humble, I feel it is my duty to raise my voice in behalf of these lesser brothers when and where I can."

Another letter from Arthur O. Gramire, of Wilkinsburg, read:

"There is a decided satisfaction in knowing that there are numerous people still civilized enough to give an animal consideration."

cially strong claims that a veto might be downed in the Senate, where the organization majority appears more stabilized than in the House.

The claims were beclouded when the Republican state organization, deserted by the Democrats, backtracked on the Prince-Chapman bill to repeal the direct primary act.

But hope was not lost, and Senator William D. Pethick, whose resolution asking Congress not to reduce the federal appropriations for the Army, Navy and National Guard, was vetoed by the Governor, threatened this week to force a vote on the veto. Pethick and organization leaders in the Senate believed Monday they had the votes necessary, and declared the effort to admonish the Governor would be easily successful.

That, however, was in the afternoon, before all the membership had arrived.

During the evening the veto threat was completely abandoned. The only valid explanation was that a count of noses had revealed that 34 votes could not be mustered to reprove Mr. Pinchot.

Again the Democrats were in the Pinchot camp. They could not well have insisted upon the inviolability of national defense appropriations when the platform and program of their leader, President-elect Roosevelt, calls for a 25 per cent average cut in the maintenance of the whole federal establishment.

Wife Found Guilty In Mate's Slaying

Mrs. Fannie Bristow, 24, Negro maid at 6109 Fifth avenue, indicted on murder charges in the killing of her husband and another woman, was convicted of voluntary manslaughter in connection with the husband's death today. Judge William H. McNaugher deferred sentence pending disposition of the charge made in connection with the woman's death.

The husband, Roland Bristow, 24, and Mattie Warfield, Negro, of 50 Rowley street, were shot and killed last July 23. The jury in Criminal Court returned its verdict this morning after deliberating since yesterday afternoon.

Dormonters Must Pay If Drunk In City

The price you pay for living in Dormont—if you live in Dormont—is to be fined when you get drunk in Pittsburgh—if you get drunk in Pittsburgh.

That's about the way Magistrate Leo Rothenberg put it today in Central Police Court as he ordered Bert Miller, 30, of Dormont to pay $5 or spend five days in jail for being drunk last night. Rothenberg said:

"Your Burgess Chamberlain socks it to Pittsburghers who get drunk in Dormont, so I'll do the same here."

Ceramic Art Research Urged Upon Industry

Tech Instructor Sees New Era of Beauty For Masses

By PENELOPE REDD

The program of the art division of the American Ceramic Society yesterday at the William Penn Hotel forecast the probably future importance of a foundling on the doorstep of a highly developed industry, Alexander J. Kostellow, of the faculty of the College of Fine Arts, Carnegie Institute of Technology, who is also a well known painter, in discussing "Design—a Luxury or an Economic Necessity," said:

Miss Redd

"The new patron of the arts is the common public and the greatest artist is the machine, because in its very limitations it has the amazing advantage of repeating good things innumerable times.

"'Buy American' is a wonderful idea. Too frequently now, I must translate it 'Buy American copies of the Czechoslovakian or of the Viennese.' The manufacturers spend any amount of money in their laboratories to discover new materials and to perfect methods of production.

"Laboratories for the designer are needed just as much as for the scientist. The designer's work is as vital, and, moreover, his contribution increases sales. The manufacturers should establish a fund enabling a large group of 30 to 50 designers to study in laboratories at plants.

"This group should be chosen, from the country at large to represent the most promising art students. The 'apprentice' designers would work under the direction of engineers, scientists and experienced designers."

An exhibition of pottery by the students of the College of Fine Arts at Carnegie Institute of Technology, is shown at the William Penn Hotel. Frederic Clayter, who is in charge of the classes, has assembled a highly diversified group of ceramics.

The students have done both decorative and utilitarian objects remarkable in their originality of idea, fine modeling, and range of glazes. Thoroughly contemporary, they are designed in relation to their immediate functions and to the best traditions of beauty in ceramics.

AKRON, O., Feb. 15.—(AP.)—The first trial flight of the Navy's new dirigible, the U. S. S. Macon, has been tentatively set for March 21, Capt. Alger H. Dresel, who will be skipper of the ship, said on his arrival in Akron today.

14-STORY LEAP FAILS TO KILL

CLEVELAND, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Samuel Malbin dropped from the fourteenth floor of the downtown Allerton Hotel yesterday—and apparently suffered nothing more than a fractured arm.

He asked, as horror-stricken employes picked him up:

"Where's my hat?"

He never lost consciousness, and at the hospital helped identify himself.

Malbin, one of the three Russian immigrant brothers who built up a fortune dealing in smoked fish, jumped deliberately, police said.

Hospital attendants, who termed the case one of the most remarkable ever brought to them, said he may have suffered internal injuries, but none was apparent after a preliminary examination.

His fall was uninterrupted until he was only two floors from the ground. There he crashed through a skylight and fell to the floor of a linen storage room.

SEEK SOLUTION OF BREAKAGE

The problem of glass breakage must be solved to save industry heavy losses, delegates to the American Ceramic Society convention in the Hotel William Penn today were told by Frank W. Preston, of Butler.

Sightseeing trips were listed this afternoon to the Aliquippa works, Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation, East Liverpool, china and pottery plants, Westinghouse Research Laboratories, Mellon Institute and United States Bureau of Mines.

Ambridge Fights School Code Change

AMBRIDGE, Pa., Feb. 15.—(INS.)—Unanimous opposition was on record here today from Ambridge's board of school directors to the proposed changes in the state school code providing an increase in state subsidy funds to districts with less than 10,000 population.

Under the proposed plan, now before the Legislature, Ambridge, Aliquippa and Beaver Falls all would suffer a cut in state subsidy funds. Ambridge directors claim they would lose $9,000 annually.

EXHIBIT SHOWS MERIT OF U. S. PRODUCTS

While members of the Windgap Civic Club of the Twenty-eighth Ward unanimously recorded themselves in favor of buying American goods, nine glass manufacturers with plans in the tri-state district presented an exhibit of modern made-in-America glassware in the Joseph Horne Company store.

The glass display, held in conjunction with the convention of the American Ceramic Society here, showed many novelties in glassware. Outstanding in the show, perhaps, was glassware to be used on the stove, for boiling or broiling. It is the newest advance in the oven-ware products.

Cocktail shakers are accompanied by glasses bearing numbers, and little glass buttons with corresponding numbers which can be put in the coat lapel—to indicate whose glass is whose, and prevent them getting mixed.

The Windgap Club, besides pledging support to "Buy American," elected new officers. Edward Bartsch was named president; Peter P. Ostronic, vice president; Arthur R. Cochran, secretary, and Charles Gorney, treasurer.

City Ordered to Pay $21,000 Damages

George A. Kim was awarded $21,000 by consent against the City of Pittsburgh in Common Pleas Court today for alleged damages to his property when the city built an overhead pedestrian crossing in West Carson street at the foot of the Duquesne incline.

Kim had asked $40,000 damages to a warehouse property adjoining the overhead, had been awarded $22,000 by the Public Service Commission, and the city appealed.

10 Held for Court After Opium Raids

Baer, Turning Serious, Urges 'Buy American'

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(Universal)—Arthur "Bugs" Baer, noted humorist and columnist, stepped out of character last night when he delivered an address over stations WINS on the "Buy American" campaign of the Hearst newspapers.

He said:

"With millions of men and women in every section of the country seeking honest employment and unable to find it, this phrase 'Buy American' is far more than a mere combination of words. It is a call to duty on the part of every American man and woman and child, which cannot be ignored by any citizen who cares at all about his country, his neighbors and his family.

"We are all to blame. We have been thoughtless and careless. For while there is plenty of evidence to suspect that the European nations harbor no love for us, we continue to buy foreign-made products to the detriment of our own goods, our own factories and our own workers.

"The government can build tariff walls to the skies. But when it comes to the real test it is up to us—to you and me, to our neighbors and families to 'Buy American' and thus automatically keep out foreign goods, made by cheap foreign labor and sold for depreciated foreign currency.

"I am happy to say that the 'Buy American' movement, although still new, already has had important and far-reaching results in the form of a growing demand by Americans for American-made goods. Everywhere I have been recently I have seen evidences of the generous and patriotic response to the appeal that American goods be bought instead of imports.

"There is but one course for us to follow if we would get out of this depression—'Buy American.' Let's put our unemployed back to work!"

BURGOYNE HAPPY OVER ACQUITTAL ON BOND CHARGE

JURY QUICKLY DECIDES ON VERDICT

Arthur G. Burgoyne was happier today than he has been in a year or more.

Burgoyne yesterday in 75 minutes was acquitted by a jury in Criminal Court of fraudulent conversion and embezzlement of $60,000 in city securities. Burgoyne, who was an aide to former City Treasurer Roy D. Scholey, was ordered to pay the costs.

The prosecution encountered difficulty in placing the bonds, which were represented as part of the security posted on city funds by the Franklin Savings and Trust Company, in Burgoyne's possession.

In arguing before the jury Assistant District Attorney B. Meredith Reid charged visitors who dropped into the courtroom and walked to counsel table had tried jury suasion.

On a third charge of misdemeanor in office Burgoyne was acquitted by order of Judge Sylvester J. Snee.

The population at the Pittsburgh City Home and Hospital at Mayview is increasing 20 patients daily with the completion of its new $40,000 utility building.

The latest structure is to house the overflow of homeless men from the Helping Hand, Water street.

The building, two stories high, 110 feet wide and 125 feet long, is of steel and brick construction. It will house 600. Now 105 men are being sheltered, and 20 will arrive each day until the building is filled.

MAY HAVE RADIOS

The first floor has 100 double deck beds and recreation space. The second floor has 200 double deck beds. Radios will be installed, it was indicated.

The men when admitted are examined, then given suits, shoes and underwear. They are required to take shower baths twice a week. They are given haircuts and shaves, and are furnished with tobacco. Three meals are given daily.

Frank E. Stitt, attendant, explained that each patient will be assigned to some kind of work, such as road building or farming on the 1,000-acre tract.

The institution, which now houses 4,300 patients, is headed by Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of the Department of Welfare. Dr. J. S. Hammers is superintendent and medical director.

TELLS HIS STORY

Frank Young, 31, a widower, has been unemployed for three years. His daughter is being cared for by her grandparents in Maine. He was a switchman in Pittsburgh steel plants 10 years. The Helping Hand has been "home" for two years. For more than a year he had been in charge of the hospital there. He tells a story:

"I arrived in Mayview last Friday. It is a whole lot better out here than in town. The food is wonderful. We have more liberty here. It is convenient.

"We are not driven out in the cold or rainy weather. All attendants are pleasant and speak to you like a man. Believe me, next to your own home, this place is heaven."

Homestead Considers Own Water System

Feasibility of establishing a municipal water system was discussed at a special meeting last night of Homestead Council. M. Newton, representative of the Lyne Water Company, of New York, outlined a plan whereby the borough would be supplied water from a system of wells sunk at the foot of McClure street and Third avenue.

If feasible, the borough may ask for a loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to finance the project, it was intimated.

Ben Avon Council Cuts Tax 2 Mills

An ordinance reducing the borough tax levy from 11 to 9 mills was voted last night by Ben Avon Council.

The financial report showed a balance of $6,500 in the general fund and $29,000 in the sinking fund for the fiscal year. R. L. Forsythe, president, presided.

To be rid of a Cold

ABORT

(with lemon juice)

Often a cold that you thought all gone—comes back! That's because the remedy used does not drive the cold symptoms from the system. Try cold abortion and you'll find those stubborn colds broken-up and gone within a few hours. To abort a cold, squeeze two full-sized lemons in a glass of very hot water, to be taken preferably at bedtime. Two hours before, start taking a tablet of Pape's cold compound each hour. After the third tablet take the lemon juice and hot water without sugar, and go to bed, well-covered. Sound sleep will follow, and the cold will be aborted by morning. The lemon juice treatment never fails, but you must have the cold compound to clear the head, dry the nasal passages, and allay any fever. Any druggist has Pape's cold compound; it is perfectly safe, and a tablet will check a cold at any time.

Rabbits and Radishes
Babies and Bouquets
Carrots and Cabbages
all from an

EMPTY TUB!

ILLUSION:

EXPLANATION:

The assorted rabbits, babies, carrots, cabbages, ribbons, and other magical "props" are not created by magic. The tub has a false bottom that is conveniently displaced, and numberless wonderful things spring to life in the magician's nimble fingers. They do literally "spring" because they are made to compress into the bottom of the tub, taking their natural shape as the magician lifts them out.

IT'S FUN TO BE FOOLED
...IT'S MORE FUN TO KNOW

Tricks are legitimate on the stage but not in business. Here's one that has been used in cigarette advertising...the illusion that blending is everything in a cigarette.

EXPLANATION: Blending is important...but it makes a lot of difference what is blended.

Inferior tobaccos can be blended to cover up their humble origin. But your taste soon detects the trick.

The proper use of blending is to bring out the full "round" flavor of mild, high-grade tobaccos. It's the costliness of the tobaccos, as well as the blending, that counts.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent by others in the attempt to discover just how Camels are blended. The blend is important.

Light up a Camel. Relax, while the delicate blue smoke floats about you. Enjoy to the full the pleasure that comes from costlier tobaccos.

Amusements Not Essential For Happiness

Are expensive play-times important?

Dancing and dining out; going to shows—must we have 'em to "really live?"

"Of course they are; and we do!" someone says. "They take you outside yourself; give you new slants on things; keep you in circulation. Why, you get dull as dish water if you don't step out."

Do you? I wonder. Is it the lad who stays at home, or the lass who must do her stepping out, that is really dull?

Consider the case of Vee Vee.

Dear Elsie:

Maybe you will think my problem is peculiar, but I guess a lot of other people have one like it in this day and age. It really is: What can the boy friend and I find to do to amuse ourselves, now that his salary has been cut so badly that we can't afford to go out like we used to?

We have been going together for several years, and we used to take in all the good shows, go to nice hotels for dinner and dancing, and other things like that. And now that we can't do those things any more, we get so tired trying to figure out what to do to amuse ourselves that we both get irritable—and then we quarrel.

We see each other pretty nearly every night. We are engaged, and we really do love each other, but everything seems so dull that we just can't seem to get along with each other any more. We spend a few evenings visiting friends. We go for walks. We manage about one movie a week, and occasionally we take in a dance. We can't afford to do more than that, and we seem to get so bored with living that we don't know what to do.

WANTS SUGGESTION

What shall we do, now that Bill can't spend money any more? Have you any suggestion? If you have, please help us out. We'll appreciate it a lot. The way things are going, we'll probably end by breaking up, and we don't want to do that. VEE VEE.

So there's the picture. It's a picture that is making misery in many a home. What do you think of it?

Do you think that High-Priced Fun really helped these two young lives? Do you think they'd be bigger, brighter, better people if they could go stepping again?

I don't! I think amusements made a mess of them—kept them from developing their own resources—turned them into stupid, helpless, peevish people.

Does that mean that I'm down on dancing and movies and dinner dates? No, it doesn't. But I am down on the stupid idea, which possesses so many of us, that these things are the Whole Show—that we aren't "really living" unless we are whirling from one Playground to another.

MAKE OWN FUN

That's what is the matter with you and Bill, Vee Vee. You've been too busy Having Fun to find out what life, or you, yourselves, are all about. You've always depended on someone else, to give you a thrill, and as a consequence you've nothing inside yourselves—no bright ideas, no quiet contentment, no steady strength. Even if you could now afford all the Bright Lights you desire, they still wouldn't help you; they'd still be shoving you deeper and deeper "into the red."

So then, what? So then—Stop whining and get going! Begin to build a real life—inside yourself. Begin to make your own fun, create your own thrills. Get acquainted with each other and with other lives.

Real People are a million times more exciting, if you'll take time to explore them, than Reel Thrillers. And—believe it or not—there's more fun in a chafing dish party in your own apartment or a fishing or hiking trip, than in a thousand dinner dances.

By FAY KING

A girl who is ambitious is also impatient for success. If she is attractive she finds it quite easy to enlist the influence of a man who can help her.

And while his interest lasts she may progress much beyond her merit. She seldom stops to think that much is done for her is in reality done for him.

The confidence and security that she becomes accustomed to under his special guidance and patronage disarm her for the disappointments that will come when he suddenly transfers his interest to the career of some other young, attractive and ambitious girl.

Enthusiasm in her talents is only a tribute to him. When he ceases to be interested in her career, no one else is.

New Complications Arise in Kidnaping Case

"We are fortunate indeed," I commented calmly to Mrs. Merton, of the mountain glen tea room, when she told me of the customers who had just left without the meal they had ordered and paid for, making it possible for her to serve us the viands we wished without delay.

"Take any table you wish," she said, as she went through a swinging door to her kitchen. "We can serve you very shortly."

We stood, for a little after she left us, ostensibly removing our coats, but in reality sending our eyes along the wide shelf which ran around the entire wall above our heads, and which held in irregular, attractive spacing a collection of gifts in potery, pewter and glass.

"There it is!" Mary whispered, excitedly.

I followed her eyes to the wall at our right where, standing by itself, as if conscious of its quaint beauty, was a branched candlestick of pewter. Its two holders, one higher than the other, were divided by a lithe, cruching figure, which I could see might very well be described as a "little horse"—the designation which the Chinese had given me over the telephone.

"Sit down, quickly," I whispered, mindful of the directions that the man had given me. She obeyed me, and we waited tensely until Mrs. Merton came into the room again with our food. I forced myself to wait until we had nearly finished our meal before beginning the negotians outlined by the Chinese.

MAKES PURCHASE

"What charming things you have here!" I said.

"I am glad you like them," she returned quietly.

"May I look at them?" I rose from the table, and Mary was standing almost before I was.

"That is why they are here," Mrs. Merton said, smiling, and purposely I walked first to the side of the room opposite the "little horse." From there I made a hasty round of the wall, taking down two or three pieces of pottery, selecting one that I liked and putting the rest back. When I reached the pewter candlestick I stopped abruptly.

"How very odd," I exclaimed, "and charming!"

"I like it very much," Mrs. Merton said.

"What is the price?"

"It is on the tag." She lifted the piece of cardboard and looked at it. "Two dollars," she said.

"Do you like it, Mary?" I turned to my husband's charming niece, purposely delaying my purchase, so that Mrs. Merton might see in me only the usual undecided shopper.

"Oh, don't I, just!" Mary exclaimed, playing up to me. "I can just see the corner on one of the bookcases where it belongs."

"Then we'll put it there," I smiled at her. Then I drew out my purse, took out two dollars and reached my hand for the candlestick. "I'll take this," I told Mrs. Merton.

NOTES FOUND

"I'll wrap it for you—the candles separately, so they won't get broken," she said.

"No, don't bother!" I was conscious, too late, that there was a suspicious sharpness in my voice. "I'll take it this way. There's a bag in my car in which I can stow it, and I'm in a hurry."

But as if determined to betray its message prematurely, one of the candles tipped from the candlestick and would have fallen to the floor if Mrs. Merton had not caught it adroitly.

"Why! I thought those fitted perfectly," she said. Then her eyes went quickly to the opening from which the candle had dropped. Without being cross, I could not take the candlestick away, although my impulse was to snatch it from her grasp. Instead, I stood tense, miserably watchful, as with a little cry of amazement she took from the opening a tiny pad of paper.

"Who put this here?" she demanded rhetorically, of the room in general.

I watched her helplessly as she tilted the other candle, and took from beneath it a tiny pad exactly like the other one. She raised both to her near-sighted eyes and said breathlessly:

"It's Chinese paper! So thin, and—why, Mrs. Graham, your name is on it."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

All right to display the ears when they are small and pretty, but when they assume big proportions they should be curtained. Few women have charming ears. The area back of them is always ugly; it is best to cover these spaces with hirsute draperies. When ears are out, they should be powdered.

Pint-sized girls only make themselves look shorter by wearing ruffles and flounces. The fewer cross lines the better. Full sleeves don't suit them, they throw the silhouette out of balance. High neck is more flattering than low. The girdle should rest at the normal waistline. After the age of 17 it is no good wasting time praying for additional inches.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Debutante

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a foreigner but married to an American, and consequently do not know the American customs as I should.

A member of our family is going to make her debut this month and I should like to know whether it would be proper for us (my husband and myself) to give her a present and when should we give it?

Should we also send flowers the night of her debut? E.

Not so many people give special gifts to a debutante... sometimes members of the family and perhaps her very intimate friends...and this is not at all taken for granted.

But it is customary to send flowers for the debut. They are used to "background" the "bud."

Fiftieth Anniversary

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—What dress would be appropriate for my mother to wear on her fiftieth wedding anniversary? Does it have to be of a golden color?

2—Does she have to wear a veil?

3—Is it necessary to have a marriage ceremony performed again? L.

1—For her fiftieth wedding anniversary your mother would wear a dress of any shade appropriate and becoming to her. A silver gray is usually most becoming and lovely on women of that age, or a beige, a lavender or a purple.

2—No.

3—No.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

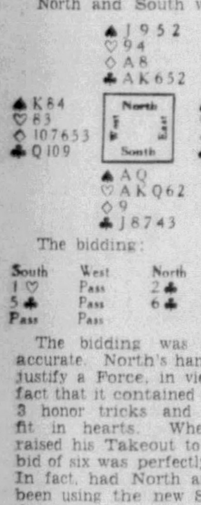
Safety Versus a Guess

Not nearly enough time is taken by most players in the planning of the play of the hand after the bidding is ended and the Opening lead has been made. This is generally true, whether the contract undertaken is for a part-score, a game or a Slam. Of course, the smaller the contract, the less stinging the defeat if the Declarer fails to make a proper plan. But whether you are planning to take all your tricks, all but one, enough to produce game, or only a part-score, you should still make a sound but flexible plan and adhere to its principles, regardless of whether or not you have to modify the details.

Here is a hand, for instance, played in a recent Rubber game, in which an apparently sure Small Slam contract might easily have been defeated had not North, the Declarer, visualized all the playing possibilities of the cards around the table.

South—Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
5 ♣	Pass	6 ♣	Pass
Pass	Pass

The bidding was extremely accurate. North's hand did not justify a Force, in view of the fact that it contained little over 3 honor tricks and lacked a fit in hearts. When South raised his Takeout to five, the bid of six was perfectly obvious. In fact, had North and South been using the new Slam bidding convention, they would, no doubt, have reached the Small Slam just as expeditiously as they did by direct methods.

East made the perfectly normal Opening of the diamond King, which was won in the closed hand with the Ace. Two rounds of clubs were then taken with the Ace and King, and the fact disclosed that there was a trump loser in the hand. The obvious play now would have been an attempt to establish the heart suit, as North could thus see three discards if the hearts in the adverse hands were divided 3-3. The same type of player, when West did not follow on the third round of hearts, would have attempted the finesse in spades, which would have brought disaster. North, however, was not only a thoughtful player, but a good one, and preferred an absolutely safe play to a doubtful finesse. Thus, when West did not follow on the third round of hearts, but discarded a diamond, North also discarded a diamond.

A small heart was then ruffed in the closed hand, and West was forced into the lead with a trump. West now had no satisfactory lead. To return a diamond would have permitted the discard of Dummy's losing spade. Equally, the return of a spade would have been fatal, as it would have furnished the Declarer with 2 tricks ready-made in the spade suit. Even had West trumped the third round of hearts, North could still have assured his contract by the discard of a diamond, and any lead by West would have given North his Slam contract—a result fully justified, not only by his accurate bidding, but his excellent play.

CRY AGAINST BOXING NOT WARRANTED

WHILE THE DEATH of Ernie Schaaf is deplorable, and the sympathy of every fight follower goes out to the grief-stricken members of his family, the ring tragedy that came out of a bout widely viewed as a fake, does not warrant the movement already started in some places to repeal the laws that permit boxing. Even if Schaaf's death had resulted from punishment received, and the chief medical examiner of New York says it did not, boxing could not be termed more dangerous than other rugged sports which have shown a greater number of fatal accidents.

Ernie Schaaf

But the regrettable happening does call for a probe that will spare nobody at fault. Ringside critics still insist that the fight was intended only as a build-up for a Carnera-Sharkey title match in June; that Schaaf did little training and was passed when not fit, and that the promoters signed Carnera to the Sharkey contract THE DAY BEFORE the fight without considering Schaaf. They also call attention to the shift of "wise" money that changed the early betting odds of from 7 to 5 on Schaaf to 8 to 5 and 2 to 1 on Carnera.

THAT NEW YORK'S Boxing Commissioners themselves have some doubts is indicated by their action in refusing to permit the proposed Sharkey-Carnera match to go on. Enforcing the "dreadnaught class" rule does not fit in with the fact that Sharkey had already defeated the same Carnera with ease.

The Commission itself could have better saved the game by preventing the Schaaf-Carnera meeting in view of the unusual conditions that surrounded it and the suspicion it was bound to arouse. The tragedy calls for a thorough investigation that will place the blame, if any, where it belongs.

THE RELEASE OF Pitcher Irvin Brame and Outfielder Dave Barbee to Toronto in the International League amounts only to ridding the Pirate brig of some excess baggage before the start of the training cruise.

Brame, after a single big year, had lost his value to the Bucs in the last two seasons. Last year he did not pitch a complete game, starting only twice and being lifted both times. The staff loses no strength in his going. Barbee may come back improved after another year in the minors, and his batting punch will make him welcome, but at present he is not needed.

BIG FRANK HOGAN is leading the Boston police on a mad hunt for a sneak thief who stole an overnight case owned by Hogan's sister. The overnight case is the smallest item. Frank says it's an old one, and neither he nor his sister feels badly over that part of the loss. But what makes Hogan wild is the fact that it contained a new catcher's mitt which he had practically all broken in for spring training. "I'd surely like to get it back," moans the big backstop. "It was just beginning to feel clubby and familiar, and you know it's no easy job to break in a new glove for a catcher." That's a ball player's soft spot—his old glove. He wouldn't trade it for 20 new ones. He doesn't care about changing uniforms or shifting from one club to another, but take away his old glove and he's heartbroken and lost. Johnny Evers and Rabbit Maranville have been seen on the verge of tears when a favorite finger glove was mislaid. Honus Wagner used to hang onto one until there was nothing left of it but the buckle.

Joe Lapchick

The remarks of Chick Murray in the Sun-Telegraph, to the effect that basketball has too many styles of play and needs a uniform system, met with the full approval of Joe Lapchick, of the Rosenbloom Celtics, one of the game's closest students in the pro ranks.

While here last week Lapchick said that until he toured the South with the Celtics, particularly on this season's jaunt, which took him as far as Fort Worth, Tex., he had never even dreamed there were so many ways of playing basketball.

ACCORDING TO LAPCHICK, the East is the only spot where the game is played uniformly and according to the official rules. He agrees with Murray that one set system is needed, one that will bring more action and less whistle-tooting.

Joe says body contact cannot be avoided when two first-class teams get together, and that a game without body contact is not a game at all. The thing required is legislation to speed up the sport.

TO THAT END, Lapchick recommends: "Legislate against the zone defense and its evils. Modify the method of giving free throws. Modify the out-of-bounds rules. Give the centers more freedom by protecting them, and aid them in getting a play started on the toss by compelling all other players to remain at least 10 feet from the center until the ball actually is tapped. Allow any field goal that can be made, even if the shooter is fouled before he shoots. If the player with the ball is clever enough to get a shot even after he has been fouled in an attempt to stop him he should be allowed to go on and score if he can. Get a group of authorities that will legislate against the zone defense instead of against the pivot play, as an example, and you will have a body that will put the game on the upward trend."

ANOTHER FOREIGN BOXER is getting ready for a delayed test. Bep Van Klaveren's broken hand, which forced the postponement of his match with Billy Petrolle, has healed, and he will start training this week with the expectation of being able to fight early in March.

However, the Hollander will not meet Petrolle immediately. The New York promoters plan to make sure he is fit for such a tough engagement. Accordingly they will insist that he show in a semi-final at a Madison Square Garden show before the tilt with Petrolle.

ONE OF THE hockey styles that Pittsburgh introduced into the National Leagues appears to be going out. It is that of sending a fresh string of forwards in the ice every three minutes. Though Les Patrick had previously used this fast shift in the far West, it was Odie Cleghorn who brought it into the National League when he was managing the Pirates at Duquesne Garden.

The fact that Art Ross was able to throw three good lines into action in turn was a big factor in the championship success of the Boston Bruins. Other clubs also used the idea to advantage. The system became general. But now ther're all dropping it. They think it's a mistake to treat forwards as if they were hothouse plants and yank them out after they have been skating around for only three minutes.

Odie Cleghorn

FROM THE THEORY that frequent changes meant greater speed on the line, most of the managers have shifted to the belief that it takes a forward a couple of minutes to warm up, and that he hits his best pace between the three and five-minute marks. They hold that this applies particularly to the older players. Nels Stewart for one, is clicking better now that he is allowed more time on the ice. For three years, Connie Smythe, Toronto manager, has advocated fewer forwards and more work, but not until this season was he able to win other mentors over to his point of view.

WALKER LAW REPEAL IS SOUGHT

ALBANY, Feb. 15.—(INS.)—A definite move to repeal the Walker boxing law, under which the sport enjoyed its golden era in New York state, was launched in the Legislature today as a result of the fatal outcome of the Ernie Schaaf-Primo Carnera bout.

Senator Henry G. Schackno, Bronx Democrat, introduced a bill repealing the Walker law and making professional prize-fighting illegal in the state.

The bill was advanced immediately to the order of third reading in the Senate, and it was reported that there are enough supporting votes in sight to place boxing in jeopardy.

GOVERNOR AWAITS REPORT

Assemblyman Saul Streit, New York Democrat, has submitted a bill setting up a commission of nine members "to study and investigate the manner in which the law now in force concerning boxing and sparring matches is being regulated and enforced."

Gov. Lehman, who requested a report from the State Boxing Commission on all circumstances surrounding the Carnera-Schaaf fight after learning of the latter's death, is marking time until the report is received.

JOHNSTON IS SILENT

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(INS.)—Jimmy Johnston, matchmaner for Madison Square Garden, refused to make a statement today in answer to William Muldoon, New York State boxing commissioner, who said yesterday he would not permit a fight between Primo Carnero and Jack Sharkey, or between Carnera and any other normal-sized heavyweight.

Johnston would not say whether he would take the fight somewhere else if Muldoon remains adamant, but reports were that it might go to Boston.

The medical world was awaiting the result of a microscopic examination of a growth discovered in Schaaf's brain to determine the exact cause of his collapse and establish whether it was due to blows received in the Carnera fight or to a long-existing organic disorder in the brain.

WOMEN LINKS ACES ADVANCE

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Maureen Orcutt, of Haworth, N. J., and Diana Fishwick, leader of the British sextette participating in the winter tournaments today were in the second round of the Florida golf championship for women.

Miss Orcutt defeated Kathryn Braggaw, of Orange, N. J., 4 and 2, yesterday winning the medal in the qualifying round with a 79, four strokes better than Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, who was second.

Miss Fishwick, the present English closed champion, and the Fdench champion, won decisively over Mrs. H. C. Kersten, of Richmond, Va., 8 and 7.

All the British women came through safely except Betty Dix Perkin, who lost to the youthful Grace Amory, of Deepdale, L. I., 3 and 2.

Mrs. C. M. Scott, of Pittsburgh, failed to survive the first round of match play in the third flight, losing to Mrs. Edwin Goodman, of New York, 6 and 5.

CRAIG WOOD LEADS

LAKELAND, Fla., Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Craig Wood's dazzling back-nine drive, four under par after he had needed one better than perfect figures to negotiate the first nine, has placed the blond Deal, New Jersey professional, in the lead for the first round of the Orange Blossom open golf tournament. The tournament will end with today's 18 holes.

Requiring at 37 going out, Wood came back in 32 yesterday for a 69, one stroke better than Al Watrous, of Detroit, who carded a 37-33—70.

ROSS BOUT SET BACK

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—The 10-round bout between Barney Ross, Chicago lightweight, and Tommy Grogan, of Omaha, Neb., will be fought here February 22, instead of two days earlier, as originally scheduled.

Ed. Rommel Bids For Job With Buccaneers

Eddie Rommel, star pitcher for the Philadelphia Athletics over a period of 12 years, wants to join the Pirates.

Recently released by the Athletics, Eddie has written a personal letter to Manager George Gibson, of the Buccos, asking a berth on Gibby's staff. Gibson is a good friend of Rommel, but at present has no opening on his hurling corps for the veteran righthander. The Pirate pilot, however, likes Rommel's style and will try to help him elsewhere.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: LIVING QUARTERS OF THE LORD—The sect of the Jezreelites was founded by an English private, James White, who changed his name to James Jershom Jezreel. His headquarters were at Gillingham, Kent, England, where an ambitious building scheme was effected at a cost of over $500,000. Contributions flowed in from every part of the world, and the sect also was greatly enriched by donations of its members. They believed they would live forever, on the basis of certain passages in the Revelation of St. John. At the second coming of Christ, in the year 2000, a mystic number of 144,000 members twice told expected to be present. At Chatham Hill, New Brompton, they began the construction of a temple, 120 feet high and 120 feet wide, which was to serve as the earthly abode of the Lord. Jezreel died in 1885, and his wife, who assumed the name of Queen Esther, of Israel, died three years later. Thereafter the sect disintegrated and the temple was torn down during the World War.

BUCCOS SEND PLAYERS TO TORONTO

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The classy Pirate roster showed only 28 active performers today as the result of a logical pruning last night when Outfielder Dave Barbee and Pitcher Ervin Brame were released to the Toronto club of the International League.

Ervin Brame

Dixie Dave was sent to Dan Howley's new team with a stout string attached, but there were no cords binding the tall Kentuckian to the club for which he twirled some elegant ball until his "health went" back on him.

ONLY ONE WEAKNESS

Lack of speed is the only thing that stands between Dave Barbee and a major crown. The big fellow is sure of every ball he can reach, he can throw like a champion and he has poise and hitting power, but the serious defect has shunted him back to the minors.

Brame pitched fine ball for Pittsburgh and batted like a slugger in 1929-30, but the "flu" knocked him off in 1931, and last season when he was almost a total loss. The big righthander not only lost his pitching power, the decline of his health robbed him of his swatting ability.

BRAME LOSES SPEED

When he was right, Brame belonged to the category of "fastball" pitchers. He had little more than a "nickel" curve, but his "swifter," combined with a knowledge of pitching, mowed down the hitters. When he lost the "swifter" he was washed up.

Erv recently notified the Pittsburgh club he was feeling better, but Manager Gibson figured he could not help the team. His thundering bat won many a ball game in his two big seasons here. Brame worked himself up to a princely salary, but he will hardly make half as much money playing for Toronto.

Baseball Briefs

CINCINNATI — Johnny Moore, former Cub outfielder, today announced the terms of the contract offered him by Cincinnati were satisfactory, but Ned Lucas, star pitcher and pinch-hitter of the Reds, left for his home at Nashville last night after a stormy conference with Cincinnati officials. He declared he would not report to training camp unless the club bettered its offer.

NEW YORK—The Yankees today announced the signing of two first-string pitchers, Johnny Allen and George Pipgras, Eddie Farrell, utility infielder, and Charley Devens, former Harvard pitcher. With the signing of Sam Leslie, substitute first baseman, the Giants lined up everybody except two recruits.

ST. LOUIS.—The Cardinals today announced Pitchers Allen Stout and Jim Mooney, the latter obtained in a trade with the Giants, had signed 1933 contracts. The Browns signed Pitcher Wallace Herbert, but Catcher Benny Bengough returned his contract unsigned.

BROOKLYN.—Walter Beck, expected to bolster the Dodgers' pitching staff, sent in his signed contract today. Beck pitched for Memphis last season and won 27 games and lost six.

SCHAAF'S BODY ARRIVES HOME

His fondest dream was to return to Sheldonville—to the home he built for his folks—as the heavyweight champion of the world, but he came a tragic victim of his quest for the crown.

Those he loved most, his parents and sisters, grief-stricken, awaited his last homecoming, by motor hearse from a Somerville funeral parlor in a steel casket in which the body had been brought from New York, where Ernie died in Polyclinic Hospital following a bout with Primo Carnera.

This tragic homecoming was in contrast to the days lovable Ernie came home to "Mom," whether in victory or defeat. The brave mother did her best to conceal her grief.

There was only one consoling thought—Ernie might have lived a hopeless cripple. The New York brain specialists told his mother and Johnny Buckley, his manager, that, even if the operation on his brain proved successful, Ernie would be paralyzed for life.

Interment will be in St. Mary's Cemetery, Foxboro.

NOTABLES TO ATTEND

CURRY READY FOR SLAVIAS

By TOM BIRKS

With Curry scheduled to meet the Cleveland Slavias at Greenlee Field Sunday afternoon, fans in the district may be expected to wend their way to the Bedford avenue enclosure to watch the crack Buckeye state aggregation in action. The outcome of the game means much to both clubs, as the winner enters the western semi-final of the National open cup competition.

For some reason or other the Clevelanders are balking at playing the game on Sunday. The Slavia manager has notified the Curry club that the Slavias had another game scheduled for Sunday.

When the game was called off last Saturday by the local management, the Slavias put up a great howl. They wanted to go through with the contest, although under the conditions they would not have received more than their expenses, which have to be guaranteed by Curry.

Given good weather conditions, the game should be played to a capacity crowd. The Slavias went into the grand final two seasons ago, after they had whipped every club in the West, and the presence of two Dunlevy boys, Ralph and George Caraffi, as star performers of the Buckeye squad will be an added attraction.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(INS.)—James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion, who is seriously ill from a complication of diseases at his home in Bayside, Queens, was weaker today, according to his attending physician, Dr. G. Willard Dickie. Dr. Dickie said:

"He is a little weaker. It is just a question of time."

The patient has lost considerable strength since Sunday, and mild sedatives have been administered.

Two Local Dogs Win in New York

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—A second Pittsburgh dog, Champion Advert of Solway, exhibited by the Shagmoor Kennels, was adjudged the best of his breed, the English springer spaniel class, at the fifty-fifth annual Westminster Kennel Club show last night.

Danny Boy of Shagmoor, another Shagmoor entry, took the blue ribbon in the limit class for dogs. He is a half-brother of Advert of Solway.

Local Shooters High In Rifle Events

BOUT POSTPONED

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Because the N. B. A. titleholder, Freddie Miller, Chicago featherweight, sprained an ankle in a workout, his 10-round championship fight with Baby Arizmendi, Mexico City, has been postponed from February 21 until February 28.

CITY MAY GET NET CONFAB

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Pittsburgh has a fair chance of landing the 1934 annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, according to President J. Phillips Davis, of the Steel City racquet body.

Davis, home yesterday after attending the 1933 U. S. L. T. A. conclave at New York last Saturday, declared, however, that the national net session is as yet far from an assured local acquisition. He said:

"The matter of the site of the 1934 meeting has been referred to the U. S. L. T. A. executive committee, and it is not likely that a final decision will be reached before next month. We have hope that the word will be favorable, but there is talk of taking the meeting to Miami or Coral Gables, and there is a certain amount of reactionary sentiment toward keeping it in New York.

"Harry S. Knox, the new U. S. L. T. A. president, and his Chicago delegation from the Western Association have promised to join the Middle States section in strong support of our request. We have also the backing of Irving Wright and several New England and metropolitan leaders, though Julian Myrick seems disposed to favor returning to New York. Myrick, however, has suggested that Pittsburgh go after the 1933 national clay court championships in addition to the national public parks tournament, which we are seeking for 1934. I cannot say where we stand on this matter until I can consult officers of the local association."

GOSLINS REORGANIZED

The Goose Goslin Club, of the West Penn League, has been reorganized and will adopt a new name, according to the management. A new name will be chosen in a few days.

PANTHERS, DUKES TUNE UP FOR SECOND COURT CLASH

BLUFF QUINT VICTOR OVER GROVE CITY

By JESS ( )VER

Today is Wednesday, tomorrow will be Thursday, and then comes Friday and the district's most important college basketball game of the season, the second Pitt-Duquesne clash. There may be more important ones later on — especially if Pitt is able to turn the tables on the Dukes and get even for that setback in the first game, for then it will be up to Carnegie Tech's Tartans to bump off one or the other of Friday's rivals and throw the entire situation into a condition closely resembling a mess of scrambled eggs.

The Skibos, in fact, are in a swell spot. They've been beaten by both the Panthers and Irish, will be the under-pups in both second clashes and have the stuff, if they once get clicking, to beat either team. The championship may wind up on the shelf after all.

TEAMS RESTED

The condition of both teams—the Panthers and the Dukes—is such that the coaches are taking things very easy. Both have been, if anything, over-basketballed. The Dukes were a trifle loggy last night as they won their ninth game in a row, their second of the season and fourth in two years over Grove City, although they had the old cork to rally in the closing minutes to win by a decisive margin.

Pitt looked tired and played careless ball last Wednesday in beating Western Reserve and was little better against Notre Dame on Saturday. Coach Carlson worked his squad Monday, gave the boys a rest yesterday and will serve a not too tough session this afternoon.

The chief concern of the Dukes has to do with the physical condition of Art Feldman, star forward, who was out of the game with Grove City last night and West Virginia Saturday. Paul Birch, also a Red and Blue sufferer, was able to break into the action for a time last evening, so his ankle must be greatly improved.

The Pitt-Tech boxing meet tomorrow evening in the Stadium Pavilion threatens to be a humdinger. Tech beat the Dukes, 4 to 3, and the Dukes beat Pitt by the same score and on paper, the Panthers appear equal to the task of causing a real mixup by beating Tech by about the same margin.

SHRICKER FAVORITE

Only two bouts on the program have outstanding favorites. Jack Shricker, of Pitt, the Intercollegiate Conference 155-pound champion, figures to beat Hart, of Tech, and Carnegie's 175-pounder, Croissant, ought to trim Kopp, of the Panthers.

The 135-pound class affair, between Pitt's hard hitting Giannatti and Tech's clever Carr, looms as being the best out of the show.

Friday afternoon, the Panther and Carnegie Tech swimming teams hook up in a dual meet in the Trees gymnasium pool, said meet to get under way at 5:30 so the boys can take in the basketball game in the evening. If Pitt wins, it will give the Blue and Gold a perfect record in the Eastern Collegiate Swimming Association for the second season in a row.

Nine For Dukes

Duquesne's Dukes ran into just the sort of a ball game they expected for three-quarters of last night's clash with Grove City, but with 10 minutes left to go, the locals put on added speed, cracked the Crimson defense as wide open as the garden gate and pulled out with a 43 to 25 victory.

At the half, the Red and Blue led by 13 to 12. Superior work at the foul line gave it this edge. Bud Laycock, Grove City center, and Len Brenner, Duquesne's star forward, were matching shot for shot in a merry duel of field-goal getting. Brenner had three and Laycock two at the intermission.

DUKES' RALLY WINS

The close battle continued for the first 10 minutes of the second half, but at this point, Marty Reiter and Brenner handled a brilliant sortie to give the Dukes a long lead which they held for the remainder of the game.

Brenner led both teams in the scoring with 13 points. Laycock trailed him with 10 and Reiter was one behind Bud with nine. The Dukes made good on 17 out of 20 fouls. Grove City on nine out of 11. The lineup

Sharkey Reveals Pact With Schaaf

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—His face lined with marks of grief over the death of his boxing protege, Jack Sharkey, world heavyweight champion, today passed through New York by train en route to Boston and the funeral of Ernie Schaaf. He said:

"I'm glad I wasn't in the ring boxing him when it happened. Ernie and I had agreed we never would fight each other and I had planned, when I got ready to retire, to step down and manage him into the championship."

Sharkey was asked to comment on the ruling of the New York State Athletic Commission which bars his scheduled match with Primo Carnera. He said:

Movie camera's record of the final punch in the fatal bout between Primo Carnera and Ernie Schaaf in New York. By JULIUS LEVIN

In no uncertain fashion, the South Hills High School basketball team today has issued a direct challenge to all comers in the Section II race in the City League and chief among those willing to admit the right of the Tunnelites to their defy is the Perry quintet.

Until yesterday afternoon, Perry has passed all opposition without defeat, but the tables were turned very effectively as the South Hillsmen walloped the leaders, 40 to 12. After a nip and tuck first period, South Hills raced far ahead and Perry was completely routed.

In other Section II games, Allegheny nosed out Oliver, 35 to 31, and Vocational defeated Carrick, 18 to 16.

SOUTH VICTOR

South continued to set a fast pace in Section I and to keep its record clear of defeat by whipping Peabody with ease, 31 to 17. Spotovich, South's center, stole the scoring spotlight from his teammate, Bill Jesko, by registering 11 points.

Taylor Allderdice bumped Schenley, 42 to 23, and Fifth Avenue barely nosed out Connelley, 27 to 25.

There were few upsets among the W. P. I. A. L. leaders. In Section I, New Kensington got back into the win column by defeating Springdale, 33 to 17. In Section II, Leetsdale added to its position at the top of the lost by downing Etna, 24 to 15.

New Castle won another game in Section III, beating Beaver Falls, 18 to 15 and Butler continued very much in the race with a 33-to-16 win over Rochester.

Ambridge crushed Beaver, 69 to 14, in Section IV.

Clairton sprung a mild upset in Section VII by beating Homestead, 28 to 21, and in tough Section VIII all three of the leaders, Rankin, Braddock and Scott turned in triumphs.

SCOTTDALE RALLIES

Scottdale came back in Section X after being defeated last week to beat Dunbar 20 to 17. In Section XIII, Georges clinched the title with a 20-to-17 victory over North Union. McDonald remained in a tie for the lead in Section XIV with Cecil by beating Findlay, 33 to 17.

Bentleyville held the pace in Section XVI, beating West Bethlehem, 40 to 18, and in Section XVII, Johnny Coleman's East Pittsburghers clinched the honor for the season by trimming Glassport, 30 to 15.

Vatican Organ Prints Attack On Boxing

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 15.—(INS.)—Osservatore Romano, official organ of the Vatican, has published a broadside against prize fighting in connection with the death of Ernie Schaaf, American boxer, in New York.

2—People who cheer and applaud the brutality as the Romans did in the old Coliseum.

3—Civilization itself, "which is the most responsible of the three because, after an advance of 20 centuries, again finds itself sitting in a stadium."

U. of Penn Cards Seven Grid Frays

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—The University of Pennsylvania's 1934 football schedule has been announced with only seven games listed for the season.

These are: October 13, Yale at New Haven; 20, Rutgers at Franklin Field; 27, Navy at Franklin Field; November 3, Lafayette at Franklin Field; 10, Penn State at Franklin Field; 17, Columbia at Franklin Field, and 29, Cornell at Franklin Field.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Bob Godwin, of Daytona Beach, scored a technical knockout over Johnny Miles, of St. Louis, in a boxing contest here last night. The referee stopped the fight at the end of the sixth round. Both weighed 168.

YALE FIVE WINS

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Gaining another victory by a tiny margin after a last half spurt, the Yale basketball team defeated Princeton last night, 22 to 20, to retain first place in the Eastern Intercollegiate League.

JACKETS AFTER TENTH WIN

Waynesburg, unbeaten in nine straight games, hopes to make it 10 in a row by beating the strong Glenville Tigers as the Tigers open an invasion of Western Pennsylvania territory by battling the Jackets at Waynesburg.

Wash-Jeff, after losing nine straight, takes on West Virginia at Morgantown, with but slight hopes of success. The Mountaineers, too, have a losing streak to break and are favorites over the Presidents.

Temple, which has been clicking extremely well recently, meets Penn State at State College, where Coach Usilton's lads will have their hands full.

GENEVA WINS

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Feb. 15.—Westminster's hope of capturing the Tristate Conference title were very, very dim today. Beside, the Titans' record of five years without defeat on their home floor was smashed. Last night Geneva turned in its second victory of the season over the Titans, winning here 33 to 28, for its sixth consecutive Conference victory.

Ginsberg and Aultman starred for Geneva, while Newton and Douglas were the high point men for the United Presbyterians. The lineup:

ALLEGHENY BEATEN

MEADVILLE, Pa., Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Allegheny's long losing streak was extended another game here last night when Thiel dropped into town to hand the 'Gator a 40-24 drubbing. Led by Strimer and Harter, the Lutherans were too much for the Methodists, who showed but one streak of good basketball during the entire game in the first half, with the score 20-4 against them. The Allegheny attack functioned long enough to make the count 20-12 before the Thiel onslaught was resumed. The lineup:

BLAKE PROVES SELF BOXING GENTLEMAN

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Frankie O'Brien vs. Ook Till, 10 rounds, Chicago.

W. & J. vs. West Virginia University, Morgantown, W. Va.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Once a gentleman, always a gentleman.

This truth well may be spoken of George Blake, of Los Angeles, manager of Fidel LaBarba, the former flyweight champion, who defeated Mose Butch in the main bout at Motor Square Garden last Monday night, registering such a pronounced hit that the Garden immediately tried to have him stay over and meet Jimmy Thomas, local Negro bantamweight, in its windup next Monday.

Blake declined with thanks, saying Fidel has been through a hard campaign recently and needs a rest. He made arrangements to leave as soon as the weather is favorable by airplane for Chicago with LaBarba and Pete Sanstol, the bantamweight, to stop over there for a few days and then head for California, where La Barba will engage in a few battles and then hang up his gloves for all time to return to Stanford and complete his education.

DECLINES COMMENT

Blake demonstrated that he knows propriety when he refused to comment on the death of Ernie Schaaf following his bout with Primo Carnera. He said:

"Not having seen the bout, I do not feel qualified to set myself up as a judge of what happened."

Meanwhile opinions were drifting in from all parts of the country, from Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney and other notables.

Blake was asked:

"But isn't it true that you stopped the Max Schmeling-Young Stribling fight for the championship with only 14 seconds to go in the last round to prevent just such a catastrophe?"

CONDITIONS DIFFER

Blake replied:

"Yes, but, as I understand it, the conditions were entirely different from those in the Schaaf fight. Stribling was helpless. He had just been knocked down and was out on his feet and could not defend himself. The accounts I read of the New York fight stated that Schaaf collapsed suddenly and there was no warning of the end. Not having seen that bout, it would be unfair for me, as a referee, to speak about the work of another referee. Any remarks I might make might be misconstrued as criticism, which would be most unfair."

You needn't wonder any longer about why George Blake is held in such high regard everywhere.

Between Rounds

Frankie O'Brien, Red Mason's new middleweight, of Chicago, and the Alabama Kid, local Negro sensation, will box the main bout at Motor Square Garden next Monday night. An attempt by Matchmaker Jules Beck to sign Tommy Paul, of Buffalo, to box Jimmy Thomas in another 10-rounder when efforts to secure LaBarba failed also broke down, so the topliner will be backed up with an eight-rounder and two six-round bouts. Tony Leone, of Dover, O., and Clair Repole, of Steubenville, have been signed for the opener. Ted Yarosz and Eddie (Kid) Wolfe have been virtually rematched for a fourth meeting the following Monday.

Tommy Ryan, of Buffalo, former Duquesne bantamweight, wants to rematch his Matty Matheson with Mose Butch here. Butch was awarded a technical knockout over Matty in Youngstown Monday night of last week when Referee George Chip stopped the bout with only 42 seconds remaining in the last round. According to Ryan, Matheson was out in front until he was thrown heavily in the last round, his head striking the floor of the ring. He got up dazed and was floored twice for counts of nine and then the referee called a halt with Butch asking him to stop the fight. Mose and his manager, Jack London, disagree on these details, but a clipping from a Youngstown newspaper says Matheson was leading going into the eighth round.

Matchmaker Lew Raymond has completed the card for his show in the Arena on the North Side, Friday night, by signing Jimmy Gilligan to box Johnny Woods in his opening bout. He has Frankie Goosby against Paul Delaney in the main bout and Johnny Datto against Georgie Riley in another 10-rounder, and Patsy Hennigan against Paul Panteleo in the second number. Delaney and Riley hail from New York and Panteleo from Milwaukee.

Four more bouts have been arranged for the amateur boxing show to be held in the McKeesport arena tomorrow night, as follows: Eddie Katkish vs. Fritz Waldeck, Joe Backo vs. Tony DeMar, Irwin Lowstetter vs. Sam Crovatta and Ray Foskins vs. Leo Moan.

A good-sized turnout is expected for the amateur boxing show to be held in Turner Hall, Homestead, tonight, for the benefit of the needy of the community. Dick Loadman and Marty O'Hara, veterans, will box a special bout.

LIFE AND BATTLES OF JIM CORBETT

No. 2—Fitzsimmons' Solar Plexus Punch

Editor's Note: Owing to the critical nature of James J. Corbett's illness, a review of the big moments in the career of the great heavyweight champion of other days is especially timely now. Following is W. S. Farnsworth's description of the fourteenth round of the heavyweight championship battle between Corbett and Bob Fitzsimmons at Carson City, Nev., on March 17, 1897.

By W. S. FARNSWORTH.
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—It was in the fourteenth round of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons battle at Carson City, Nev., on March 17, 1897, that Fitz landed for the first time his famous "solar plexus" punch. It crumpled Corbett up. Although his head was clear, he lost control of his legs. Corbett and at least half of the ringsiders declared the punch was foul.

"Look out, Jim!"

This from Billy Delaney, Corbett's chief second.

Corbett clung to his man and nodded to his corner in assurance that everything was going all right.

When they broke away, Fitz worked Corbett around the ring and got in two heavy left hand punches to the body and a right to the jaw. Corbett was stung. Another left to the pit of the stomach, followed instantly by a terrible right to the jaw, sent Corbett down.

Corbett placed his hands across his stomach and there were cries of "foul!" Jim's face puckered up in withering pain. His seconds crowded into the ring. There was great excitement. Corbett crawled on his knees to the ropes and held on. The crowd began to pour into the ring and Fitz waved them out. Bob's manager, Martin Julian, started to wave a towel as if for a token of victory.

Corbet, partly recovered, rushed over to Fitz. He fell on Bob, and Jim's brother, Joe, tried to haul him away. Fitz fell under the ropes and half-a-dozen sheriffs pulled Corbett away. Jim was wild. He was trying to get at Fitz in his corner, but finally Delaney induced him to desist.

Corbett's face had the appearance of crying when he kept bending down toward his groin to indicate that he had been fouled. In another few seconds the ring was jammed with ringsiders until the ropes bulged to the breaking point.

Fitz was dragged to his corner and dumped in his chair. Corbett made violent efforts to get at him the second time. Delaney clung around his neck and others intervened and managed to hold the infuriated fighter at bay as Referee George Siler made the announcement:

"Fitzsimmons wins!".

Campbell's Speed Trial Postponed

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Inability of mechanics to complete extensive adjustments to Sir Malcolm Campbell's racing car prevented the 48-year-old British driver from making an official assault today upon his own world land speed record of 253 miles an hour.

Possibility that the trials might be further postponed until Friday or Saturday was seen by the driver, because of unfavorable tide conditions that will prevail for the next day or so.

At West Palm Beach, Fla.—Bob Godwin knocked out Johnny Miles, 6 rounds.

JONES WINNER IN POLL FOR BEST STAR

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Babe Ruth and Bobby Jones have waged the battle of the decade!

They haven't matched wallops on the links, in the ball park or inside the ring but they have just been through a whirlwind struggle of ballots in which Robert Tyre Jones, retired undefeated golf champion of the world, emerged with a hair-line decision over George Herman Ruth, greatest slugger of all time, as the most dominating sports performer of the glamorous decade, 1923-33.

VICTORY MARGIN SLIM

It may serve only to stimulate the main argument but a jury of 50 veteran sports observers, representing the nation's leading newspapers, voted the "athlete of the decade" award to Jones by the thin margin of 207 points to 202 for Ruth.

At the request of the Associated Press, these fifth critics ranked the five leading performers of the past 10 years, taking in every phase of sporting activity, in the United States as well as abroad. The field was wide open. The votes were tallied on the basis of five points for first, four for second place and so on. And that's where the fun began.

RANKED BY WRITERS

Here are the results of the Associated Press poll, based on the rankings of a group of 50 sports writers and editors, as to the outstanding sports performers of the past decade:

STOCKS SPOTTY AFTER EARLY FIRMNESS

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Renewed stability appeared in the financial markets today, after yesterday's setbacks.

Stocks, bonds, and in the commodities, wheat, actually showed intervals of firmness. Progress in securities was meager, however, and the stock market turned rather spotty after midday, with tobaccos and utilities encountering some selling. Reports of progress in dealing with the Michigan banking situation were encouraging, and steel trade reviews were distinctly optimistic. There was a tendency in Wall street to reserve decision on the National Transportation Committee report.

Railroad presidents and insurance heads said they had not yet had time to study the report of the National Transportation Committee, and withheld comment. Such informal discussions as developed in Wall street, however, indicated that the financial community was more or less in sympathy with the committee's statements on the necessity of scaling down unwieldy and obsolete capital structures. Also, the committee's recommendation that the government abandon fostering of competition by supporting such competing services as waterways at public expense was applauded in a number of quarters.

Up until a few weeks ago, Wall street had been inclined to look for a reduction in American Telephone's $9 annual rate, perhaps to $7, but President Gifford's annual report, issued last week, was interpreted as indicating clearly that the regular disbursement would be made. While earnings have fallen considerably under dividends, the company has made marked progress in effecting economies, and station in January, amounting to about 100,000, were approximately the same as December, and much fewer than last summer.

The sugar issues have been gradually creeping up of late, in response to a firmer raw sugar market, and a better statistical position in the industry. Sharp curtailment is expected in the next Javan crop. Selling of the tobaccos and utilities was thought in brokerage circles to be partly for short account, based on recent discussions of price and rate reductions. While some professional traders were inclined to be bearish, a considerable amount of encouragement was expressed over the action of the market, in view not only of the Michigan situation, but a decided setback in London, where Far Eastern issues dropped sharply, after suspension of trading in the Tokio stock exchange.

GRAIN VALUES TURN UP

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—Upturns in grain prices early today accompanied a rise in securities. Japanese-Chinese tension was also construed as bullish regarding cereals. Opening at ¼ to ½ gain, wheat afterward rose further. Corn started unchanged to ⅛ higher, and subsequently advanced all around.

Unusual scantiness of speculative offerings characterized wheat trade until prices had made 1½ cents a bushel advance. Corn and oats borrowed strength from from wheat. Provisions were easy, responsive to downturns of hog values.

JANUARY TRADE DEVELOPMENTS SKETCHED

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—We can now size up several of the more important business indexes for January and get a fairly good idea of the position in the first month of 1933.

At first glance, some of the business measurements seem encouraging. For example, we find both pig iron and steel production up in January, their gains being more than seasonal.

A glance at the charts still suggests that these basic industries had fallen so low that they may have hit bottom. Moreover, pig iron production is relatively the lower of the two, which is apt to be characteristic of bottom.

Furthermore, the unfilled orders of the Steel Corporation did not fall off quite so much as in preceding months, which sometimes suggests an improvement in steel buying.

Finally, we find some apparent gain in January bank clearings, indicating a larger volume of business transactions of all kinds.

AUTOS SPUR STEEL

Unfortunately, however, these items are really not quite so favorable as they seem, and several other statistics show no improvement. The gain in steel was largely due to a spurt in bringing out new automobile models, together with some public works. The unfilled orders declined, contrary to usual seasonal tendencies.

And the bank clearings were influenced by government financing, to say nothing of the fact that they included some business which would usually have been credited to February.

As to the less favorable figures, I find that railway freight traffic did not gain as much in January as is usual for that month.

Commodity prices, too, were distinctly lower, and as I have often pointed out, a natural and sustained stabilization of basic commodity markets is essential to recovery.

LINE SHOWS DECLINE

As a result of the foregoing, my "P-V line" declined again, though not so rapidly as in December. It now stands at 86 (preliminary), comparing with 109 last August, and 87 in December. This barometer has been so reliable that its present position makes a spring rise in business of the usual proportions seem improbable.

There is little that suggests the sort of "recovery" that "bull" operators in stocks have been talking about. But we should remember that every depression has its bottom.

After all, what we want to see is the bottom of this one. I hope that we are nearing the final stage of the readjustment process, and that, if we will but keep our money and our social institutions sound, real recovery is a matter of only a few months.

Owens-Illinois Glass Reports Profit For Year

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

OWENS-ILLINOIS Glass Company remains on the roll of the few companies which have been able to come through the difficulties of 1932 with a profit.

The annual report, released today, shows net earnings of $2,067,885 after deducting all charges. This was equivalent to $1.62 a share on the common stock after providing for preferred dividends. In 1931 net profit was $2,744,181 or $2.45 a share.

Profit for the year fell short of dividend requirements on the common stock at the present rate of $2 a share, but the company was able to improve its current financial position.

Leading Producer Of Glass Containers

THE COMPANY is one of the outstanding makers of bottles, boxes for the shipment of bottles, bottling machinery, caps, labels and other supplies used by bottlers.

The possibility that beer may be legalized in the near future has been a factor in attracting interest to the company since it has extensive facilities which are now idle but which could be used in supplying the revived brewing industry.

Its strong financial position, together with the ability of the organization to show profits under adverse general business conditions has been a further factor in stimulating public interest.

Current Asset Ratio Shows Improvement

CASH AND NET working capital has been materially increased during the year. Current assets were nine times current liabilities at the end of 1931. This ratio increased to 16 times current liabilities at the end of 1932.

On December 31, 1932, current assets stood at $19,039,629. Cash, United States Government securities and Federal Land Bank bonds amounted to $6,291,683. Current liabilities amounted to only $1,128,407.

During the year the company acquired the assets of the Illinois Pacific Coast Company with plants at San Francisco and Los Angeles, and the Root Glass Company of Terre Haute, Ind.

As a result of these transactions funded debt was increased from $2,000,000 to $4,068,000, preferred stock outstanding from $8,000,000 to $8,300,000. The number of common shares outstanding was increased from 922,173 to 977,173.

The company has no near bond maturities other than minor amounts of serial issues.

Life of Andrew Carnegie

By BURTON J. HENDRICK

ing in its character. To continue much longer overwhelmed by business cares and with most of my thoughts wholly upon the way to make more money in the shortest time, must degrade me beyond hope of permanent recovery. I will resign business at 35, but during the ensuing two years I wish to spend the afternoons in receiving instruction and in reading systematically."

The Fulfillment

Twenty years were to pass before the ideas set forth in this paper became public property. This program for the future Carnegie did not put into effect at the time; yet the principles here announced are essentially the same as those that afterward became so famous in the "Gospel of Wealth." Almost every item of the ideal existence, as it appeared to the young man, he ultimately carried out. Carnegie did not spend three years at Oxford and he did not "get a thorough education" in the academic sense; yet he did devote much time to self-improvement and to reading books, with the result that in general knowledge of history, philosophy and polite letters, he had many holders of university degrees at a disadvantage. He did not settle in London, but he did spend practically half of every year in the British Isles or in foreign travel. With these exceptions the scheme to which Carnegie now committed himself was afterward realized. His strongest friends, and those whom he most admired, were men of letters. He studied assiduously to perfect himself in public speaking. His ambition to own a "live review or newspaper" made him in after years the proprietor of 15 or 20 organs of public opinion, for the most part in England and Scotland.

Bessemer Steel

Carnegie, however, did not then retire from business. The industrial forces of expanding America proved too strong for immature decisions of the kind. Perhaps, had the iron trade continued in the familiar groove, he might have done so.

An innovator whose research was to have as great an influence on modern civilization as Franklin's experiments with electricity or Watt's invention of the steam engine, had applied his genius to the imperative problem of evolving a new, cheap metal. Today his name is immortal as Henry Bessemer. His was the discovery that interrupted the plans of the young Carnegie to retire from business and devote the long life ahead of him exclusively to the improvement of his fellows.

It was the dazzling brilliance of a Bessemer converter that, in the twinkling of an eye, transformed Andrew Carnegie into a new man. On one of his English voyagings he made the acquaintance of Henry Bessemer, laying the basis of a lasting friendship, gaining from the lips of the sage an insight into the new mechanism and the part it was destined to play in the future of mankind.

Jumping on the first available steamer, he rushed home; the year was 1872. In due course a perfervid gentleman appeared at the office of Carnegie, Kloman & Company, in Twenty-ninth street, Pittsburgh. "The day of iron has passed"—such was Carnegie's message to his bewildered associates: "Steel is King!"

"We must start the manufacture of steel rails, and start at once," insisted Carnegie. His partners, however, Thomas M. Carnegie, Henry Phipps and Andrew Kloman, failed to reciprocate his insistence.

New Partners

Despite Carnegie's urgings his associates refused to aid this new speculative project to their established business. "Very well," said Carnegie, "then I shall start a separate company with an entirely new group of partners." Thomas Carnegie, Phipps and Kloman subscribed a moderate interest, but the larger part of the capital the "reckless partner" sought in new directions. Carnegie himself had $250,000 in cash, the commissions from recent bond sales, all of which was invested in the rail mill.

The absorption of Thomas A. Scott and J. Edgar Thomson, though their membership was of brief duration, likewise made plausible Carnegie's latest scheme.

The spot selected for the enterprise suggested the forceful spirit inspiring the whole transaction. That the factory would be built in Pittsburgh was taken for granted, but a more promising site was discovered on the Monongahela River, about 12 miles from the city. The concern became the "Edgar Thomson Steel Company, Limited,"

REDHEAD

CHAPTER XV.

Sue spoke. "You've changed the course, Charlie."

"Yes."

It must have been a quarter of an hour later when she spoke again. "What are you going to do with me, Charlie?"

He thought that question over. "Well," he replied, finally, "I've decided to run for Jacksonville or Savannah and put you ashore there."

"Why?"

"Because it occurred to me last night that I can't take you into a foreign port. You see, you don't appear on my papers. I couldn't explain you to the officers. Might have trouble. Oh, getting detained and fussing around. Legal stuff."

"I've got a passport in my bag."

"That isn't enough. No, it's got to be an American port."

"Oh!" was all Sue had to say to that, just then.

But she took it up a little later. Lying lazily along a seat, hands under her head, staring up at the wide-sprinkled stars, "You're going to put me ashore?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"Well—it seems to me it'll work the best that way."

"And what am I to do?"

"Oh!"

DOUBTS FAIRNESS

Another long silence. He broke it, sputtering out his words with sudden fierce heat. "If you're determined to follow that headlong course you'd started on, I suppose you'll run after that fool aviator. If you aren't, I mean if I've succeeded in knocking a little sense into you, why maybe you'll look your father up and see if you can't help him a little. He's pretty near crazy."

"It isn't your idea, then, to consult my wishes at all?"

"No."

After a time she sat up and leaned on the coaming, looking down into the brilliantly phosphorescent foam. "You've said some pretty rough things to me, Charlie."

He was silent.

"I don't doubt I've deserved it. Every word of it. But . . ."

"I used to think you were a steady sort of girl, Sue. But you went after that money like any Broadway gold-digger. You leaped."

"Yes, I did do that, didn't I!" She didn't look toward him. Dimly he could see her white-clad figure and her prettily poised head. The pleasant air, the twinkling tropical night and the picture she made combined to unnerve him. He was suffering. But he wouldn't yield. He'd fight those soft blandishments; fight them to the very end of his strength. There was plenty of stern stuff in him. He might need it. But it was there.

"I'm wondering"—her voice was low and moody—"if it is altogether fair. I mean to carry me off like you did, and then, because you've changed your mind, just coolly throw me back."

OLD-FASHIONED

"Afraid of scandal?" A pause. "If that's it, of course the proper time to think of it was before you went all out with that damn flier. Plenty of material for scandal there."

"You just don't like me at all, do you?"

"Yes; you are."

"And I can't pretend I like the way girls—most all girls—are acting up nowadays."

"You mean you don't like any of us?"

"Well . . . I suppose that's about it."

Sue thought a while. Finally this came out, in a low voice that had a pulse of emotion in it—"I've just plump lost you, Charlie, haven't I?"

He didn't answer.

"Suppose I admit that I did lose my head. Oh, I did. I know. But I feel differently now. I do, Charlie."

"Naturally."

"What do you mean by that?"

"Why . . . all this has been pretty absorbing . . . the boat, a couple of weeks of the ocean, the storm, all of it."

"You've said some other things like that. You mean, don't you, that it's because I've been caught up in a new atmosphere. You mean that I'm just a—a chameleon?"

A silence. After all, she was talking very decently and frankly. She actually seemed to be thinking straight. He might as well speak frankly too. "I mean, Sue, that I'm off women."

"Because of the fool way I've behaved?"

"We needn't go into that, need we? I prefer to put it that I'm off women. For good."

Silence again. Both were speaking quietly enough, but the soft night air about them seemed charged with an electrical tension. He went on, with a little more of that savage strength in his voice. "I lost my head, Sue. That day in Boston harbor. I was all torn up. And there was something your dad said. It drove me wild to see him suffering so. I didn't dream that I was going to carry you off that way. And then you made me mad with your talk. All that fool stuff about being free. Free? My God! you were nothing on earth but a flapper on the loose. With too much money. Your head completely turned. I just went crazy. Had an idea I could bring you to your senses. We'll, all I've got to say now is that I'm through. When I head out alone, for Panama and the South Seas, it'll be the happiest day of my life. That's all."

So he was still bitter. He was more than tired; his nerves were strained very nearly to the breaking point. Well . . . there seemed to be nothing more to say.

CHARLIE RETICENT

Sue was to learn more about stern inherited character. For four days the ketch beat her way against brisk west winds under sail and power. And Charlie, after the one outburst, kept his thought to himself. He was now simply all sailorman and navigator, intent on his work, thinking, apparently, of nothing but making his landfall with precision. And Sue, reduced to silence, studied him and the boat with dogged interest. She could be stubborn too.

She was rapidly picking up the simpler elements of seamanship. She now took her regular trick at the wheel; and thus he managed to sleep with something near regularity. Sue cooked and kept house below decks. But they spoke only of necessary things. Sue simply had to learn to keep her moods to herself. He wasn't interested. Or at least he gave not the smallest outward sign of interest.

After a day or so of this, she took to carrying his meals up to the cockpit and then returning below to eat alone. It was a strain. It hurt. And being an impulsive feminine creature, accustomed to behave just as she felt, Sue had to put up a real struggle with herself. At times anger blazed in her breast. But she knew now that anger couldn't help at all. He was inflexible.

Synopsis

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Members of the Boy Scout troop who assist Manager Joe Blowitz, of the Manor Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, each Saturday afternoon, were all "on their toes" Saturday, because they were being inspected by a division scout master from headquarters.

The Manor scouts open and close each of these meetings. The bugler calls the meeting to order with "Assembly" and the scouts read the pledge of allegiance to the flag and lead the members of the Junior Komic Club in singing "America." After the entertainment the meeting is brought to a close with the bugler blowing "taps" and every one present saluting the flag.

Last week the members enjoyed many laughs when the six boys who had entered the banana eating contest came to the stage and started jumping for the bananas. John Halliday proved the best jumper and was awarded the pair of tickets which Manager Joe Blowitz had offered for the winner. Marie Mauritan and Helene Greene then sang several songs and Bill Flaherty offered a fast and snappy tap dance. Jean Naglen closed the juvenile part of the entertainment by singing "River Stay Away From My Door."

Another Committee Reports

Now consider the committee for the disposition of useless executive papers.

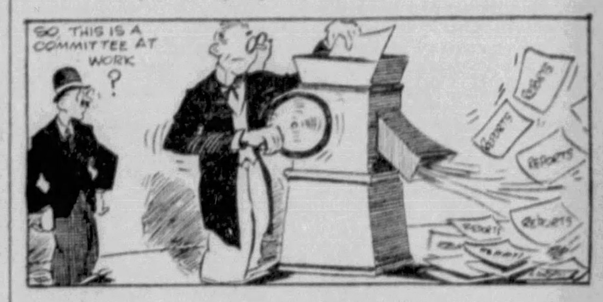
If that committee is sincere it will be busier than a spy in a keyhole factory.

First of all, it can put the torch to the constitution, fry it in the fat of its own amendments and set our secret treaties to music.

It can sew a tail of rags on the Congressional Record and fly it like a boy's kite. It can stuff the parlor stove with proposed laws and launch a paper hat factory with the leavings of tabled resolutions.

From time immaterial we have had more laws than we required. We seem to think that anything is beneficial if it is in writing. My old friend Tommy Rice once had an idea that it would be thoroughly patriotic if school children could be legislated into blowing their little shining noses in purple hankies with yellow dots.

Inside of a week we had a Congressman interested. The bill was drawn up and duly registered with the authorities that beef.



But before it could become a law Tommy relented and slapped the Congressman in the official face with a wet flounder.

Tommy only wanted to see if it could be done. And it could. After that Tommy went back to his job of reporting the sluggish caperings of the Brooklyn Dodgers on the baselines.

Tommy was satisfied. He proved that you can talk a lawmaker into anything by first caulking your own ears with oakum and cotton.

That's just a sample of the many plain and fancy ordinances which govern our caperings in the land of the free and the home of the foreclosed.

Now, everybody hasn't the knack of thinking up a law like that. It amounts to pure, denatured genius. Like a steamer basket it is a gift.

But there are enough geniuses in Washington and state capitals to keep the committee for the disposition of useless executive papers busy from sun-up to soup-down.

Another Prize Ring Death

A HEAVY man, Primo Carnera, came from Italy, where he had worked as a kitchen helper in a hotel. He weighed two hundred and sixty-four and a half pounds in training—all muscle, no fat. He stood six feet five and a half inches high. His gigantic arms reach exactly seven feet when he stretches out his shoulders.

It is a marvelous arm, with a fist on the end as big as the head of a baboon, and heavier. The arm itself weighs from forty to fifty pounds. When he was first seen by newspapermen in Los Angeles and uncovered his huge right arm and the muscles of his back that drove the arm, his manager, a small, intelligent Frenchman who brought him here, as Barnum brought the great elephant Jumbo, pointing proudly to his heavy fist, the long arm and the muscles, said:

"I only fear if he hits with his full force he will kill somebody."

Carnera did that last Friday.

ON THAT day Carnera, who is led from city to city, showing his great body, giant strength and lack of skill to crowds that crave bloodshed, had for his opponent another "heavyweight" named Schaaf, from Boston.

Schaaf, while a heavyweight, was not a Carnera heavyweight.

Schaaf, when he stepped into the ring on Friday, weighed 207½ pounds, fifty-seven pounds less than Carnera. He was three and one-half inches shorter than Carnera, and his reach is nine inches shorter. Nine inches means the difference between hitting and not hitting.

THE NEWSPAPERS have told you the story.

Carnera's little French manager had foresight.

The seven-foot arm, handled clumsily but with deadly strength, sent the heavy Carnera's fist against Schaaf's head. Schaaf fell, his eyes closed, and opened nervously. He tried to rise to his feet, his legs shook and trembled.

A sports reporter, who had taken a friend to see his first fight, said:

"I am sorry I brought you here. You have seen a man badly hurt."

He had indeed seen a man badly hurt. One doctor operated on Schaaf's skull, hoping to remove the blood clot supposed to have been caused by the blow of the heavy fist.

The operation was successful, but not effective. Schaaf died yesterday.

A doctor, after thoughtful consideration, announced that he had died "from natural causes." If you had ever seen Carnera's arm, the heavy shoulder muscles at one end of it, the huge bony fist at the other end, you would know that the doctor's diagnosis is perfectly sound.

Schaaf, indeed, did die "from natural causes."

When Carnera hits you in the head with one-half his full strength and the weight of his body back of his fist, and you die, that is perfectly natural.

THE QUESTION is, "What do the public THINK about this kind of amusement, in the depression of 1933?" And what, if anything, will the public and the authorities DO about it?

The answer to the second question is "NOTHING, PROBABLY." Prize fights are profitable, particularly profitable to politicians, that permit them, in states where the constitution forbids them. And after all, as the profiting politicians will tell you earnestly:

They probably said the same thing in Rome when they sent the barbarian with the trident and net into the arena, or the yellow-haired Gaul with his spear, or sword.

Quite true, WHOSE BUSINESS IS IT?

Evidently it is NOBODY'S business. We have kidnaping, with murder, and it is nobody's business.

We have children taken for ransom, butchered through cowardice, and that is nobody's business.

The able Governor of New York, Mr. Lehman, demands "the fullest details" and will get them, including the medical report of "death from natural causes."

The boxing authorities will suggest, in fact, they have already hastily suggested, that perhaps it would be just as well to "cut out" heavyweight prize fights "in the superdreadnought class" above 220 pounds, because no head was ever built that could stand a blow from a fist like Carnera's if it landed "really hard."

Lighter men, middleweights, lightweights, featherweights, can't hit so hard, they are more skillful "boxers" rather than "sluggers." But nothing quite satisfies the prize-fighting public as well as the sight of a big man, his face slashed, eyes swollen shut, blood running down his body, while ladies who attend these exhibitions scream, "Kill him." You may believe it or not, but that happens constantly in our civilization.

There will be investigations, demands for facts, and explanation by doctors.

But if you think anything will be done, you do not know your own dearly beloved native land.

In this country we do not interfere with anything that means profit, really big profit, especially profit for politicians supposed to enforce the laws.

A Beneficiary of Fraud

Senator Coyne Should Work for Election Reform as a Rebuke to His Crooked Friends.

The Bar Association found in its investigation of the November election that numerous ballots marked for the straight Democratic ticket bore additional marks in favor of James J. Coyne, Republican candidate for the State Senate, and other Republican candidates. Judge W. Heber Dithrich ordered a number of these ballots thrown out as fraudulent.

The Bar Association investigators found a ballot from which the numbered stub had not been detached, and through it located the voter who had cast it. They say the voter, a woman, declared she had put an X for the straight Democratic ticket, but no other mark, on the ballot. Yet it also contained an X for Senator Coyne.

Senator Coyne is shown by Judge Dithrich's action to have been the beneficiary of fraud, though there is no evidence to indicate that he was aware that his friends were cheating in his behalf.

When Senator Frank J. Harris introduced, at the caucus of Allegheny County's delegation to the Legislature, a resolution pledging the delegation to support legislation for the prevention of election fraud, Senator Coyne opposed it and caused it to be laid on the table.

Perhaps because of the public indignation that his action aroused he said, subsequently, that he was not opposed to reasonable election law reforms.

Senator Coyne should rebuke his crooked friends by throwing himself energetically into the fight for honest elections. He can make partial amends for his previous hostility by leading in the campaign against fraud.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Lamps

Of all the joys a house can boast,
Sometimes I think the lamps most.
Lights are the loveliest of things
As dusk upon its journey wings.
And shadows creep across the room,
When suddenly the soft lights bloom!

In orange, purple, rose and gold
The petals of the lamps unfold,
Each petal flinging forth a ray
That heals the hurt of dying day;
Each ray a beacon, burning bright
Against the threat of coming night!

The light of stars, the light of dawn,
What comfort from each gleam is drawn,
And in earth's vague, primeval time
How fire seemed a gift sublime!
Men's hearts so welcome every beam
They must have kinship with light's gleam.
And so rejoice, when through the gloom
At dusk, lamps flower into bloom!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Many writers, in a funk over the increasing droop of the world's literary markets, have been heartened by a new avenue of activity, that is, the writing of radio scripts. First to invade the field was Octavus Roy Cohen, signed up for 30 weeks.

So great are his duties and so grand the emolument, he will be forced to preclude other writing endeavors during the period of his contract. Advertising agencies are angling for other established writers, and such fancy salaries as $50,000 a year, and up, are being offered.

One of the difficulties of radio artists is not so much in deliverance of material, but in the material itself and the continuity. It has been proved time after time that the radio stuff of the finished writer is more acceptable than that of the inexperienced author.

The technique is not mastered easily. It has more pronounced fundamentals than playwriting. A line that sparkles from the stage and screen may be broadcast with no reaction. There is an element of precise timing that has a split second significance. That's the trick.

Grace George and her effervescent daughter-in-law, Alice Brady, I am told, were for years aloof in their relations but, thrown together in a recent co-starring, they became constant companions.

There were repeated stories, mostly vagaries of press agents, that the Roger Brothers and also Weber and Fields did not speak off-stage. Perhaps the only actually true story concerned the Russell Brothers, an Irish team of 20 years ago. For seven years they never spoke save in their crossfire patter.

Due to the illness of a regular chauffeur, a substitute was obtained. For many months he had had no employment, and never have I seen a person so grateful for a chance to earn a little money. At the end of the first week, we arrived home late. Two children, silently weeping, stood in the shadows of the entrance. "Mother," they told him, "is very ill." An hour later, he phoned that she had passed on. "It's crushing," he said, "but I'll come through somehow." There's a lot of fine courage like that in this grimly taut world.

Grief is more poignant without display. There is a New York newspaperman, a columnist, by the way, who lost his wife years ago. The next day he went to his office, turned out his copy, lunched with his fellows, and gave no evidence whatever of his heartbreak. His single comment during the anguishing hours was: "Life goes on."

The terrific slow to hotel receipts from prohibition may be gauged by the fact that the old Waldorf netted $700,000 a year from its bar alone. The Ritz-Carlton profited a quarter of a million, and the Knickerbocker of the Caruso days, $500,000.

The bar, however, which probably gathered the most distinguished clientele, at the cocktail hour, was that of the old Holland House. One's change came back on a tiny napkin in a silver tray. And freshly crisp currency always was in evidence. Gentlemen clinked glasses, and murmured polite toasts, before downing their libations. Bartenders, with nimble torsion, poured drinks so that the spill of a single drop on the mahogany inspired a Tuxedoed manager's frown.

* * *

There was a resident of the Holland, an elderly gentleman, with white side whiskers, who was a sort of Silerius in the lower avenue life of that day. His only appearance during the 24 hours was for a toddy at the bar at 6 p. m., on the dot. Once, asked where he kept himself, he said: "In my room. It took me 65 years to learn that the only happiness in life is solitude."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I'm tired of hearing people whine about the depression—but I'm even more tired of hearing people smile about it!

"Buck up! Cheer up!" the Smilers cry. "This is just a passing cloud. If we'll all be brave and merry, the good old days will soon be back!"

Which, of course, listens lovely. But actually, such a show of optimism is as stupid and cowardly as our whines and wheezes, and serves exactly the same purpose—that is, it helps us run away from the Truth.

What is the Truth? Simply this—and the slowest brain can figure it out for himself:

THE GOOD OLD DAYS WON'T COME BACK.

THEY CAN'T COME BACK, FOR THE ORDER ON WHICH THEY WERE BASED HAS PASSED AWAY FOREVER.

This isn't "just another depression like the hard times back in the 90's." Those other hard times were based on an entirely different scheme of things. And that entirely different scheme of things had existed for hundred of years.

When your father and your grandfather and your great-grandfather bewailed "hard times," they were speaking of the same sort of slump, based on conditions which had changed little from generation to generation. But when YOU speak of "hard times," you are talking about conditions which have never before prevailed in the world's history. You're talking about a new world, which would seem as strange to your grandfather as the moon.

A new world, where vast machines, each under one operator do the work of a thousand men. What is to be done with those idle men?

A new world, in which the essential, domestic chores have been taken out of the home and turned into Big Business. What is to be done for those idle wives who once found pleasure and pride and employment in those homes?

A new world, in which women must work as well as men, because the men cannot support them. What is to be done about these working women, with their dangerous new liberty and power?

A new world, of vast populations, tremendous riches, incredible crops; yet with no adequate program for serving those populations, distributing those riches or controlling those crops.

A world that is new in every respect, from the cradle to the grave. That is what you're talking about when you speak of "depression." And that is why it is utterly ga-ga to go around either beaming or blubbering over "the good old times."

The good old times won't come back. The simple old days can't come back. And we probably wouldn't like them if they could. Then let's stop drifting, in a pipe dream which will never come true, and, instead, let's stand up and face our world, AS IS.

Let's look at and accept this New World which we have made for ourselves and our children.

Let's study these Machine Age conditions of which our fathers never dreamed, but with which we must deal every hour of the day.

Let's use the energy which we are now using in resentment and self pity—in making new programs to deal with new problems.

ABOVE ALL, LET US BELIEVE IN OUR NEW ORDER; HAVE FAITH IN OURSELVES AND OUR AGE; HAVE FAITH IN LIFE!

AND LIFE NEVER YET HAS FAILED THOSE WHO HAVE HAD THE COURAGE TO GO ON WITH HER!

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Isn't It So?

The longer a woman lives, the fewer birthdays she has.

Old Scurrilities on Faded Paper

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The other day, rummaging about a second-hand book store where treasures so frequently are found, I happened upon a copy of the "Administration of John Adams," by John Wood, which played a conspicuous part in the political gossip of a century and a third ago. The author was a man of no little ability and no one was quicker to recognize it, and the possibilities of its use, than Aaron Burr.

Just what part Burr played in having the book written has never been made clear. But he knew of the preparation of the book and his correspondence shows that he was interested. When it was completed he secured a copy, in manuscript and changed his mind about going through with it. Whether he was fearful that the complimentary references to himself would cast suspicion on him, or really felt, as he claimed, that it would do his party more harm than good it is impossible to say.

But it appears certain that in the end he paid the author—not to publish it. It is to be assumed that Wood got the money; but it is certain that a little later the book appeared. The press at the time teemed with articles about the mysterious performance.

A little later the close relations of Burr and Wood were manifest when the latter became the editor of a newspaper in Washington devoted to the political aspirations of Burr. It soon gave up the ghost; and Burr began his mysterious meanderings in the Southwest which ended in the courtroom in Richmond.

Scurrility Lavished on Jefferson

I opened the old volume with the expectation of finding it filled with scurrility. There was a superabundance of it in those days. Much of it was lavished on Jefferson, and the political preachers in New England were the worst offenders. But Wood's book seemed mild. Some rather terrible facts connected with the Federalists reign of terror, through the sedition of law of odorous memory, are set forth—but this was honest history. But here and there charges are found not easy to accept literally. There is no doubt that the Federalists wished us to enter the European war in aid of England; they were pronouncedly pro-English, and the time came when many of their leaders turned traitors during the war with England. Andrew Jackson used to say that had he been President at the time he would have strung them from the gallows tree. But Wood drew on his imagination for some of his facts. Thus:

"When the hour of 12 at night was struck, the Coffee House in South Second street (Philadelphia), which is kept by an old servant of the Ambassador Liston, was immediately crowded with Adamsites, who stunned the ears of the neighborhood until sunrise next morning with 'God Save the King' and 'Rule Britannia.'"

This smacks of partisan bunk. But there was just enough truth to carry it.

It was almost literally true, as Wood says:

"In the summer of 1798, Gen. Sumpter, of South Carolina, was unwarrantedly abused at the new circus in Market street, Philadelphia, because he did not pull off his hat, kiss the ground and clap his hands when John Adams entered the place."

We may assume that he was not expected to "kiss the ground," but he was attacked brutally because of his failure to remove his hat and applaud.

A Revolutionary Patriot

Far more outrageous than anything recorded in Wood's book were the scurrilities given currency against Jefferson by the political preachers. In the gentle art of bearing false witness these were the masters of them all. He was called an atheist, and charged with having said that "a dilapidated church was good enough for the Christ born in a manger." He was crucified in the name of Christ because he permitted Thomas Paine to return to America on a battleship. The facts were these:

Leland's Preaching Disliked by Cutler

When he reached Washington he called on Jefferson, and that was quite enough. During his incarceration in France he had written his book attacking the Christian religion, and the political preachers ascribed Jefferson's kindness to this, and not to the remarkable political pamphlets that Washington had distributed among the soldiers.

But one political preacher named Cutler was elected to Congress, and very soon he made observations that belied the stories propagated from the pulpits in his section. Jefferson went to church! It seemed incredible to Cutler, but he could not deny his eyes. At first he was inclined to jeer. A Baptist minister had presented Jefferson with a mammoth cheese which was on exhibition in the East Room, and soon afterward the minister, John Leland, appeared in Washington, and, in the absence of regular preachers then, he was invited to preach in the hall of the House of Representatives where church services were held—for there was not then a church in the capital. Dissenting sects were hated in those days by the churches connected with the state, and in his diary Cutler wrote:

"Last Sunday Leland, the cheese monger, a poor, ignorant, illiterate, clownish preacher, was introduced. The President, contrary to all former practice, made one of the audience. Such a performance I never heard before, and I hope never shall again. Such a forrago, bawled with stunning voice, horrid tone, frightful grimaces, and extravagant gestures, I believe was never heard by any decent auditory before. Such an outrage upon religion . . . was extremely painful to every sober thinking person present. But it answered the much-wished for purpose of the Democrats to see religion exhibited in the most ridiculous manner."

Now this pious soul found Jefferson at church the first time he himself went in Washington, and the words "contrary to all former practice" were written out of ignorance and malice. For during the next two years he had to record many times that he had found Jefferson at church with his daughters or his secretary; and once he had to record that "the attendance was very thin but the President was there," and another time that "the President attended, although a rainy day."

Was Forced to Pay Reluctant Tribute

It is interesting to note, too, that on that rainy day Jefferson rode to the services on horseback, "his ardent zeal brought him through the rain on horseback."

In 1804 this preacher-politician, hating the Irish, was forced to pay reluctant tribute to the eloquence of a minister who was not only Irish, but an Irish patriot in exile. Thus:

"A Mr. Glendy (an exiled Irish patriot) now settled in Baltimore, preached. . . . His language remarkably refined and elegant, his matter sentimental, his manner animated and pleasing; not over-acted."

But Jefferson was there, and the Irish lover of liberty evidently was not unmoved, for the dairy continues:

"But his adulation offered to the President was disgusting. He is a flaming Irish patriot."

That must have been an interesting occasion, for the diary adds:

"A Mr. Emmett, the lawyer, brother to the Emmett who was executed, was with Glendy."

Jefferson thought, as Washington during the Revolution thought, that Paine's pamphlets rendered an immeasurable service to the American cause. No other person, through the agency of the pen, did half so much. He was a revolutionary patriot. In France he plunged into the fever of the French Revolution, was a member of the Convention, and doomed to the guillotine. Monroe saved him. He was afraid to return on a French merchant vessel lest he be taken by the English. Thus the permission to come home on a war vessel.
